ARNSTEIN TRAIL LEADS TO MURDER OF BANK MESSENGER

Binkowitz, Who Fled with $178,000 in Securities, Slain by Hired Assassins.

WOULDN'T GIVE UP BONDS

Details of Crime Learned Through Information Given at Bankruptcy Hearing.

VICTIM LURED FROM CITY

Stabbed to Death When He Refused $3,000 for Securities Hidden in His Coat Lining.

Benjamin M. Binkowitz, messenger for Richard C. Whitney & Co., bankers and brokers at 14 Wall Street, who disappeared last August with $178,000 worth of securities belonging to his employers, was the victim of hired assassins who stabbed him to death on a road near Milford, Conn., because he refused to turn over the stolen securities for $3,000.

Evidence to that effect, it was learned yesterday, was developed through information obtained at the secret hearings within the last month before Alexander Gilchrist, United States Commissioner, in the joint bankruptcy proceedings instituted against "Nicky" Arnstein, fugitive from justice and David W. Sullivan, head of the brokerage house of Sullivan & Co. of this city and Washington, D. C., who confessed that he had obtained $800,000 worth of securities, stolen in the financial district in the last year, from Arnstein and "Nick" Cohen.

The men at the head of the plot to slay young Binkowitz were said yesterday to be associates of Arnstein and Cohen, who by employing such dishonest messengers succeeded in getting at least $2,500,000 worth of securities, which they sold for something like one-fourth of their value.

Plot Hatched by Gambler.

Evidence in the possession of the police, it was learned, indicates that the plot to murder the young messenger for the securities, which he was known to have in his possession, was hatched in the temporary apartment of a Cleveland gambler near Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, two days after young Binkowitz disappeared. He had then proved unwilling to give up the stolen securities.

The men who did the killing, it was alleged, called at the home of the gambler a week before the body of the messenger was found in a clump of bushes beside the Milford Turnpike, two miles from that town. Binkowitz was hiding with friends in an east side tenement. The murderers were sent to his hiding place with a limousine and under promise that they would produce a purchaser for the securities, he was lured to Milford.

It is understood the police have obtained information that a friend of the messenger delivered him into the hands of his slayers and advised him to go with them to Milford. The identity of this youth, as well as the assassins, is known to the detectives, it was said, and it was declared they expect to fasten the crime on the slayers within a few days The slayers were declared to be members of a band of Harlem assassins, some of the members of which were credited with having participated in the killing of Barnet Baff, West Washington Market "poultry king," in November, 1914.

Thought Securities Hidden.

It was said yesterday that investigation coincident with the bankruptcy hearings developed that the men behind the plot to slay the young messenger at first were of the belief that Binkowitz had hidden most of the securities in this city, but they instructed the assassins to kill him immediately if it were found that he had the stolen securities on his person.

Binkowitz, according to the evidence, said to be in the possession of the police, went to a hotel in Milford, where he remained with the men that were to kill him for several days. During his stay in the Connecticut town he frequently was taken on automobile rides through the surrounding country, always at night. From two to four young women, believed to have been sent to Milford by the gamblers in this city to aid the hired assassins, usually accompanied Binkowitz and the others on the "joy rides," and it is understood the police have obtained information that on the night before he was stabbed to death young Binkowitz sat up carousing with the men and women in the dining room of the hotel until a late hour.

According to the evidence, Binkowitz was aroused about dawn, and with the assassins got into the automobile, ostensibly to meet a man who was to purchase the securities from him.

Said He Carried Bonds.

Binkowitz, it was said, boasted only a few hours before he was killed that he had all of the stolen securities sewed in the lining of a new sack coat he wore. The boast was made, it was said, while

Pay Increase to $1.25 an Hour Cuts Chicago Building One-Half

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 2.—While May Day brought an increase of $2 a day to the building trade in Chicago, building operations have been reduced 50 per cent.

Wages were increased from $1 an hour to $1.25 for some twenty crafts, including carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers, plumbers, steamfitters, glaziers, lathers and structural iron workers. They now get $10 for an eight-hour day and double time for overtime. A year ago the same crafts were getting 75 cents to 80 cents an hour.

Under the new schedule the pay for ordinary labor was raised from 70 cents an hour to $1 an hour.

These increases in pay have reduced building activities in Chicago one-half in the last two months, and there is a possibility that the crafts may find themselves with high wage scales but no employment.

FLY UP 3 1-2 MILES TO WATCH ECLIPSE

Naval Aviators Ordered to Observe Moon Pass Through Earth's Shadow.

PROFESSOR TODD ASSISTS

Make Report to Navy Department—Crowds in City See Phenomenon.

The eclipse of the moon last night was observed here by Lieutenants J. H. Tilton and W. H. Cushing of the naval air station at Rockaway Beach at a height of nearly three and one-half miles. The two lieutenants ascended in the seaplane N-9, remaining in the air more than one and one-half hours.

The observations were made at the direction of the Navy Department, and Prof. David Todd, formerly of Amherst College, assisted from a position on the shore. They reported their observations were satisfactory, and all the calculations will be embodied in a report to be made by Prof. Todd to the Navy Department.

The eclipse of the moon, the first of four eclipses to occur this year—two each of the moon and sun—attracted much attention among crowds of watchers in the streets, on high buildings and on the decks of the warships of the Atlantic fleet in the North River.

No official study or observations of the eclipse were made at the Columbia University Observatory, and Dr. Harold Jacoby, Professor of Astronomy, said there was nothing of special scientific interest because the lunar tables had been brought to absolute accuracy by former studies and checking.

According to the astronomical experts, the eclipse was visible in North and South America, the western nations of Europe, on the Atlantic, parts of the Pacific and Indian oceans, Africa, and a few other places, where, scientists said, the view would be just as good as it was on the North River or at Times Square.

The moon moved into the earth's shadow exactly on astronomical schedule which, according to the daylight saving time, was 6:49 o'clock. It was one minute after 8 when the rim of the moon dipped behind the earth shadow-curtain and the moon was in a total eclipse one hour and fourteen minutes later, which totality continued one hour and twelve minutes, making the eclipse about six hours long from start to finish.

The emergence began at 10:27 o'clock and the moon passed out of the earth shadow cone at 11:41 o'clock and cleared what is known as the penumbral shadow at 12:53 o'clock this morning.

5 ARE KILLED, 8 INJURED IN OKLAHOMA TORNADO

Sweeps Countryside West of Chelsea and Demolishes Buildings Near Choteau.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 2.—Five persons are known to have been killed and at least eight seriously injured in a tornado which swept the countryside north of Chelsea late today.

Passengers on a passing railroad train said they saw several buildings near Choteau picked up by the storm and demolished.

All Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad wires were leveled by the storm. According to reports reaching the dispatchers' office about the lines, the storm struck Lusta, a small town northwest of Choteau.

JAIL RADICALS IN NASHUA.

Police Hold Speaker and Chairman of Protest Meeting.

NASHUA, N. H., May 2.—Herman Adler of Boston and Vincent Blasonis of Methuen, Mass., speaker and presiding officer, respectively, at a meeting of the Communist Labor Party here today, were arrested following the session. The meeting had been advertised as a protest against the nation-wide roundup of radicals on Jan. 2 last.

Adler, after outlining the platform of the Communist Labor Party, called for funds to be used in carrying to the higher courts cases of persons now awaiting deportation. Police Chief Goodwin said the prisoner would be held until he had conferred with Government officials in Boston.

$500,000,000 STEEL MERGER IN CANADA BIGGEST IN EMPIRE

Nine Companies, Including Coal and Transportation Concerns, Form a Union.

SECOND ONLY TO U. S. STEEL

GRANT MORDEN AT HEAD

Directors Include Many Leading Industrialists and Financiers in England.

MONTREAL, May 2.—Consolidation of nine steel, coal, shipbuilding and transportation companies of Canada into the British Steel Corporation, with a capital of $500,000,000, was announced today by Colonel W. Grant Morden, a Canadian member of the British Parliament.

He said that it was the largest merger of its kind in the British Empire, and second only to the United States Steel Corporation.

Colonel Morden declared that the consolidation would associate the iron and coal deposits of the Atlantic seaboard of the Dominion with the steel-making experience and financial resources of Great Britain.

The capital stock of the corporation will be divided as follows:

Seven per cent. cumulative preferred, $50,000,000, of which $37,000,000 is to be issued; 8 per cent. cumulative preferred participating, $100,000,000, of which $25,000,000 is to be issued; 7 per cent. noncumulative preferred, $150,000,000, of which $68,000,000 is to be issued; common, $200,000,000, of which $77,000,000 is to be issued.

Included in the consolidation are the Dominion Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries; Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, Ltd., and its subsidiaries; Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., and its subsidiaries; Canada Foundries and Forgings, Ltd., and its subsidiaries; Maritime Rail Company and its subsidiaries; Collingswood Shipbuilding Company, Ltd.; Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company, Ltd.; Halifax Shipyards, Ltd., and the Davie Shipbuilding and Repairing Company, Ltd.

Negotiations are in progress with several other enterprises to enter the consolidation, according to Colonel Morden.

The London advisory board of the corporation, Colonel Morden said, will include Sir William Beardmore, Chairman, of William Beardmore & Co., Glasgow; Henry Steel, Chairman of the United Steel Companies of Great Britain; Viscount Furness, Chairman of the Furness group of English steel industries; Benjamin Talbot, J. P. Managian, Director of the Furness companies; Major Gen. Sir Newton Moore, formerly a minister in Western Australia, and Sir Treva Dawson, Deputy Chairman and Managing Directors of Vickers, Ltd.

SPANISH POLICE FIRE ON SYNDICALIST CROWD

Wound Three May Day Demonstrators in Valencia—Minor Disorders Elsewhere.

VALENCIA, May 2.—The security police yesterday fired on a crowd of Syndicalists who were holding a demonstration, wounding three men. They also took into custody sixty-five persons of another group of Syndicalists who were celebrating May Day without authorization. In the course of the disturbances incident to the holiday, Syndicalists fired on a street car, wounding a woman.

The Syndicalists had demanded permission to hold a demonstration in sympathy with Russia, and distributed pamphlets protesting against the allied blockade of Russia. The Governor refused them permission to hold their meeting and took measures to see that his orders were obeyed. At noon a group of 300 Syndicalists gathered in Colon Street, where the Consulates of the Allies are situated. They carried flags and raised shouts of "Long live the Russian revolution." It was at this point that the security police interfered and fired on the demonstrators.

MADRID, May 2.—Reports received here concerning the collision between the Syndicalists and police at Valencia yesterday are to the effect that more than 100 shots were exchanged. Syndicalists attempted to stop the street car service during the day, but their efforts failed. Calm was restored during the evening.

VIGO, May 2.—During the manifestations by workers on May Day, shopkeepers who had kept their doors open were attacked. Shots also were fired at members of the municipal guard, one of whom was wounded. Several shops were stoned and all their windows broken.

OVIEDO, May 2.—Complete order prevailed here on May Day. The day was generally celebrated throughout the mining region. At Mieres, Laviana and other villages the miners exploded dynamite bombs in celebration of the day, and in one of the villages a bomb was detonated prematurely, wounding six persons.

ALICANTE, May 2.—Three Syndicalists were arrested here yesterday for distributing pamphlets which counseled the declaration of a general revolutionary strike.

New York City Living Costs Doubled Since 1914; Detroit Leads in Increase, Norfolk Second

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Announcement was authorized tonight by the Department of Labor that in five years the cost of living in New York City had more than doubled. The increase was 103.81 per cent. in the five-year period, which began December, 1914, and ended December, 1919.

Statistics made public showed in detail charges in the cost of living during this five-year period for fourteen industrial centres on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts and the Great Lakes. The highest percentage of increase was 107.87 for Detroit. The next highest was 106.98 for Norfolk. New York ranked third. The total increase in each of the other cities listed is given as follows:

Portland, Me., 91.59; Boston, 92.39; Philadelphia, 96.49; Baltimore, 98.60; Savannah, 98.68; Jacksonville, 102.14; Mobile, 94.54; Houston, 101.70; Chicago, 100.61; Cleveland, 95.05, and Buffalo, 102.65.

The department made public a table showing in detail the changes in New York year by year. The first column shows the average percentage of total expenditure that is devoted to the different groups of items, such as food, clothing, and so forth. The succeeding columns show for December of each year from 1915 to 1919, inclusive, the per cent. of increase in the prices of the different groups of items over December, 1914.

3 HURT IN $300,000 STATEN ISLAND FIRE

National Lead Company Buildings, Hotel and Two Dwellings Burned.

SHIPS TOWED TO SAFETY

Manhattan Apparatus Goes to Aid—Makes Record Run Down Bay on Borough Call.

Spurred by a strong northwest wind, fire shot through the Jewett plant of the National Lead Company at Port Richmond, S. I., yesterday, burned out the main building, destroyed the plant's big storage house and ate its way through two dwellings and a hotel.

Injuring three and destroying $300,000 in property, the island's biggest fire in recent years brought a borough call for fire apparatus, and while the sheets of flames were jumping skyward fourteen engines, nine trucks, a fireboat, a rescue company and five Standard Oil tugs were on the fringes of the triangular area of blaze. Twenty-five ships were towed from danger in the Kill van Kull.

A feature of the fire was the record response of Manhattan's firemen to the borough call. A dozen engines and hook and ladder companies, Chief Kenlon, Deputy Chief "Smoky Joe" Martin and Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan dashed for Port Richmond. Sweeping every available piece of apparatus out of lower Manhattan, the call sent a stream of machines on a wild race down Broadway to the St. George ferry. There two boats were waiting, and the firemen landed on the island in half the time in which the regular run is made.

The Jewett works of the lead company occupy the territory bounded by Church Street, Port Richmond Terrace and Park Avenue. The main building, a three-story brick structure, fronts on Park Avenue, and the rear is on the bank of the Kill van Kull, across from Bayonne. Across the street stood the two-story frame storage house, a freight and passenger station of the North Shore Division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the small hotel and the dwellings, all of wood.

Watchman Discovers Blaze.

Ludwig Hohenstein, watchman at the gate of the works office building, saw smoke seeping through the side of the long, low-lying storage or "corroding" house at 12:45 o'clock. He ran over and found flames pouring throughout the big building and starting patches of fire on the big mounds of tanbark stored there. He dashed to the corner and turned in an alarm, then ran back to his post and telephoned the engineer, John Barrett, to put the plant's sprinkler system into action.

The watchman lost no time, but even as Battalion Chief Beggin and apparatus arrived the fire was through the roof and spreading fast. Chemicals burning inside gave off a terrific heat, and windows began to drop out of the wooden buildings bordering the blaze. Shortly after he arrived Chief Beggin turned in a second and then a third alarm.

Meanwhile, down on the bank of the Kill van Kull, the watchman, the engineer, an unidentified man and Superintendent Thomas E. Kearns were making a brave fight to keep the sparks from igniting small buildings forming an annex to the main building. Manning the plant's auxiliary fire-fighting system the four men were waging a losing fight when eighteen men from the Medical Corps of the Fox Hills Hospital arrived. Some of them were wearing tin helmets, some had gas masks. Balked in an effort to join the firemen in the battle against the main fire, they joined Kearns and the others.

Nine Families Homeless.

Out in front the fire was gaining fast when Chief Beggin sent in the borough call. In the interval before the arrival of the Manhattan men the flames made an area of charred stumps of the storage plant and destroyed Ringer's Hotel and the dwellings. Nine families living in the hotel and in the dwellings had got out at the first alarm of fire, losing all their household furnishings. Neighbors took some of them in and others were dispatched to the army hospital.

Just before "Smithy Joe" Martin and his detachment got on the job the wind took a spurt. With a rush and roar the fire leaped across the street from the storage building, blew a blast of heat at the front of the main building and then went through the glassless windows. Once in, the flames took hold, ran from floor to floor and left the building a shell. Fire thrust time and again out through the windows and spread the area of damage.

The firemen finally held the flames at the island's rapid transit tracks in Church Street. The great heat, however, warped the rails, and until 7 o'clock last night traffic was broken at that point. The cause of the fire was unknown.

G. H. WEAVER KILLED IN WRECK OF AUTO

Vice President of Remington Typewriter Company Found Mortally Hurt Under Car.

HAD STRUCK TROLLEY POLE

Accident Near Mt. Vernon Followed an Afternoon on the Golf Links.

George H. Weaver, Vice President of the Remington Typewriter Company, was found early yesterday morning dying from injuries under the body of his wrecked automobile on the White Plains Road near Mt. Vernon.

The driver of a New York department store truck notified Lieutenant James Gavin at the Tuckahoe Police Station at 2 o'clock in the morning that he had stopped on seeing a wrecked car lying against a trolley pole with a dead man under it. Soon afterward policemen from Tuckahoe and Mt. Vernon extricated the injured man from the wreckage of the car and hurried him to the Bronxville Hospital. It was found that he was suffering from a compound fracture of the skull and other injuries. He died without regaining consciousness.

The police found that the side of the car had struck the pole with such terrific force that the car seemed to be wrapped around the pole. The runningboard and part of the tonneau were twisted out of shape, the wheels were broken off and the steel of the car had cut deeply into the pole.

Chief of Police Van Buren of Mt. Vernon made an investigation, but could obtain no light on the manner of the accident. A theory was put forward that another car had struck the one driven by Mr. Weaver and jammed it against the trolley pole. It was apparently impossible, however, for a second car to come through such a collision and then be able to proceed on its way.

Mr. Weaver had spent the afternoon with several friends playing golf at the Siwanoy Country Club at Bronxville, of which he was a member of the Board of Managers, and had spent the evening with a party of friends at the Gramatan Inn. He started for his home in Manhattan early in the morning. He was an expert driver.

Mr. Weaver, who was unmarried, lived at the Hotel Chatham in this city. He was forty years old. He was elected Vice President of the Remington Typewriter Company more than a year ago, having been Controller of the company for a number of years previous. His father, who resides at Rome, N. Y., was notified of the accident.

KEMAL RUSHES MEN TO MARMORA COAST

Turkish Nationalists Prepare to Meet Drive by British and Sultan's Army.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 30 (Associated Press).—Mustapha Kemal, the Nationalist leader, apparently is relaxing his efforts on other fronts in order to concentrate his strength against the British and Anti-Nationalist fronts along the Sea of Marmora. The Nationalist front, to which many troops are being rushed from the direction of Angora, follows the line of Adabazar, Geve and Brusa.

The siege of Hadjin has been lifted. Bands have been called from Cilicia to assist against the Anti-Nationalists and British.

Damad Ferid Pasha, the Grand Vizier, today dispatched a steamer with four battalions of troops to Ismid (about seventy-five miles northeast of Brusa), and has named Suleiman Sherif Pasha, former Minister of War, as commander of the troops in that area.

The Turks are flaunting the idea that there is any justice in the proposed plebiscite in the Smyrna district within two years, charging that the Greeks already have driven most of the Turks away and that they will not let them return under Greek occupation.

The troops of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Nationalists, are meeting with considerable resistance from farmers between Boulon and Kastamuni, in Kastamuni Province where there is a considerable Circassian population. The farmers resent the seizure of their draft horses by the Nationalists. War-worn farmers are resisting their draft into the Nationalist army, and many of them are deserting from the Nationalists as well as from the Sultan's forces.

WILSON TO MAKE PEACE RESOLUTION A CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Determined to Join It with Treaty and League in Democratic Fighting Program.

CUMMINGS ATTACKS KNOX

Declares His Proposals Are Evidence of Republican Party's "Moral Leprosy."

SAYS THEY URGE DISHONOR

Democratic Chairman's Statement Is Believed to Have Been Inspired by President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—President Wilson is vigorously opposed to the Knox peace resolution repealing the declarations of war against Germany and the Austro-Hungarian Empire, as favorably reported by strict party vote from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to the Senate on Friday. He is as ready to join issue with the Republicans over the Knox plan in the coming national campaign as he is for the Democratic Party to make the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations the main issue.

This was indicated tonight when Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, issued a statement as to the attitude of the party in power toward the latest manoeuvres of the Republicans in the Senate who are behind the Knox resolution. The statement given out by Mr. Cummings, who has been in close touch with the White House and whose announcement is believed to have had White House inspiration, was as follows:

"The so-called Knox peace resolution, which has just been reported by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, is renewed evidence of the moral leprosy which is eating out the heart of the Republican Party. In the name of peace it proposes dishonor.

"An analysis of the resolution discloses that:

"First, it recognizes the defect in the recent House resolution, which attempted to make a separate treaty with Germany by act of Congress.

"Second, as an alternative proposition, it requests the President to commence negotiations for a separate peace with Germany.

"Third, it seeks to terminate, by a paper resolution, a state of war without protecting American rights.

"Fourth, it attempts to take advantage of the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles without becoming a party to that treaty and,

"Fifth, it requests the President to negotiate a separate peace with Austria.

"These are the outstanding features of the resolution. If any group of leaders a year ago had dared to suggest that we should abandon our allies and negotiate a separate treaty of peace, they would have found themselves isolated and discredited. Republican leaders have lost their moral sense in their mad lust for power.

"There has not been one moment since November, 1918, during which America has not suffered in honor, prestige and power as the result of the elections of that year. Since that time everything has been in confusion, and the frantic attempt of Republican leaders to find a legal method in which to do the dishonorable thing merely adds to the confusion. There is but one clear path of duty. It is likewise the path of honor and of peace and of permanent security.

"The path lies straight before us and consists simply in ratifying the treaty of peace which our companions in arms have already ratified. The more the matter is debated the more it will become apparent that there are no substitutes for the requirements of plain duty and American honor."

The Senate fight over the Knox resolution will be conducted substantially along strict party lines. The Democratic Party membership of the Senate, with the exception only of the few Democratic Senators who are opposed to the league project, will speak and vote against the Knox resolution. The Republicans generally will favor the resolution, but there are some Republicans who will not only vote against the Knox plan, but intend to contest every inch of the ground in an effort to defeat the project.

While a majority vote is necessary for the passage of the resolution, and with the Republicans in power there is a possibility that such a vote can be obtained in both branches of Congress, the President possesses the veto power and will veto the Knox resolution if Congress sends it to the White House for his approval. It would then require a two-thirds vote to pass the resolution over the Presidential veto. No one in Washington believes that such a vote can be mustered, any more than it was possible to obtain the necessary two-thirds vote for the ratification of the treaty with the Lodge reservations, so long as the President was standing firmly against such ratification.

The debate over the Knox resolution will open in the Senate next Wednesday. On that day Senator Knox will deliver a carefully prepared speech in support of the resolution. It is understood that he will try to make this speech one of the most important in his career. After Mr. Knox has spoken, his resolution will be debated from day to day until the vote is taken. The opening speech in opposition to the passage of the resolution will be delivered by Senator Porter J. McCumber of North Dakota, a Republican. Senator McCumber is opposed to the Knox resolution and will speak and vote against the adoption by the Senate. Senator McCumber is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and the vote by which the Knox resolution was favorably reported by that committee was a strict party vote only because Senator McCumber was not present when it was taken.

Australia's Wheat Failing; May Have to Import Grain

LONDON, May 2.—Owing to the bad season, there is fear that Australia may have to import wheat in 1921, says a dispatch to The London Times from Sydney, N. S. W.

The Wheat Board recently asked Great Britain to forego the balance of 1,500,000 tons owing her, but she refused. It is still hoped, says the dispatch, that Great Britain will defer requiring the shipment of this wheat until the visible supply in Australia is assured.

West Australia already has refused to contribute toward the British shipments, and other States are being urged to take the same course.

$50,000 WILL BAR JERSEY RECOUNT

If Condition Stands Fight Will Be Dropped, Says Johnson Worker.

WOOD MEN OFFER TO AID

Will Bear Half Expense of Recanvass of Primary Votes, It Is Announced.

There will be no recount of primary ballots for United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson in New Jersey if Chief Justice William S. Gummere of the State Supreme Court persists in retaining the condition of a deposit of $50,000 to guarantee the expense of the proceedings if the result is not changed, Al C. Joy, assistant Eastern manager of Senator Johnson's campaign, announced this yesterday in the absence of Manager Angus McSween, who had gone to Indianapolis to consult Senator Johnson.

Mr. Joy said he had not heard from Mr. McSween in the course of the day, but seemed to have no doubt that the idea of a recount would be abandoned unless Chief Justice Gummere could be induced to modify his $50,000 condition. There was confirmation of this in Mr. Joy's statement that Mr. McSween would proceed from Indianapolis to Kansas City to attend the Missouri State Republican Convention there on Wednesday and would not return to New York, as might have been expected if the Johnson managers contemplated recount proceedings seriously.

Mr. Joy said that a conference would be held today, at which the form of a further application to Chief Justice Gummere would be determined. The conference will be held at the Johnson headquarters in the Hotel Pennsylvania or in Newark, N. J., and among those expected to participate will be Harry Kalisch and Mulford Ballard of Newark, Frank J. Pfaff of Elizabeth and Ralph Bullowa of New York. A noticeable disposition to go slow on fraud charges was manifested by Mr. Joy, who said:

"The requirement of a deposit of $50,000 to guarantee the expenses of recount proceedings absolutely precludes us from even making a start at an investigation. We haven't the money. We intend to ask the court for permission for an inspection of the ballots in certain districts where it is reported there were irregularities.

"We are not charging fraud or robbery from these headquarters. We do believe that there should be an investigation of the stories of irregularities and errors in certain districts in certain counties. We believe that the Republican organization should be as much interested as we are in asking for a recount in these districts to prove or disprove these reports.

"The $50,000 they demand represents more money than Senator Johnson has received during his whole Senatorial career. Contributions to our campaign fund come in to us in only small amounts. We haven't anything like $50,000, and if we had we would not be justified in using it for this purpose."

Denial of the charges of fraud and an offer on the part of the Wood organization to bear half the expenses of a recount as an evidence of sincerity and a desire for a square deal was contained in a telegram sent to General Wood at Indianapolis by Captain Robert Foster of Newark, leader of the Wood organization in Essex County. Captain Foster said:

"The charges of fraud in the New Jersey primary made against the Wood organization can only be for the purpose of affecting the voters of Indiana and other States which are about to hold primaries. The insincerity of the charges is shown by the fact that the Johnson managers want a recount only in the counties where you were successful. Your friends believe in clean politics, and as an evidence of our sincerity and our desire for a square deal, without making any counterchanges against the Johnson managers, we are willing to defray half the expenses of the recount, provided it be a recount of the ballots of the whole State."

ADMITS PLEBISCITE REGIONS

Berlin, While Putting Off Elections, Makes Place for Deputies.

LONDON, May 2.—The German Government has sent the Germans of Upper Silesia, Schleswig-Holstein, Malmedy and the Sarre region an appeal saying that, although the inhabitants of these regions are subject to a plebiscite and cannot participate in the Reichstag elections on June 6, there is no doubt, when the time comes for a decision, these regions will show by a crushing majority their desire forever to remain attached to Germany, says a Brussels dispatch to The London Times.

The Government and the National Assembly, the dispatch adds, have agreed to postpone the Reichstag elections for these regions and places immediately adjacent to them until the question of their nationality is decided. Meanwhile Deputies sent to the National Assembly by these districts will be considered Deputies of the Reichstag.

ASK FOR JOHNSON VOTES IN INDIANA FROM DEMOCRATS

Broadcast Appeal for Help from League of Nations Opponents in Opposite Party.

EMBITTERS PRIMARY FIGHT

Indianapolis Star Calls it an Invitation to Democrats to Perjure Themselves.

WOOD MAKING STRONG FIGHT

Observers Place Lowden Third in Forecasting Result of Tomorrow's Primaries.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 2.—In the four-cornered fight for indorsement by the Republican voters of Indiana for the Presidential nomination the supporters of Senator Johnson of California—if indeed they are the perpetrators—have committed what may prove to be a serious error, though the very audacity of the thing may save them. Somebody has sent broadcast through the State card calling on Democrats to vote in the Republican primaries. If this becomes generally known among Republican voters it will be a boomerang of the worst kind, for partisanship runs high in Indiana. The resentment it will arouse will surely take away many Johnson votes. On the other hand, the gain by a heavy Democratic vote in the Republican primary might overbalance any Republican defection.

The appeal to Democrats is based nominally on their assumed opposition to the League of Nations. But the circular goes much further than a mere appeal. It gives explicit directions to Democrats about how to swear in their votes in case they are challenged as not members of the Republican Party. It directs them to make an affidavit, which the election officers will be bound to accept, stating that they expect to vote the Republican ticket. There is nothing to prevent them from changing their minds the minute after.

The appeal is printed on cardboard the size of a post card and is being mailed to Democrats in all parts of the State. The cards are not signed. They urge Democrats to vote for Johnson solely on the ground that he is a foe of the League of Nations. The Times correspondent is informed that a number of well-known Democrats are active in Johnson's behalf. One of the men named is the Postmaster of a large Indiana city. When this Postmaster was asked why he was working for Johnson he is said to have replied:

"The requirement of a deposit of $50,000 to guarantee the expenses of recount proceedings absolutely precludes us from even making a start at an investigation. We haven't the money. We intend to ask the court for permission for an inspection of the ballots in certain districts where it is reported there were irregularities.

"Because we want you Republicans to nominate him."

"Why?"

"Because we think we can beat him easily."

Whether the Democratic machine, of which the leader is ex-Senator Taggart, has taken any hand in this daring move is a matter of guesswork, but there is no Taggart man who would not welcome with joy an opportunity to make the Republican split worse, especially as Taggart is going to run for Senator this year.

"An Invitation to Perjury."

The effort to get Democrats to go into the Republican primary on Tuesday and vote for Johnson will be denounced editorially tomorrow morning by the Indianapolis Star as an invitation to perjure themselves in behalf of the California candidate. The Star, under the caption "Republicans, Be On Guard," will say:

"The eleventh hour appeal of Hiram W. Johnson supporters to Indiana Democrats asking them to perjure themselves in order to help to nominate him should arouse Republicans to the desperate character of the campaign that is being waged in an effort to capitalize the Californian's opposition to the League of Nations.

"Cards were mailed out on Saturday calling on Democrats to vote for Johnson at the primary tomorrow, 'Even if you voted the Democratic ticket in the past,' the Democrats are told: 'if challenged, make affidavit at the polling place that you intend to support the majority of the Republican ticket next November. This will enable you to vote for Johnson.'

"The aim evidently is to get the support of the hyphenate element among the Democrats who might be influenced to support Johnson by his appeal. 'He kept us out of the League of Nations.' The absence of contests in the Democratic primaries is counted upon to make it easy to induce members of that party to support Johnson in the hope of being able to dominate the will of the Republican voters in a Republican primary. It confirms the suspicion and contention that Johnson's vote in Michigan, New Jersey and other States has not been a measure of his Republican strength nor an indication of what might be expected for him in November, if nominated.

"It is not surprising that Johnson would hope for support from Democrats who are opposed to the League, but it scarcely was expected they would be asked to perjure themselves in order to try to carry the State primaries for him. The law says the challenged voter must make affidavit that he intends to vote for a majority of the Republican ticket next November. Does any one believe that an honest Democrat who would like to see Johnson foisted on the Republican Party intends to repudiate the President, slaughter his own candidates for Governor, for Congress, for State and county offices, and to oppose Tom Taggart for the sake of helping Johnson? Any Democrat who does not intend to do that and is urged to vote for Johnson is asked to perjure himself."

"The Republican voters of Indiana should not mistake the situation. They are confronted by an effort at having their nominee named by the opposition party while they are dividing their strength among three very admirable men and worthy candidates.

"Plainly, it is the duty of Republicans interested in seeing a Republican nominated by Republican voters to get together on the strongest man they have to defeat Johnson. That man undoubtedly is Leonard Wood. If Johnson is defeated tomorrow it will be by Wood. If Johnson wins tomorrow it will be because Republicans divide their strength and permit Democrats to name him. The issue for Republicans is clear. Do you want a Republican chosen by Republican voters and representing the Republican party, or do you want a man bearing a Republican label and backed by the disgruntled elements supporting the principles of no party?"

Senator Johnson's managers are now (after midnight Monday morning) in conference and it is believed that they are trying to find a way to answer the editorial article in the Star.

Harding Out of It.

Senator Penrose's declaration in favor of Senator Knox as a Presidential candidate has completed the wreck of the Harding campaign in Indiana. Politicians—and everybody in Indiana is a politician—are asking each other, "If the old guard is not for Harding, why should we be?" The work of The Indianapolis Star and The Indianapolis News in notifying the Harding and Lowden voters that Johnson would carry the State unless they abandoned their candidates and voted for Wood had already caused a slump in Harding's support, and the effect of Senator Penrose's manoeuvre has become manifest today.

This has an important bearing on the real fight, the fight between Wood and Johnson, for if Wood had nobody to cope with but Johnson, the General would almost certainly have a majority. What gives the Senator an excellent chance of carrying Indiana is the fact that the strength of Harding and Lowden is among voters who would otherwise support Wood. Every vote taken from Harding and Lowden is an increase in Wood's strength. It is, in fact, upon the Harding and Lowden vote that the Senator builds all his calculations on winning a plurality.

The Johnson men are preparing to raise the fraud cry again, as they did in New Jersey, if Wood should carry off the plurality here. They are already pointing out that the primary election officers are appointed by the organization, and the votes counted behind closed doors. They were expressing a good deal of indignation today over the New Jersey decision that they must put up $50,000 for the recount they demand. They say they have not got $50,000 to spend in that way. Senator Johnson himself said:

"It reminds me of the story about the man who accosted a negro on the street and asked him if he could change a twenty-dollar bill. 'No, sah,' said the negro, 'but I thanks yo' fo' de compliment!'"

Wood Men Count on Farmers.

The Wood men are decidedly uneasy over the prospect. It was cloudy today and that sent up their hopes for a full vote of the farmers on Tuesday, but it did not rain. They are banking heavily on the farmer vote, which is not expected to show much favor to Johnson, although he is unquestionably strong in some of the agricultural regions.

The Johnson men pretend that the machine is for Wood, but this is not true, the organization as a whole taking no side as between Wood, Harding and Lowden, so far as the primaries are concerned. The State convention, which will select the delegates, is a different matter, but even there the machine is advocating an uninstructed delegation which will split its vote. Johnson is not likely to get any, and if he does it will not be more than four out of the thirty.

The Senator, though confident of getting a plurality, is not at all pleased with this outlook, and is preparing to put up the bitterest kind of a fight against it. Though the law declares that a mere plurality has no effect and does not express the choice of the State, and thatsh in that case the State Convention is legally entitled to disregard the vote altogether in naming the delegates, the Johnson men are insisting that the law be nullified. They put it on the ground that a plurality for Johnson, which they expect, is "morally" binding, if not legally. What is more, they are showing some signs of being able to get away with it.

The organization is disturbed, and some of its members frankly say that if Johnson gets a plurality and makes a fight for the delegation they will not be able to stand out against him. If it were anybody but Johnson they would not feel uneasy, but they are aware that Johnson is a wildcat in a fight and has an astonishing way of keeping the other man busy with both hands. They fear that the kind of fight he is capable of putting up might damage the machine beyond repair.

The Lowden men are not much cast down by the discovery they have belatedly made that their candidate cannot run better than third in the primary. The intense bitterness of the fight between Wood and Johnson has reached such a pitch that they cannot compromise with each other in the event of a deadlock, and if the deadlock persists the Lowden men cannot see any compromise candidate but their man. That is why the Governor has made such an inoffensive campaign here. He closed it last night without having made a single enemy. Wood and Johnson will close their campaigns tomorrow night, each having a host of enemies. It is on this the Lowden men build their hopes of having the convention turn to Lowden. It is not so certain, however, so far as Indiana is concerned, that Wood and Johnson have killed each other off.

MAKING FINAL APPEALS.

Wood Pleased with Outlook as Candidates Close Indiana Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 2.—Indianapolis was host today to three Republican candidates for the Presidency, General Wood and Senators Harding and Johnson. They are guests at the same hotel, but up to a late hour this afternoon they had not been in personal contact. Local supporters of the candidates have been besieging the headquarters of their respective chiefs all day, nine out of ten of them with an optimistic message as to the outcome of Tuesday's primary.

Tomorrow the candidates will leave Indianapolis for a final last minute plea to the voters of the Hoosier State. General Wood will spend the morning and afternoon in the Indianapolis district and will end his campaign at Anderson tomorrow night. Senators Johnson and Harding will do their last day's electioneering in the southern tier of counties.

General Wood gave an interview today, in which he said he was greatly pleased with his reception everywhere in Indiana.

"I have been in Indiana six days," said the General, "and have had most cordial and gratifying receptions everywhere, those at the meetings representing men and women from every walk of life.

"Everywhere I have found a very general interest in the great national issues of the hour—a sound national administration, rigid economy in every department, a budget system, an army only large enough for the peace needs of the nation, in other words, an army of about 200,000 men, and in no case exceeding 225,000; a good and efficient navy, always ready; the building up of American agriculture and turning the tide of population, which is now drifting from the farm to the city, back again to the farm. This is vitally important, as agriculture is the principal source of our original wealth, and the agriculture people are the great stable element of this nation.

"There is a general feeling among the farmers that they are not getting enough of the consumers' dollar, and I think they are justified in that feeling.

"There is a very keen interest manifested in controlling profiteering in the necessities of life, especially in food, which has now reached a point indicating that the laws and regulations are not in any way effectively controlling it.

"Personally, I believe we must preach Americanism morning, noon and night, from pulpit, desk, school room, street corner, everywhere. Americanism, as I understand it, means a government under which there is a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, a government under which there is industrial justice, which means a square deal to both labor and capital; bringing the human element into the relations between those who work and those who direct work; applying the principle of the Golden Rule in the settlement of any issues which arise between them; a closer relation between the prosperity of an industry and the prosperity of those who work for that industry; recognition of the fact that labor is neither a chattel nor a commodity, but is intensely human, is a part of us, and that today labor is labor, tomorrow it may be capital, but always it is a human element and is not to be trafficked in."

General Wood will go to New York on Tuesday for a series of conferences with his Eastern managers.

WANT HITCHCOCK TO RUN CAMPAIGN

Efforts to have General Leonard Wood entrust the political management of his campaign for the Republican nomination for President to Frank H. Hitchcock have been renewed as a result of the announcement by Senator Boies Penrose of the candidacy of his colleague, Senator Philander C. Knox, it was learned yesterday.

There was said to be no desire on the part of those favoring the selection of Mr. Hitchcock as the Wood political pilot to supersede Colonel William Cooper Procter, new Chairman of the Leonard Wood Campaign Committee and the Leonard Wood League, but they were reported to be insistent in urging upon General Wood the necessity of intrusting the political strategy of his campaign from now until the nomination is made to "a man having a wide, practical knowledge of politics."

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Southern manager of the Wood campaign, came here yesterday for a conference with Thomas W. Miller, assistant Eastern campaign manager, to discuss the situation in the Eastern States which have not elected delegates yet. Details of their discussion were not made public.

Friends of Mr. Hitchcock denied yesterday that he aspired, in the event of General Wood's nomination, to become National Chairman, supplanting Will H. Hays, and said that the report had been circulated merely for the purpose of injuring Mr. Hitchcock. Mr. Hitchcock, it was said, has no such ambition and would be pleased to see Mr. Hays continue as National Chairman if General Wood should be the nominee.

The Wood leaders here make no secret of their belief that Senator Knox's candidacy is aimed directly at General Wood. It has been generally understood that a friendly relation existed between the Wood managers and Governor William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania, who seemed to be assured of a complimentary vote from that State until Senator Penrose brought forward Senator Knox.

LIVELY PRIMARY WEEK IS AHEAD

Republicans of Seven States and Democrats of Four to Pick Delegates.

ALL EYES ON CALIFORNIA

"Result Will Be Close," Say Hoover Men—"No Doubt Johnson Will Win," Aid Predicts.

Republicans of seven States and Democrats of four will hold primaries or State conventions this week. There will be ninety-eight delegates to the Republican National Convention elected and fifty-two delegates to the Democratic National Convention. In addition Indiana, which sends thirty delegates to each national convention, will hold a preferential primary, preparatory to the Republican and Democratic State Conventions on May 12 and May 18, respectively, at which delegates will be elected, and Maryland, with sixteen votes, will also have a preferential primary to elect delegates to State conventions.

The Maryland primaries will be held today, with General Leonard Wood and Senator Hiram W. Johnson as the Republican candidates for the preferential vote. The Johnson managers, according to reports received here, do not appear especially sanguine, and General Wood is expected to carry the State. Utah Republicans will hold a convention at Ogden today at which eight delegates—four district delegates and four at large—will be chosen. General Wood, Senator Johnson and Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois have each conducted a campaign in this State, but it is possible that an uninstructed delegation may be chosen.

The important primary contests of the week will take place tomorrow, in California, where Senator Johnson and Herbert Hoover, both Californians, are opponents in what may turn out to be an elimination contest, and in Indiana, where Gen. Wood, Senator Johnson, Governor Lowden and Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio are the contestants for the preferential vote, which to be binding must be obtained by a majority.

Contests in West and South.

The Republican State conventions in Missouri, with thirty-six delegates, and in Mississippi, with twelve delegates, will take place on Wednesday. The Republican State convention in Colorado, with twelve delegates, will be held at Pueblo on Thursday. Many of the Congressional District delegates in these States already have been elected, but delegates at large at least will be elected at each convention.

Kentucky will elect twenty-six delegates to the Democratic National Convention at a State convention in Louisville tomorrow. The principal contest will be between delegates wishing to go uninstructed and those pledged to Governor James W. Cox of Ohio.

The California primary tomorrow is regarded as of the greatest political importance, in that the defeat of Senator Johnson would bring about his elimination as a serious factor in the Republican contest, in spite of successes elsewhere, and the defeat of Mr. Hoover, although not necessarily eliminating him absolutely, would greatly reduce his chance for the nomination. A statement on the California situation issued by the Hoover National Republican Club yesterday said:

"It is quite contrary to the policy of this organization to make any prediction as to the outcome of the primaries in California. Mr. Hoover was entered in these primaries without being consulted, and, while we have every reason to anticipate a pleasing result, the Hoover candidacy is by no means dependent upon what happens on Tuesday.

Finds Women For Hoover.

"The campaign for the election of Hoover delegates in California has been under direction of Ralph P. Merritt, of San Francisco. Our recent reports from Mr. Merritt are wholly satisfactory. We know from them that the sentiment for Mr. Hoover's nomination is widespread and that it has been crystallized. We know further that the independent voters and the vast number of women voters favor the nomination of Mr. Hoover.

"It must not be forgotten that the election is a primary and not a general election. In a primary election, those in control of the party machinery have a tremendous advantage over any independent candidate.

"Actually, two political organizations have been opposing the election of Hoover delegates in California. The organization at present managing Republican affairs is effective and resourceful and it is working with the remnants of the older organization which it superseded.

"In 1916 the Republican candidate for Senator in California carried the State by a majority of approximately 300,000. The result on Tuesday should indicate clearly whether this strength and popularity have been retained and whether or not the people of California are wholly in accord with the policy of rejecting the League of Nations idea entirely. In this particular respect the California primaries are of the utmost importance.

"We have every reason to believe that the result will be close. Further than that we venture no prophecy."

Johnson Workers Confident.

Al C. Joy of San Francisco, assistant Eastern campaign manager for Senator Johnson, said that according to his information, there was no doubt that Senator Johnson would carry the State.

"Senator Johnson could not smash a big political machine, as he did in California, without making a lot of enemies who are lined up for Mr. Hoover," he said. "They have gathered a lot of sentimentalists and are making a particular appeal to the women.

"It must be admitted that the Hoover strength in Southern California is great, but we don't expect the vote to split worse for us than 'fifty-fifty.' Johnson will carry the northern part of California overwhelmingly. The betting in California is two to one on Johnson."

Mr. Joy said he had no better information on Indiana, where preferential primaries will be held tomorrow, than that contained in a dispatch published in yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES, which reported the race to be between General Wood and Senator Johnson, with the latter having developed strength in the last week.

"Our reports show a tremendous sentiment for Senator Johnson, not only in the industrial cities but in the rural sections," said Mr. Joy. "We don't expect a majority, which a candidate must obtain to have the preferential primary bidding, but we do expect a plurality and the prestige of carrying the State which will go with it."

Thomas W. Miller, Assistant Eastern Manager of the Wood Campaign Committee, said he expected General Wood to be first in Indiana, with Senator Johnson second. Information receeived at Wood headquarters, Mr. Miller said, indicated that Governor Lowden would be third and Senator Harding fourth. The reports received at Wood headquarters are that the result of the primary will insure to General Wood the selection of a greater number of friendly delegates by the State convention than for any other candidate.

ADMINISTRATION WINS TEXAS

Carries at Least 1,200 of 1,400 Votes in State Convention.

DALLAS, Tex., May 2.—Latest returns tonight from Saturday's Democratic precinct conventions throughout Texas showed definitely that candidates favoring the present National Administration had won 1,200 of the 1,400 votes in the State convention to be held May 25.

The anti-Administration forces, headed by former Senator Joseph W. Bailey, according to available returns, had obtained forty-nine of the State convention votes. One hundred and fifty-one votes still were unaccounted for in the unofficial returns.

Complete returns will not be available, it was said, until the county conventions meet Tuesday to select the State convention delegates in accordance with instructions given by yesterday's precinct meetings.

HOOKER FORMALLY OUT FOR GOVERNOR

Seeks Republican Nomination on Platform of Increased Production.

HE WOULD REPRESS "REDS"

Urges Development of State's Resources and More Economical Administration.

Elon H. Hooker, President of the Hooker Electrochemical Company, of Niagara Falls, and former Treasurer of the Progressive National Committee, made a formal announcement yesterday of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. It had been known for several weeks Hooker contemplated seeking nation and that efforts had been to obtain promises of support George W. Aldridge, of Rochester, and other up-State party leaders. Temporary headquarters for Mr. Hooker, who is a resident of New York City have been established at his office, 34 Madison Avenue.

In a statement accompanying his announcement, Mr. Hooker asked for the support of the Republican voters of the State that he might bring his business training to bear on reducing the cost of living and the cost of government. He stated that "the people of the State are entitled to a business-like conduct of their affairs and should be satisfied with no less," and urged that the barge canal be brought to its full development by the construction of barges and the installation of freight handling machinery and stated that "our ports, waterpowers and forests should be made to serve the people."

Mr. Hooker stated that while inflation of the currency is a world-wide contributing cause to the cost of living, much could be done through agencies of the State, and enumerated the following results which he asserted could be obtained through proper management of the State's affairs and which constitute the important planks of his platform:

"Increased production, both in quality and quantity, on the farm and in the shop.

"Elimination of dangerous radicalism by handling overt acts relentlessly under criminal law and meeting agitation with education.

"Reduction in the cost of government by cutting out waste without loss of efficiency.

"Development of the State's resources to produce additional wealth over which to spread taxes."

Mr. Hooker, who is fifty years old, was born in Rochester. He is a graduate of the University of Rochester and of Cornell University and was Deputy Superintendent of Public Works under Theodore Roosevelt as Governor.

William A. Orr, who was secretary to Governor Charles S. Whitman, has been managing his preliminary campaign.

Local Republican leaders were reluctant to comment upon Mr. Hooker's candidacy, but it was said that he had received no pledge from the local organization. It was learned that Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo and State Controller Eugene M. Travis, the other avowed candidates, had also had great difficulty in getting the stronger party leaders of the State to pledge themselves. It was said that no definite lineup on Republican Gubernatorial candidates could be expected until after or during the Republican National Convention.

SHOT FOR CZAR'S MURDER.

WARSAW, May 2.—It is semi-officially announced that a man named Posednicke, who is declared to have been one of the group which assassinated former Emperor Nicholas, was taken from jail and handed over to the Bolsheviki, who took him to the Red front. There he was shot for high treason.

A dispatch from Copenhagen last December said the Soviet authorities in Russia had punished by death the individual held immediately responsible for the execution of Nicholas and his family at Yekaterinburg in June, 1918. The name of the man put to death was given as Jachentoff, who was said to be a member of the Yekaterinburg Soviet.

FIGHT GROWS HOT IN JOHNSON'S HOME

Primary Campaign One of the Most Bitter in History of California.

CLAIM STATE FOR SENATOR

Old Enemies Now in His Machine Say He Will Win by 50,000.

BITTER ATTACKS ON HOOVER

Latter's Supporters Count on Women Voters to Overcome Johnson's Admitted Strength.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 2.—The primary campaign in California reached its climax today with the backers of Senator Hiram Johnson confidently predicting they will carry the State by a majority of not less than 50,000, and the Hoover supporters hoping that a heavy vote in the eight southern counties and a revolt in the northern part of independent voters against the alliance between National Committeeman W. H. Crocker, M. H. De Young, Senator Johnson and the Hearst interests will result in a political upheaval and "get Hoover across."

The campaign is one of the most bitter in the political history of California, and political campaigns to California since Johnson leaped into power in 1910 have been notorious for their bitterness. Charges and countercharges have been tossed around here in the last few years couched in phrases which make the utterances of Eastern politicians seem mild by comparison.

The bitterness and the vitrolic utterances remain today, but the picture has changed and the people are wondering what to make of it. Four years ago Hiram Johnson, as a candidate for Senator, was assailing De Young and Crocker, and De Young was meeting attack with attack. Today both De Young and Crocker are on the Johnson slate of delegates, pledged to support Johnson as the man best fitted for the Presidency of the United States, and they are working for his success.

Two quotations serve to illustrate this situation. Four years ago De Young's San Francisco Chronicle said:

"There was never a ranker political humbug than Hiram Johnson. Hateful in spirit, coarse in his nature, vile in his language, tricky in his politics, he has for years devoted himself, through subservient Legislatures, to such manipulation of our election laws as might enable him with the aid of the machine he has created to perpetuate the fraud he is now attempting."

Of De Young and Crocker, Senator Johnson then said:

"If the time ever comes when William H. Crocker and Mike De Young support me, then I shall know I am wrong."

Another Name Attracts Attention.

There is another man on the Johnson list of delegates whose name as a Johnson supporter attracts attention because of the Senator's position in regard to the railroads of California some years ago. He is ex-Senator Frank P. Flint of Pasadena and Los Angeles, one of the chief counsel for the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Political observers here say that if the Johnson machine as now constructed, with De Young, Crocker, Flint and others aboard, does not knife the Senator he has a machine which compares well with any built up in any State in any day. And these observers declare indications are that the machine will help him get votes in the primaries next Tuesday.

Hoover's backers are counting heavily on their belief that many thousands of independent voters will resent the new Johnson-De Young-Crocker combination which has been formed, with Hearst, who has a representative in John Francis Neylan on the Johnson slate of delegates, assisting it. The Hoover men are mawing the most of the situation. They are trying to make Californians feel that an issue greater than anything local to California is found in the fight they are making to get the State's delegation for Hoover, and are concentrating on an eleventh hour effort to tell Californians it is their duty to the nation to defeat Johnson in his home State.

The Johnson forces have countered by the assertion made by Meyer Lissner, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Johnson Los Angeles organization, that Hoover has been put forward not because his supporters believe he can or will be nominated, but to kill off Johnson.

To Put Johnson "Out of the Way."

"The County of Los Angeles," says Lissner, "has become the centre of the national fight to put Hiram Johnson out of the way. Supporting Hoover, besides the conscientious Hoover enthusiasts and the propagandists of the League of Nations, is the Food Administration machine, the inveterate Johnson haters and irreconcilable reactionaries, all in a mesalliance with the supporters of other Presidential candidates who have combined in California on Hoover, just as they did in New Jersey on Wood, in the attempt to defeat Johnson.

"The fight against Johnson in California, which is particularly centred here, amounts to nothing less than a political conspiracy in which, I assert, Mr. Hoover is an active participant. He must realize now, if he did not before the disillusionment of the Presidential primary elections in other States, that he has no show whatever in the Republican Convention; and yet he is permitting, encouraging and abetting the expenditure of the greatest slush fund ever gathered in a political campaign in Southern California."

In a page advertisement in The Los Angeles Examiner today the Johnson committee presents Hoover to the people as the candidate of The Los Angeles Times, which they characterize as "the most notorious and shameless servitor of corporate intrigues, always the enemy of common rights, invariably the champion of candidates and policies inimical to the public welfare, in city, county, State and nation."

Lissner and his followers also are circulating the assertion that Hoover is a "Wilson Californian," and threw his support to the President's appeal for a Democratic Congress in 1918.

Women Wanting for Hoover.

So far as the Hoover supporters are concerned, they are not going about their task in the spirit of participation in a crooked political deal. This is true not only of the men voters, but of the women. Among the latter is Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, who was on the Roosevelt-Johnson delegation to the Republican National Convention in 1912, and is now the national representative of the Republican women in the West.

The Hoover women are going about it with a do-and-die spirit which recognizes no other outcome as acceptable than the nomination of Hoover. They intend to work for this even if Hoover should be defeated by Johnson in the primaries on Tuesday. The women of Southern California are counting on getting out a big vote, and in the earnestness of their efforts lies much of the Hoover hope of victory.

Ralph Arnold, a prominent figure in the Hoover campaign, is authority for the statement that the fight for Hoover's nomination will continue regardless of the result here.

The League of Nations issue is more of a factor among the women than among the men. They like Hoover's attitude better than the irreconcilable stand taken by Johnson—a stand, however, which is getting him support among the voters of alien extraction.

Much interest was taken here today in a published statement by Johnson which touched on the League issue, and some saw in it a bid by Johnson for votes of women and other supporters of some kind of a league or understanding as to international affairs.

See Concession by Johnson.

"I cannot subscribe to the present covenant of the League of Nations as brought back from Paris," the Senator said in his statement. "I yield to no man in a desire to promote peace and prevent war. I would welcome a forum for the strengthening of arbitration treaties, an amplification of The Hague tribunal, where international questions might be debated and the public opinion of the world formed."

This is accepted here as somewhat of a concession by Johnson, as compared with utterances he has made about the League.

On the other hand, Johnson supporters are spreading widely among voters of alien extraction copies of a speech made in the United States Senate on Jan. 24, 1920, by Senator Reed of Missouri headed, "Herbert C. Hoover and the League of Nations." It contains one of Senator Reed's bitter assaults on Mr Hoover and on the League of Nations.

The Hoover headquarters announces reports that there is a big growth of independent sentiment for Hoover in the counties to the north, and that Johnson supporters will meet with a great surprise on Tuesday. Apparently, it will take some such overturn to get the north counties away from Johnson, or keep his majority there down to a point where there would be substantial hope of defeating him in the entire State.

Late registration figures show that of more than 1,100,000 voters registered in the State for the primaries, 603,707 have registered as Republicans. While it will be possible for the voters to cast their ballots as they see fit on Tuesday, this gives some idea of how the voting will go as between the Republican and Democratic tickets. It is estimated that not more than 60 per cent. of the voters registered will go to the polls.

KENTUCKY VICTORY CHEERS COX'S FRIENDS

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 2.—At the national headquarters of Governor James M. Cox the easy victory won by the Ohio executive in the Democratic county conventions in Kentucky yesterday is regarded as the beginning of a big movement in his behalf. Reports received here were that he had carried eight out of eleven Congressional districts and had uninstructed delegates from one of the other districts. The Kentucky manager, former Senator Johnson N. Camden, reported that Cox would have 1,900 out of 2,000 delegates to the State Convention.

The victory was prized here because adherents of William G. McAdoo favored an uninstructed delegation and were supported by Federal officials.

The Ohio Governor carried the First District, in which he was expected to have serious opposition. An argument made by him in the tobacco districts is held to have had great weight. He told the tobacco growers that tobacco had gone from 25 and 30 cents a pound to less than half of this figure because of the disordered condition of the Italian exchange, which was in part due to the failure of the United States Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty. Kentucky Black Burley tobacco goes largely to Italy.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—One hundred and six out of 120 counties give Governor Cox 1,425 delegates to the State Convention, as against 1,167 uninstructed, some of whom favor Cox. Counties not reporting have a total of 178, so that Cox has a safe majority, although a bitter fight is expected at the State Convention next Tuesday.

FIGHT IOWA WAGE CUT.

Council Bluffs Carpenters Order a Strike in Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, May 2.—Council Bluffs faces a strike in the building trades tomorrow as the result of the first effort in the West to make a cut in wages. The cut will affect carpenters only. Carpenters have been receiving $1.12½ an hour.

Yesterday at noon the building contractors notified the carpenters that beginning Monday they would receive only $1 an hour. The carpenters replied by announcing a strike.

Every union man in the district will back up the carpenters on the principle that if a cut is accepted it may spread to other lines.

SEEKS TO DISPLACE LODGE AS 'KEYNOTER'

Old Guard Now Opposes His Selection as Chairman of Chicago Convention.

GOVERNOR MORROW BACKED

His Views on the Treaty Held to be More in Accord with Republican Sentiment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Developments in Republican national politics are indicating more clearly to keen observers that the Old Guard leaders intend to exert themselves to bring forward opposition to the League of Nations as one of the chief issues in the Presidential campaign. That is said to have been one of the underlying motives, but not the chief one, which Senator Penrose had in mind in putting Senator Knox into the limelight.

The conservative leaders are reported to have drawn the conclusion from the primary elections that the country is against alliance with foreign countries through a League of Nations. They think that they have interpreted sentiment well enough now to come forward more boldly in opposition to the League, and are willing to accept the verdict of the primaries as evidence that the electorate is satisfied with the defeat of the treaty.

It was thought some weeks ago that there would be no opposition on the part of the Old Guard to Senator Lodge as temporary and permanent Chairman of the convention; but in the last few days even friends of Senator Lodge are expressing themselves as doubtful of the wisdom of having him make the keynote speech. They say that his position does not agree with Republican sentiment and that a man who has maintained silence on the subject of the league or one who has been outspoken against it may be selected.

Morrow Suggested as Chairman.

When talk of refusing Senator Lodge the honor became known the "bitter-enders" suggested that it be given to Senator Borah, while ex-Senator Beveridge was brought forward as a candidate for Chairman by another element in the progressive wing. The Old Guard, which, it is believed, can control the organization of the convention, while somewhat willing to listen to the opponents of Senator Lodge, has refused to accept either Borah or Beveridge.

As a compromise Governor Morrow of Kentucky has been suggested. His friends say that his position on the treaty is satisfactory, and also that he would add strength politically to the party in that he is a Republican Governor of a Southern State which the Republicans have been striving for years to win in a national election.

Will H. Hays, who is now touring the country with the idea of appraising sentiment improving his chances of the Chairmanship in the coming campaign, has heard many National Committeemen speak favorably of the plan set on foot by a certain group of old guard members to elect Governor Morrow Chairman of the convention.

While the choice of a Chairman has importance as giving an indication as to the keynote the party will set for itself before the platform is written, yet interest in it is eclipsed by the unexpected announcement of Senator Penrose in favor of Senator Knox as a Presidential candidate. Mr. Penrose has been opposed to both Wood and Johnson and hoped to see Harding develop sufficiently to permit the manipulators at Chicago to nominate him. He has now abandoned Harding, and, while he thinks that Lowden has not yet been eliminated, he is apparently losing faith in the Governor's chances.

Penrose Feared Loss of Leadership.

More definite information as to the situation in Pennsylvania, which impelled Senator Penrose to suggest Senator Knox as a candidate, is now available. It indicates that Mr. Penrose was animated not only by a desire to halt the progress of General Wood in the primaries in Pennsylvania, but also to protect his own leadership.

It cannot be overlooked by one familiar with conditions in Republican politics in Pennsylvania that Governor Sproul and certain Republicans there have been putting themselves forward during the illness and absence of Senator Penrose from the State, with the idea of directing affairs in the event that Mr. Penrose could not attend to things as vigorously as before. In the interest of General Wood certain old-time rivals of Mr. Penrose were dealing with Governor Sproul and ignored the National Committeeman from the State. Friends of Penrose thought they saw a combination forming which might disrupt Republican politics in the State and nullify his influence at Chicago.

It was very easy for the Wood people to get an agreement with certain Republican leaders, among whom was Governor Sproul, by which many of Pennsylvania's delegates should support General Wood on the second ballot after the complimentary vote had been accorded to the Governor. At first Senator Penrose was not averse to this plan, thinking he could control the delegation at a critical time. But in the last ten days Pennsylvania sentiment has become so pronounced for Wood and Johnson as to make such a course dangerous to the plans of Mr. Penrose.

It seemed necessary for the Senator in this situation, his close friends say, to come out for Knox as the State's favorite son. He believes that Johnson will abandon his efforts in the State, and that many of those who have been working for Wood, who is declared to be stronger in Western Pennsylvania than elsewhere in the State, will not be so zealous in the General's behalf now that a candidate from their own section of the State has been suggested. Mr. Knox is a resident of Pittsburgh and is very strong among both conservatives and progressives in that part of the State.

While Senator Penrose had his own purposes to serve in his Knox boom, yet it is only fair to say that he is now serious and will exert his influence to nominate Knox. So he informed those who visited him in Philadelphia last Saturday. In serving himself, however, Mr. Penrose may have injured whatever chances Senator Knox had as a compromise candidate. Those Senators who have espoused Johnson's cause who were willing to turn to Knox in case of Johnson's failure to get the nomination are not now so favorable to Knox because of Penrose's support.

Knox Was Not Consulted.

Senator Penrose did not consult Senator Knox, and none of the National Republican leaders was informed, in advance, of his intention of starting a Knox boom. However, Governor Sproul was told of the situation and agreed to bolster up the announcement, as he did. Some Philadelphia friends of Senator Knox believe that he will do nothing to aid Senator Penrose in holding the delegates in line. He has refused thus far to discuss his colleague's action, except to say that he knew nothing of it save what appeared in the newspapers.

Friends of General Wood in Pennsylvania, among whom are E. A. Van Valkenburg, Alexander Moore and William Flinn, according to a report from Philadelphia today, will fight the Penrose plan. It is probable that a more determined campaign will be made to pledge the delegates for Wood now that Penrose has thrown down the gauntlet. The Vares, defeated by the organization in the recent election in Philadelphia, are openly for Wood, and old followers of Roosevelt who routed Penrose in 1912 are also strongly behind Wood. The Wood forces know the political game as well as the Old Guard. Unless the Republican State Committee becomes active for Knox the conditions of 1912 may be repeated. Then Roosevelt defeated the Penrose machine in all the districts except a few in Philadelphia and Lancaster County.

Senator Penrose declares that he is seriously for Knox and that there was nothing of strategy in his announcement. It is believed here, however, that both sincerity and strategy figured in his declaration, with the latter predominating. The election of a large number of delegates favorable to Wood would diminish the influence of Penrose in the convention, and therefore, political observers say, Penrose launched the Knox boom to save himself in his own State and as a factor in Republican national politics.

COOPER FOR BENCH STIRS M'ADOO FOES

Opposition to Presidential Nomination Intensified by Judicial Choice.

LUNN BACKING FIGURES

Tammany and Up-State Organization for Edward Murphy of Troy.

Opposition to the candidacy of William G. McAdoo for the Democratic nomination for President by Tammany and part of the up-State Democratic organization has been intensified by the appointment by President Wilson of Frank Cooper of Schenectady as Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of New York, it was learned yesterday. It was stated that the President had disregarded the recommendation of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer for the appointment of Edward Murphy of Troy, choice of the up-State Democratic organization and approved by Tammany, and had named Mr. Cooper upon the indorsement of Bernard M. Baruch, one of Mr. McAdoo's principal supporters.

Further objection to the selection of Mr. Cooper from a Democratic organization viewpoint was found in that he was the candidate of George R. Lunn, former Representative in Congress and former Socialist Mayor of Schenectady, who led the fight against a prohibition amendment repeal plank adopted by the recent unofficial Democratic State Convention.

Mr. Lunn, who came out recently for Mr. McAdoo, was said to have formed an alliance with Mr. Baruch and others supporting Mr. McAdoo. It was reported that he might become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Edward Murphy is the son of the late Democratic United States Senator of the same name and a brother of Joseph Murphy, formerly one of the strongest up-State Democratic leaders, who retired from politics after a quarrel with Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Tammany will not support Mr. McAdoo unless his nomination is inevitable without the votes of the New York delegation, one of its strongest leaders said yesterday. A complimentary vote to Governor Smith or to Governor Edwards of New Jersey was said to be likely, but that Tammany sentiment was favorable to either Attorney General Palmer or Governor James M. Cox of Ohio.

APPROVE CALDER'S DEFENSE OF SENATE

SHIFTS BLAME TO WILSON

Secretary's Challenge to Make the Treaty the Issue of the Campaign Is Accepted.

New York Republicans heard with approval yesterday the defense of the United States Senate's action on the Peace Treaty and the conduct of the Republican Senators by Senator William M. Calder against the attack of Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby and his acceptance of Mr. Colby's challenge to make the Senate's action an issue of the campaign. Senator Calder's defense was made in an unscheduled speech at the dinner of the New York Press Club early yesterday morning, after Mr. Colby had made an attack upon the majority of the United States Senators, whom he charged with having been actuated by malevolence and partisanship and whom he characterized as "mean, little men, seeking to put the President in the hole."

Senator Calder, who was seated at the guests' table, but was not on the program as a speaker, had listened with close attention to Mr. Colby's speech and his declaration that the whole American people would insist upon the United States joining the League of Nations and that the President was rapidly recovering his mental vigor and that those who had opposed him would soon be on the run. He sent word to Edward Percy Howard, President of the club, who was presiding, that all the speakers seemed to be Democrats and that it might be a good idea to call upon a Republican. Mr. Howard, who explained that all the leading Republican candidates for President had been invited, but had not seen fit to come, called on Senator Calder.

Senator Calder asserted that the members of the majority of the Senate had been actuated by only their patriotic duty in consideration of the treaty under obligation imposed upon them by the Constitution. He declared that the reservations proposed had been for the purpose of American interests and said that within one-seventh of the votes necessary for ratification had been obtained at one time and that the treaty would have been ratified but for the refusal of President Wilson to release the Democratic Senators. "The failure to ratify the treaty was caused by the President's own obstinacy," he said.

Mr. Colby had stated that it was fortunate that an election was at hand so that the people might compel acceptance of the treaty and the League of Nations, and Senator Calder replied that the Republican Party was willing to accept this issue and had no doubt of the result.

"It comes with poor grace from the Secretary of State," said Senator Calder, "to criticise Senators as 'mean, little men.' The members of the Senate studied the treaty carefully and the purpose of the majority was to protect every American interest."

LEGION TO ACT ON RADICALS.

Will Vote in Proposal to Enlist Members for Emergencies.

The American Legion, at a meeting of the New York County Committee on Thursday, will act upon a proposal for listing the members of the Legion for service in emergencies, such as railroad and street car strikes, when the emergency is clearly established as inspired by radicals. The meeting will be held at the Automobile Club of America, 247 West Fifty-fourth Street, at 8 P. M.

The volunteer plan is embodied in a resolution presented by Guynemer Post. The policy of the Legion volunteers will be formulated at Thursday's meeting. Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger will explain the nature of the three Lusk bills passed at the recent legislative session.

MAN SHOT BY SENTRY DYING

Failed to Halt as Commanded by Fox Hills Hospital Guard.

Robert Morrison, a laborer, of Bay Street, Clifton, was shot in the back yesterday by a sentry at the Government hospital, Fox Hills, Staten Island, and is dying at the Staten Island Hospital.

Private Edwin Mills told the authorities that he saw a man leaving the hospital storehouse with a bundle, which looked like a typewriter. When the man started to run and failed to halt, as commanded, the guard said he fired a shot, but the man continued running.

A few hours later Morrison was found more than a mile away, badly wounded. The army authorities will investigate the shooting.

Security League to Meet.

MEXICAN REBELS TO ATTACK CAPITAL

Plan a Simultaneous Drive Against Tampico Oil Fields to Cut Off Carranza's Revenues.

LABOR PARTY AIDS REVOLT

Secretary Asserts That They Will Receive Backing of American Federation of Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Announcement was made tonight at the Washington headquarters of General Salvador Alvarado, representing General Obregon and the Sonora movement in Mexico, that the revolutionists will soon begin a military movement against Mexico City from the direction of Guerrero, Michoacan and Jalisco.

This movement, it was declared, would be accompanied by a simultaneous effort to occupy the Tampico oil fields and cut off the Carranza Government from its revenues in that direction.

With the revolutionary forces virtually in command of the northern stretch of territory from Sonora through Chihuahua toward Matamoras, and in control over the States along the west coast, and General Obregon understood to be about to take command of the projected movement against the Mexican capital, information reaching Washington through official as well as revolutionary channels leaves little doubt that the revolt against Carranza's rule is rapidly reaching the point where he will have to follow in the footsteps of Diaz and Huerta, and flee from the capital. That Carranza is preparing to flee is the information that has reached the Government in Washington through channels of a reliable character, and the general trend of the Government's military intelligence information from its agents along the border and in Mexico are to the effect that Carranza's days are numbered.

Information reached Washington that the revolt in Chihuahua is spreading. In that State, Juarez is the last garrison possessed by the Carranza forces. Torreon, the great rail centre on the border, between Durango and Coahuila, as well as Monterey, in the State of Nueva Leon, and Matamoras, in the Gulf State of Tamaulipas, across the border line from Brownsville, are expected to be the next important points in Northern Mexico to fall.

MEXICAN LABOR IN REVOLT.

Not Bolshevism, but Effort for Freedom, an Official Says.

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, May 2 (Associated Press).—Confirmation of widespread reports of an anti-Carranza labor movement throughout Mexico and a declaration that the American Federation of Labor is expected to give its support to the movement were made by Juan Rico, President of the Linotypers' Union of Mexico and Secretary of the Executive Board of the Mexican Labor Party, here tonight.

According to Senor Rico, the American Federation or Labor will vouch for the fact that the movement is not "a Bolshevist uprising," but a legitimate attempt to achieve industrial freedom in Mexico.

Rico insisted that a statement from the American federation could be expected shortly, despite reports that the organization originally aided in bringing about recognition of President Carranza.

After outlining the cause of the Madero revolution and the assassination of its chief, Senor Rico continued:

"Carranza, apt pupil of the traitors, abandoned the people when he sought to surround himself with elements virtually as corrupt as those defeated at Celaya and Trinidad.

"The old man of Coahuila formed a clique of men anxious for power and self-aggrandisement. The greedy traitor may keep his ill-gotten gains, but he need not dream that he shall longer remain an absolute despot, for the day of Czars and Kaisers is passed.

"In the meanwhile, the victorious people are marching swiftly toward Mexico City, to establish a régime of honest men who will forever preserve the country and its revolutionary ideals."

Senor Rico announced that the second Congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, sponsored by the American Federation and the Regional Congress of Mexican workers, scheduled to meet in Mexico City July 12, would convene either in Havana or Panama on that date. The change of place was made necessary by the situation existing in Mexico, Rico explained.

the startling statement presented in the left-hand column as to the high cost of "necessaries," which please read.

Prices Trend Upward, Reserve Board Reports

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Reports from Federal Reserve agents show a marked tendency of prices to resume their upward movement, the Federal Reserve Board reported tonight, but the Board noted the hopeful sign, from the consumer's viewpoint, of "anxiety concerning the overstrained situation resulting from excessively high prices and wages," which it believed forecast a slowing down in the skyrocketing of prices.

While high prices of necessaries obviously were chargeable to inefficiency and underproduction to a large degree, the board advanced the belief that the high costs of production were aggravated by the added expense of obtaining capital.

The facts authoritatively given out by the chiefs of financial operations in this great country put a new pressure upon us as merchants to do something to create a breakwater against this higher wave of costs said to be still rising to submerge the people by increasing their burdens.

This Pioneer Store

consisting of the first "Different Kind of Store," grown from a seed planted in Philadelphia almost 60 years ago, now includes what was formerly the A. T. Stewart Store in New York. Today it owns at actual selling value and has in store ready for delivery—more than twenty millions of dollars in fine, fresh merchandise, which we shall sell today and until further notice, at 20 per cent. off, or one-fifth below our lowest regular prices.

All of these sixty years the people have done well by us. Certain principles have guided us from the first, from which we have never deviated.

1. The people, finding that we dealt only in trustworthy goods, found out that they were well chosen, justly priced, and that we could be depended upon every time.
2. We never have marked up over-values on tickets to create markdowns, and we never will.
3. We made good in all our undertakings without upholstered advertising.
4. Our business has constantly increased, and has never ceased to go ahead.

At this particular moment when the highest financial authorities point out the probability of still higher prices, we believe that we have an incumbent duty to at least try to do something for our good customers to help them bear the excessive burdens of the hour, and to continue the effort initiated by our Million Dollar Sales in 1917 to break the back-bone of high prices.

Therefore, with but one reason only, that of a conscientious sense of duty,

The Founder Puts at the Disposal of the Public for a limited time, beginning today

Twenty Millions of the Best Merchandise

that has been bought for cash—not selecting a few articles here and there at lowered prices at the end of a fashion season, which is usual, but by offering

The Full Retail Stocks of both our Stores

In New York and Philadelphia

—from end to end and from top to bottom (saving, say, $50,000 or less worth of articles taken in with restrictions we cannot honorably change)—

at 20 per cent. deduction from actual prices

the deduction to be made at time of purchase

NOTE—(1) Nothing will be sold to dealers. (2) No C. O. D.'s. (3) Nothing returnable. (4) Nothing on approval.

Further, in order to influence manufacturers and speculators holding goods for higher prices who may be in want of money at this time when they find it is scarce and at high rate of interest,

we now hereby agree to expend
One Million Dollars each week in taking over any desirable merchandise and paying cash for it the day of delivery in order to continue these sales

hoping thereby with this great outlet to begin grading down prices if even a little. We pledge ourselves to give our customers every advantage possible in keeping up the sale by means of any reductions we can get from the manufacturer in expending this money.

In one sense, this all means that we are, by these privileges, taking our valued customers into co-operation with us to effect a great purpose.

In all our years we have Never had a finer or larger stock

Never been so much prospered with large sales
Never been so strongly equipped from every point of view as we are today to conduct such an operation which is wholly for the benefit of the public.

We are simply mastered by a spirit of duty to help the people who have helped us in this renewed effort to start a movement in lowering selling prices of merchandise and bring on more quickly the "better days coming" to this nation.

Please reciprocate by paying cash if practicable, by carrying parcels that are not too large nor heavy, by selecting carefully and not returning goods, and by not asking for C. O. D. delivery or goods on approval.

WANTS ANTI-SALOON MEN FINED $100,000

Cuvillier Declares Amount Due for Improper Legislative Reports.

MAKES FORMAL COMPLAINT

Lays the Matter Before Attorney General and Albany County Prosecutor.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, who led the fight in the Legislature against the Anti-Saloon League, declared to a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES last night that his investigations had disclosed that the League was indebted to the State of New York for the sum of more than $100,000 in the form of forfeiture for failure to make proper reports of the activities of the organization in behalf of prohibition in the Legislature of 1918-1919; that at least two of its agents were criminally liable under the law, and that William H. Anderson, State Superintendent, was subject to investigation if the same connection.

Mr. Cuvillier said that he would go to Albany Tuesday and on Wednesday would confer with Attorney General Newton and Assistant Attorney General Boland of Albany County, with regard to bringing the necessary action under the law against the association and the persons concerned. He remarked that, while the Legislature had adjourned, the fight on the Anti-Saloon League would be continued.

The law referred to by Mr. Cuvillier is Section 66, entitled "Services in Legislative Matters," and provides that every person participating in a violation thereof "shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment in a penitentiary or county jail for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than $1,000, or both." In case of an association or corporation the punishment is by fine of not more than $5,000.

The section continues: "And in addition to the penalties hereinbefore prescribed any corporation or association failing to file the statement of legislative expense within the time required shall forfeit to the people of the State $100 a day for each day after the expiration of the two within which such statement is required to be filed, to be recovered in an action brought by the Attorney General."

Mr. Cuvillier gave out the following letter yesterday, which he sent to the District Attorney of Albany County, a similar letter being sent to Attorney General Newton:

"Please find inclosed a certified copy of the expenses of the New York Civic League, which is a kindred organization of the Anti-Saloon League, as required by Chapter 321 of the Laws of 1906, of all expenses paid, incurred, or promised directly or indirectly of legislative expenses for 1919, including all disbursements paid, incurred, or promised to counsel or agents; as you can see, the object of the New York Civic League is to secure the passage of good legislation and the defeat of bad legislation, especially the Sabbath, temperance, &c., it shows that this league * * * spent $4,442.54, the major part of this amount being for printing, postage, clerical help and field work; in other words, their work is identical with that of the Anti-Saloon League, so far as results are to be obtained.

"William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and Mr. Davey, its attorney, * * * when they stated that no agents had filed the consents to lobby as required by Section 66 of the legislative law, when they stated that no person, firm or corporation had filed any verified statements of the expenses they spent in promoting or defeating legislation * * * must have known that the New York Civic League had filed the required statement, but Anderson has always thought that he was above the law and the Government and could do as he pleased, because, as he stated, he was backed by the religious and moral element of the State.

"I must insist that the agents of the Anti-Saloon League for purposely violating Chapter 321 of the Laws of 1906 be prosecuted criminally, as this law specifically provides that a violation is a misdemeanor, and you, as the prosecuting officer of Albany County, are required to prosecute all violations of the law within your county. If this had been only one instance, it may have been overlooked, but it has been continuous, and the records of the Secretary of State will so state. I have this day communicated with Attorney General Newton, informing him of these facts, by sending him a copy of this letter."

SIX HOLDUP MEN ROB 30.

Call Robbery "Easy Job" as They Take $3,000.

CLIFTON, N. J., May 2.—Six masked robbers held up thirty men today in a roadhouse in Highland Avenue, and escaped in an automobile with about $3,000 loot. The men knew the proprietor's name and the habits of his customers, and went directly to a rear room where thirty men were playing cards and pool. Going through the men's pockets, they taunted the men with jokes.

When the players saw the masks and pistols they obeyed all commands with alacrity. The thirty men left the tables and stood in line against the wall with the proprietor at the head of the line. Five of the gunmen took position directly in front of the "lineup" as the other started the search for money and jewelry.

To make sure that nothing of value was overlooked the leader handed his gun to one of his companions and inspected the pockets of the thirty men. He found that the first had done his work thoroughly and had left nothing of value in the pockets. Money, watches and jewelry were taken from the men, about $2,000 worth in all.

The gunmen then opened the proprietor's safe, took $1,100 in cash, Liberty bonds and other securities and, after warning the men to make no outcry or give any alarm, the holdup men hurried to the waiting automobile, the engine of which had been kept running by a seventh member of the gang.

One of the gunmen was not more than 18 years old and none of the others appeared to be more than 25. While relieving the men of their money and valuables the gunmen joked with them, and as they departed the leader remarked:

"Well, Joe, this is one of the easiest jobs we ever tackled. We couldn't make you fight."

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Shipping legislation during the present session of Congress presents a number of remarkable features, the chief of which is the non-partisan character of the efforts that are now being made for the speedy enactment of laws that will assist in the permanent upbuilding of the merchant marine.

Unlike previous years there are no divisions on issues along party lines. More than a dozen bills on shipping have been recommended unanimously by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries and have been passed by the House without a vote, according to parties. The same situation prevails ... Senate. Measures under dis...

Pulling Together for a Permanent Merchant Marine

FOR the first time since the Civil War we have a real merchant marine. This fleet of American-owned ships operated under the American flag cost us $3,000,000,000.

Since 1917 we have spent as much money building ships as was represented by the value of all the ships in the world before the war.

Are we going to keep this great fleet?

From every quarter the answer to this question is YES. But how?

1. Congress is now formulating constructive measures designed to keep the American flag upon the seas.
2. It is evident that these measures should take the form of law BEFORE Government vessels are sold to private owners, since it is apparent that ships sold in advance of pending Congressional action will be sold at a price too low if a strong shipping policy is resolved upon; and too high if America is to remain in a position of weakness on the seas.
3. Congress in 1915 passed the Seaman's Act to raise the standard of American labor at sea. This act, which has made seafaring an attractive avocation for Americans, has operated to equalize the cost of operation as between American and foreign vessels. The Seaman's Law, therefore, should remain in force in substantially its present form. Constructive legislation will do for the American ship what this Act has done for the American Seaman.

The Committee of American Shipbuilders in a series of advertisements will place before the public their views of the more important phases of the situation.

In this way the Committee hopes to assist in bringing about a right solution of questions vital to the future prosperity of shipbuilding, but equally vital to the safety and prosperity of the nation.

CAR STRIKES TIE UP TWO MORE CITIES

Trolley Men Quit in Syracuse and Utica Despite Pleas of Leaders.

MAHON ADVISES RETURN

Labor Chief Hastens to Rochester, Where Men Vote to Go Back.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 2.—Trolley service in Syracuse was at a standstill today following the walkout of more than 700 employes of the Syracuse lines of the New York State Railways, to force a large increase in wages than 10 cents an hour, already offered.

Men who have long been in the employ of the company fought the strike proposition and argued for standing by their agreement with the company with its clause providing for arbitration. Younger employes insisted on use of the strike weapon to enforce their demands and their views finally prevailed.

The absence of trolley service materially reduced attendance at churches and theatres during the day.

William D. Mahon, President of the strikers' organization, is expected in Syracuse tomorrow.

B. J. Tillon, general manager of the Syracuse lines, said tonight that if Mr. Mahon could induce the men to go back "in accordance with their contract while their demands are being considered in a regular way, we can resume the operation of cars. If not, the cars will stay in the barns."

"The men will not go back to work until they get the living wage and the fair working day for which they asked," said Owen J. Lynch, President of the Syracuse Division of the Amalgamated.

UTICA, N. Y., May 2.—The employes of the New York State Railways voted to strike at the end of a two hours' session, early this morning, after the President and Business Agent of the local divisions of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes had importuned the men to remain true to the arbitration clause of their contract. In response to a call, shouted from the floor, for every man "who wants a vacation" to stand, the entire gathering rose to its feet.

The lack of trolley service had its effect on many of the Sunday activities. The attendance at the churches and theatres was noticeably smaller.

In a statement tonight, Patrick T. Noon, Business Agent of the Utica Division, who opposed the strike action, declared the men are "strong and unanimous for the eight-hour day and more wages." They must not be classed as outlaws, he asserted.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 2.—A majority of the 1,400 employes of the New York State Railways in this city who walked out here on Saturday morning at a meeting this afternoon voted to return to work tomorrow morning. Because a minority stood out for a continuation of the walkout, however, David Archibald, President of Division 282, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, adjourned the meeting to 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when final action will be taken.

It is believed that the influence of International President William D. Mahon, who will arrive from Detroit soon after midnight tonight, will be exerted to send the men back to work and that cars will be running tomorrow evening. President Mahon has sent ahead of him telegraphic orders for the employes to abide by the arbitration clause in their constitution and by-laws.

The vote at this afternoon's meeting was taken at the instance of President Archibald and International Vice President James Largay of Utica.

At a conference this morning with James F. Hamilton, President of the New York State Railways, the men were told that he would "leave the cars in the barns rather than be a party to the violation of the sacred principle of arbitration."

BUFFALO STRIKERS RETURN.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 2.—Resumption of normal freight conditions in the Buffalo railroad yards is looked for by railroad officials within the next forty-eight hours. About two hundred of the striking railroad switchmen returned to work in the yards this morning.

The New York Central Railroad reported normal freight movements and the six other affected roads reported approximately 50 per cent. normal conditions. The men returning to work on the railroads do so as new employes.

Continuous Service Since 1841

THE Sheffield Farms Co. represents the longest line of uninterrupted milk service in America. Interesting, isn't it? The T. W. Decker Co., one of the component factors of this organization, began the delivery of fresh milk in 1841.

Sheffield Certified Milk is the Standard

Every day since that time, seventy-nine years, the wheels have been going steadily. Seventy-nine years of progress in size, ideals and usefulness. Few industries in any line can boast of such a record.

Seventy-nine years is a long time, yet the years have been such busy ones, so filled with interesting problems, that they seem to have passed quickly. And what is more important, we feel that we can render a satisfactory account of our stewardship.

Why are People So Indifferent about Sleep

TO watch some of your friends, you might think sleep was the most unimportant thing in the world.

Yet every man could earn more, would enjoy his work and play more, if he would make sure of a good sound sleep every night—all his nerves and muscles relaxed, and storing up new energy for the day.

And if he wakes up tired day after day he'd better look to his bed—the wooden bed that squeaks; the metal bed that rattles; the old-fashioned spring that sags and sways.

You'll never get the right kind of sleep except in a sturdy, noiseless bed, with flat resilient spring—that invites you to relax and go soundly to sleep.

Just as the truly sleep-inducing Spring is a Simmons Spring—a fine resilient spring that invites the body to relax.

Years ago Simmons Company established the principle of Beds and Springs built for sleep.

It is today the largest maker of fine Metal Beds and Springs in the world.

It is a specialist in Twin Beds—a pioneer in that fine modern principle of a separate bed for each sleeper.

With the addition of Mattresses to their well-known Metal Beds and Springs, the Simmons line is the most popular complete sleeping equipment in America today—built for sleep.

Sold in leading stores all over the country, at prices little if any higher than for ordinary merchandise.

And when you are selecting your Simmons Beds with an eye to their appearance in the room, you will see that Simmons has for the first time established beautiful and authoritative design in Metal Beds.

Sleep is a big subject! Write us for the brochure, "What Leading Medical Journals and Health Magazines Say about Separate Beds and Sound Sleep." Free of charge.

"I considered myself lucky because I know of men trained at the University who have become leaders in accounting, industrial management, finance—specialists in medicine, authorities in engineering and law.

"I considered myself lucky because I know fellows who were eligible to take the work, anxious to study and willing to give their nights for four years to do so—turned away because there was no more room.

INVITED BY DR. MANNING

Rector of Parish on Episcopal Committee to Report on Methods of J. M. Hickson.

James Moore Hickson, a layman of the Church of England, will conduct a second healing mission this week in Trinity Episcopal Chapel in Twenty-fifth Street, west of Broadway. Admission is to be by ticket only, according to the Rev. J. Wilson Sutton, vicar of the chapel.

The mission is under the auspices of Trinity Church but is held at the chapel because of the more convenient location. A closing service for Mr. Hickson will be held next Sunday afternoon in old Trinity at 3:30 o'clock, and he will end his mission here on Friday. His mission was to have continued a month, but he found this impossible. Mr. Hickson will conduct a mission in Brooklyn and also will go to Boston.

Telling of cures, Mr. Hickson said his method was simply the laying on of hands, but had nothing to do with Christian Science or New Thought. He said he used the methods of the disciples.

Mr. Hickson has held healing missions in several cities since his visit here a year ago, when he received hundreds of invalids in Trinity Chapel. So great an impression did his work make among clergymen that, at the last General Convention of the Episcopal Church in Detroit, a commission was appointed to study his methods and to report back at the next triennial convention.

One of the members of this Episcopal committee is the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, who brought Mr. Hickson to the city a year ago, and induced him to return this week.

Mr. Hickson had planned last year to take a trip around the world, conducting healing missions, but stayed in this country because of the interest shown in his work here.

SPEAKER ASSAILS DE VALERA

Police Guard Meeting of Sons and Daughters of Washington.

With one-tenth of the audience composed of detectives and twenty-four uniformed patrolmen at the door, the Sons and Daughters of Washington, an anti-Catholic organization, met yesterday afternoon in a hall at 22 West Sixty-third Street. The principal speaker was Jay W. Forrest, an Albany lawyer, who is Supreme Grand Knight of the association.

Forest referred to Eamon de Valera, President of the "Irish Republic," as a fugitive from justice in England, and said that he carried a flag that was born in intrigue. He said that the armories of this State had been used by de Valera and others for seditious purposes.

The speaker said the organization had a definite legislative program that would prevent further immigration from Europe.

The Aeolian Company's

ANNUAL MAY SALE of EXCHANGED PIANOS and PLAYER-PIANOS

At Aeolian Hall and Its Four Branches Now in Progress

DURING the first week in May only; a Sale of Exchanged Grand and Upright Pianos and Player-Pianos is being held at the five establishments of The Aeolian Company. These instruments bear the names of the best-known manufacturers, are distinguished by their general character of newness and excellence of condition and will be

Sold at Prices Far Below Their Present Actual Values

The Aeolian Company, with its five metropolitan establishments, does by far the largest high-grade music business in New York. Selling the most advanced types of musical instruments such as the wonderful new Duo-Art Pianola Piano, etc., there comes to these five establishments a steady stream of regular pianos and player-pianos, exchanged for the new type.

These returned instruments all go to the Aeolian Repair Shops and are there subjected to the most thorough overhauling. They are tuned, polished, regulated; repaired when necessary and when again offered to the public in these great annual Sales, are practically indistinguishable from new in appearance, condition and value.

An opportunity, therefore, to secure a piano or player-piano of standard make, virtually new in value, but at a price much below that of several years ago, is not to be ignored.

GRANDS and UPRIGHTS

Included in this great Sale are Grand and Upright Pianos of the following famous makes. Steinway, Weber, Knabe, Chickering, Hardman, Kranich and Bach, Sohmer, Fischer, Haines, Wheelock, Everett and many others.

These exchanged instruments come from homes of refinement and having been thoroughly renovated by Aeolian expert workmen, are guaranteed to be in perfect playing condition.

Delivery of any of these pianos will be made for a small down payment and convenient monthly terms.

Increased Facilities to Serve Old Clients— Room to Serve More

An advertising agency builds and occupies its own six story building.

What does that mean to you as its present or prospective client?

DIRECTLY little. Yet indirectly much. Winning ideas may flash in the din of a boiler plant, or the racket of a shipyard. But it is our experience that constructive thinking is best done in quiet, with the necessary conveniences and office organization to grease the wheels of thought.

And so our new building was designed and built with definite ideas of what the home of an advertising agency should be. It gives us room for the conveniences and facilities necessary to creative planning and thinking—room to surround our executives, account managers, merchandising investigators, writers and artists in quiet, that they may apply themselves without interruption or distraction to the marketing problems of our clients—room to back up their recognized selling ingenuity and advertising ability with an organization wise and skilled in the handling of advertising detail—room to house in comfort the expansion that is certain to continue.

We shall be glad to have you stop in to inspect our new home, or to confer on the economic marketing of your commodity through modern merchandising and advertising methods.

Albert Frank & Company offer you over 48 years' corporate experience in advertising and merchandising, and several times that in the combined experience of the men who sit in conference. And with this wealth of experience and ripeness of growth, an organization youthful enough to dare the startling when the unusual will win the point.

Our Chicago office also has felt the effect of the prosperity and success of the clients it serves.

On May first it became necessary to more than double the floor space and to make several additions to the staff.

Advertisers feeling the need of western connections will find Albert Frank & Company in Chicago fully equipped to render a complete agency service.

ARNSTEIN TRAIL LEADS TO MURDER

the youth was under the influence of whisky a few minutes before the party broke up.

The automobile containing Binkowitz and the assassins started through the Milford Turnpike, and soon was going at a forty-mile-an-hour clip. When it reached a point about two miles from Milford one of the assassins pulled young Binkowitz out of his seat and the next instant another one plunged a stiletto through his back. Binkowitz then was lifted into the air and thrown into the clump of bushes where his body was found three days later.

The automobile continued its progress down the road for about half a mile, and then the assassins got out and walked back to Binkowitz. Binkowitz was noted as a prizefighter on the lower east side a few years before he obtained employment as a messenger in the financial district, and took particular pride in his physical condition.

It is understood that when the assassins reached the spot where they had thrown Binkowitz they were surprised to find him holding on to a wooden rail, endeavoring to climb over it. The police believe that when his assailants started to strip him of the stolen securities in his possession he began to fight desperately in the hope that he would save them, and did not cease fighting until one sweeping blow with a stiletto almost decapitated him. When his body was discovered three days later it was found he had been stabbed upward of two dozen times before the death blow was administered.

Four Stilettos Found.

The police are in possession of four stilettos with which Binkowitz was hacked to death. They, with an equal number of pistols, were found under a mattress and in a closet in one of the rooms in the hotel occupied by the murderers before and after Binkowitz was slain. Other evidence on which the police hope to fasten the crime on the suspects is being withheld until such time as they feel sufficient corroboration of the evidence has been gathered.

The connection of associates of Arnstein and Cohen in the murder of young Binkowitz is contained in evidence now in the possession of District Attorney Edward Swann, Assistant District Attorney Dooling and Emil K. Myers, counsel for Henry A. Gildersleeve, retired Justice of the Supreme Court, and trustee in the Arnstein bankruptcy.

Mr. Myers is counsel for all the surety companies in a nation-wide campaign to run down Arnstein and Cohen and to recover about $2,000,000 in securities which have been stolen in the last year and a half in the financial district.

It was learned yesterday that detectives working on the Arnstein case for the last four weeks have been combing country districts within three hours' ride for a clue to the hiding place of "Nicky." It is understood that the detectives have received seemingly authentic information that Arnstein is in hiding on a large estate immediately adjacent to the metropolitan district, but have not been able to learn his exact hiding place.

Process of Elimination.

How the detectives obtained the information is being zealously guarded by them, but it is understood that scores of them and agents of the Department of Justice and operatives of the Secret Service have been enlisted in the hunt. They practically have formed a cordon about the outskirts of the territory on all sides within three hours' ride to the city. The search for Arnstein, it was said, is being conducted through a process of elimination of every estate within the zone formed by the detectives.

The detectives now are convinced that both Arnstein and Cohen are not so much concerned about the charges made against them in connection with the wholesale thefts of securities from brokerage houses in the financial district as they are about the probability of their being connected with the plot which resulted in the slaying of young Binkowitz.

From some mysterious source, it was said, Arnstein and Cohen have received word of the secret hearings being conducted in the bankruptcy proceeding against "Nicky," and it is believed that soon after the hearings began before United States Commissioner Gilchrist, the fugitives learned that the hearings were developing damaging evidence against them in connection with the Binkowitz slaying.

Another Cleveland Man Involved.

A Cleveland gambler, whose name frequently has been mentioned in the secret proceedings before Commissioner Gilchrist, is known to have been summoned to this city several days before the killing of young Binkowitz. It is understood he was sent for by the gambler in whose apartment the murder plot was alleged to have been hatched.

He is said to have made the Claridge Hotel, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, his rendezvous on the day of the killing of young Binkowitz. He was seen in conference with several criminals on Broadway several times during that day. That night, it was declared, he hurried back to Cleveland, taking with him more than $50,000 worth of the securities which had been obtained by the assassins from the body of young Binkowitz. These securities now are in the possession of District Attorney Swann and have been identified as part of the securities stolen from Whitney & Co. by their messenger.

They were found in the possession of a brokerage house in Cleveland, and the identity of the man who pledged the securities is known to those conducting the investigations into the Binkowitz murder and the thefts of millions of dollars' worth of securities from brokerage houses in the financial district.

Advised to Stay Away.

He has been requested to come to this city to testify in the bankruptcy proceeding, it was learned yesterday, but it was reported that a Cleveland lawyer, whose name frequently has been mentioned in the public and private hearings in the Arnstein bankruptcy, has advised him not to do so.

Another associate of Arnstein, well known in the white light district was served with a subpoena to testify in the bankruptcy proceeding. He fled the city, however, the night he received the subpoena, and it is understood a bench warrant was issued for him. He is believed to be hiding in Cleveland at the home of a woman whose identity is known to those conducting the inquiry before Commissioner Gilchrist. It is the belief of the police that Arnstein hid in an apartment conducted by the woman in Superior Street, Cleveland, up to the time that Detective Sergeants James J. Gegan, Grover C. Brown and August Mayer left this city, in the latter part of February, with Eugene F. McGee, of the firm of Fallon and McGee, counsel for Arnstein and Sullivan, to "escort" the wily fugitive back to this city to face an indictment returned against him in connection with thefts of securities from the financial district.

Murder Plot Details Sought.

The witness is believed to possess important information about the plot to murder Binkowitz and the manner in which upward of $2,000,000 worth of securities, not handled by Sullivan & Co., were disposed of by those at the head of the conspiracy which resulted from the thefts through dishonest messengers and others.

David W. Sullivan, in his confession before Commissioner Gilchrist, admitted that the murder of young Binkowitz was mentioned at a conference in Washington participated in by William J. Fallon, his lawyer, Wilaad W. Easterday, the "man behind the screen" in the affairs of Sullivan and Company; Norman S. Bowles, Sullivan's partner, and himself.

Sullivan testified that Fallon told him that some of his friends "were on the verge of handling those bonds, and he gave me a look, and said: 'You know who I mean.'"

Ship from the Center, Not the Rim!

IS the industrial plant in your charge, or in which you are financially interested, distributing its products from the center or shipping from the rim of the circle? Is it trying to supply the trade from the edge of things, far from the sources of raw materials and a long way from your markets—paying the freight charges both ways? In these days of freight congestion, lack of cars, traffic tie-ups, and urgent demand, wouldn't it be good business policy to determine whether your company is distributing from around the rim, or is shipping economically from the center by the shortest haul, at the lowest transportation charges?

To Executives:

Couldn't you make a better showing if you had a Mid-West plant at a central distributing point, from which river and rail freight rates to your markets would assure a material saving?

Is it good business to ship your heavy tonnage of raw materials from their sources in the Mississippi Valley to eastern points for manufacture, and then ship the finished products right back to consumers in the Mississippi Valley in the great St. Louis trade territory?

Isn't it too much like hauling the goods from the center to the rim of the circle, and then hauling them right back to the center, paying costly freight charges both ways?

Is your factory distributing from the rim? Are you paying the take-it-there-and-bring-it-back charges? Couldn't you make a better showing in your balance-sheet to stockholders if you distributed from the center and saved the long-haul charges?

To Stockholders:

Wouldn't you rather be financially interested in an industry which distributes economically from the center instead of the outside of the rim?

Do you consider it a matter of business economy to get raw materials from the Mississippi Valley, then lift them almost a mile high to carry them over the mountains to the Atlantic coast?

Do you approve such business waste as a substitute for a straight haul on a down-hill course? The saving between the over-the-mountain and the down-hill hauls means greater profits—and dividends.

The economical method would be to manufacture at a central point near the basic material source, and send it down hill to Gulf ports for export.

The natural trend of tonnage originating between the Alleghanies and Rockies is down the valleys to the Mississippi River and out through the Gulf of Mexico.

Wouldn't it be good business economy to have a Mid-West factory in St. Louis, the center of the great basic material district, from which the markets of the great South, Southwest, Middle-West, and St. Louis trade territory are reached by the shortest route by rail and water?

Any manufacturer whose raw materials are cotton, wool, copper, lead, zinc, coal, coke, limestone, fire clay, sulphur, salt or hardwood is closer to the source in St. Louis than in any other fully developed industrial center in the United States.

No other great industrial city with equal distributing facilities is so close to both raw materials and consumers of finished products.

This ideal condition means a two-way saving—a saving to your factory and to your customers. You pay the freight on raw materials to your factory. Normally, the transportation charges on the finished goods are paid by your customers.

A saving in transportation charges makes friends of your customers, and a saving on raw material shipments is a welcome sound in your industrial cash register. It means either larger returns to you, or gives a wider margin for competitive price quotations.

Economic distribution does not begin at the edge of things — but at the center. The savings — dividend producers — result from distribution from a central point in the interior where many lines of transportation meet and cross, and where your markets are reached by the shortest route.

St. Louis is such a center. It has twenty-six railroads to markets in every direction. The Mississippi River barge line facilities give waterway transportation at reduced rates to Mississippi Valley points and Gulf ports for foreign trade—especially Latin America. St. Louis is a four-sided gateway. It is not cut off on any side by a natural barrier to distribution.

St. Louis Invites Sixteen Industries

St. Louis business men are seeking sixteen industries to manufacture products which are not now made in St. Louis and which must be bought elsewhere.

There is a profitable local market assured for the desired sixteen types of plants, and St. Louis wants the factories to make the goods. The sixteen industries sought are:

Shoe laces and findings
Cotton spinning and textile mills
Dye stuffs
Steel and copper wire
Malleable iron castings
Farm implements
Rubber products
Screw machine products
Locomotive works
Blast furnaces
Cork products
Small hardware
Machine tools and tool machinery
Automobile accessories and parts
Drop forge plants
Tanneries and leather products

Unusual opportunities are open to plants in these lines in St. Louis. The market is ready. You could begin delivering from the center at once, and eliminate the waste of distributing from the rim.

If a Mid-West factory would aid in solving your production and distribution problems, and if you want to distribute from the center instead of the rim, the booklet, "St. Louis as a Manufacturing Center," will be of particular interest to you. A letter will bring it. Address it to

The most popular "XXth Century" Cooler we make for business use—Style 560, rich mahogany finish. We also make a handsome embossed de luxe style for banks and finely finished offices and an "All-white" cooler

More Efficient, Sanitary and Economical Equipment

To serve drinking water in a sanitary way means better health and greater efficiency of employees—and increased patronage for hotels and restaurants. Pure water cannot be served pure from an unsanitary container in which dirty or germ-laden ice comes in contact with the water. Such coolers are dangerous. They cause illness and epidemics.

"XXth CENTURY" COOLER

The "XXth Century" Cooler is absolutely sanitary. The ice cannot get into the water and contaminate it. Dust and germs in the air cannot reach it. The patented "C & H" push faucet will not become clogged and foul, nor drip after pressure is released.

The water from a "XXth Century" Cooler is always as cool and refreshing as that from a woodland spring—never disagreeably and harmfully cold. The cooler soon saves its cost in ice savings because its "Fibrotta" ice container (an exclusive feature) is a non-conductor which keeps the heat out and the cold in.

"C & H" Dispensers for serving beverages at soda fountains are as sanitary and economical of ice as "XXth Century" Coolers. No dirty ice can contaminate or dilute their contents.

"Fibrotta" WARE

For business offices, hotels, stores, factories, institutions and public buildings, rich mahogany colored "Fibrotta" equipment is not only the best looking but the most durable, sanitary and economical equipment on the market.

"Fibrotta" is made in one piece, under tremendous hydraulic pressure. It has no cracks or seams to catch and hold dirt. It will not rust, warp, swell, leak or dent out of shape. We make "Fibrotta" pails, fire pails, waste baskets, umbrella jars, spittoons, tubs, keelers or small tubs, waste jars, etc. They are far more durable than articles of metal or earthenware. They are exceptionally attractive in appearance and easy to clean on account of their hard, glasslike finish.

If you cannot get the "XXth Century" Cooler or "Fibrotta" ware through your dealer, write or telephone us.

MR. PENROSE NOMINATES.

Senator PENROSE, it is good to see, has more than recovered his health. He was never in better form or spirits. He bubbles with grave humor. He vests his words with artless candor. His earlier favorite, Senator HARDING, has disappointed expectations, perhaps never too serious. Senator JOHNSON, deliciously described by Mr. QUAY'S cleverest pupil as "from some points of view a radical," has shown altogether too much capability of turning an encouraged side-show into an unpermitted main tent. It was time to make another feint or diversion, to light some more false fires.

So, on the day the Knox peace resolution is reported favorably from the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, Mr. PENROSE speaks. "The primaries "do not seem to have developed any "paramount candidates. If we are "asked to take up a candidate of the "type of the Governor of Illinois, we "have a right immediately to turn in "with all our strength for Governor "SPROUL." But Mr. PENROSE'S errant fancy still plays about Senators to the neglect even of the Governor of his State. Reflection has convinced him that "Senator KNOX is the best-"equipped all-around international "statesman to meet the requirements "of the present situation who is avail-"able in public life. While doubtless "several other candidates could be "nominated and elected, I especially "believe a unanimity could be secured "on Senator KNOX with considerable "ease and facility."

Then, by palpable prearrangement, echoes of the oracle are heard. Governor SPROUL bends, not with mere meekness but joyously, his neck to the sacrificial knife. He "cordially indorses" the nomination of Mr. KNOX, toward whom in Washington, notoriously so wise a reader of public opinion, "a great many representa-"tives of various sections and various "lines of thought are turning." Moreover, the Governor continues ingenuously, "the well-known friend-"ship between Mr. KNOX and Sen-"ator JOHNSON has aided in turning "attention to Senator KNOX'S availa-"bility." Apparently we are asked to believe that Mr. JOHNSON will lay his delegates, should the necessity come, at the feet of his friend, and that they at the convention and Mr. JOHNSON'S eclectic collection of supporters at the polls will plump for Mr. KNOX "with considerable ease and facility."

Representative BASCOM SLEMP of Virginia completes the picture by assuring us that Mr. KNOX "occu-"pies a peculiar position in that he is "acceptable to the Progressives of the "West and the business elements in "the East." That is a peculiar position, if he occupies it. He is a man of distinguished talent, and his international statesmanship, now devoted to the effort to isolate the United States and deprive it of influence or weight in international affairs, must be acceptable to Republicans, if Republicans in the country at large are faithfully represented by the Republicans of the Senate. In default of evidence, however, the supposition that he is the Republican "dark horse" may be taken with a grain of salt. It would seem too early for Mr. PENROSE to show his game. Undoubtedly he hopes to be arbiter at Chicago by means of that great sheaf of delegates and in combination with other earnest students of the art of nomination.

However that may be, and even if it be an error not to take too seriously or regard as other than a blind or a manœuvre this new projection of Mr. KNOX'S candidacy, there is a profoundly serious side to it, quite hidden from the cynical senior Senator from Pennsylvania. The Senate is at the nadir of its unpopularity. Obviously political discipline, restraint, the instinct of party obedience, respect for party authority, are much weakened. In such a time a cabal of Senators deems it wise to show its cynical contempt for the voters and seeks to impose candidates upon them.

THE JEWISH WAR SUFFERERS.

The non-sectarian character of the drive in behalf of the Jewish war sufferers was emphasized in the appeal which marked its formal beginning yesterday. An accompanying letter was signed by EVANGELINE BOOTH of the Salvation Army, Bishop BURCH, Archbishop HAYES and many other representatives of Christian churches. A statement of the nature of the crisis was prepared by the Rev. Dr. S. PARKES CADMAN and sent to every Protestant minister in the city to serve as a basis for an announcement from the pulpit. A similar statement for the Catholic churches was sent out by Mgr. JOSEPH F. MOONEY.

Hitherto the Jews have financed their own charities, and with a liberality and skill that have been universally recognized. The present need transcends the means of any single sect and centres in a catastrophe which threatens the entire world. In Russia and the neighboring countries the Jews have been subject to a particularly malignant persecution which has not ended with the war. Without any national organization of their own, they have no central organization to appeal to. Living in segregated and generally impoverished communities, their misery is cumulative to an extent unknown among other sufferers. It is estimated that more than five millions are actually starving or on the verge of starvation, and a virulent typhus epidemic is raging among them and is already spreading among the neighboring populations. Both in the intensity and the extent of present suffering and in the menace it holds out for all Europe, the situation is one which directly concerns the public-spirited of all races and creeds.

The quota of New York City is $7,500,000. On the American Joint Distribution Committee are Professor HARRY FISHER of Chicago, Professor ISRAEL FRIEDLANDER, MAX PINE and MAURICE KASS. In their work of distributing food and medical aid through the ghettos of Central Europe they are obliged to proceed without the protection of the Government of the United States, which has no diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia. Ample precautions will be taken, however, to make sure that the supplies will be used for the purposes in hand. It is a work of mercy that makes a peculiar appeal to both the hearts and the interests of a common humanity.

FINANCIAL HOMEOPATHS AND ALLOPATHS.

Japan has just taken a dose of financial medicine of the allopathic sort, bitter, searching, abundant, wholesome, but prostrating. Saturday's cablegram gives the results of the cure. The banks are in ample funds, a syndicate has taken over the sacrificed collateral, business is slow to revive, and wage reductions are expected generally, some already having been accepted in preference to idleness. We know of such experiences in our own history, in 1873, 1893, and others too numerous for pleasant recollection. On those occasions we suffered for our own faults. Now we are in a way to suffer for the misfortunes of others. We shall try in vain to detach ourselves from the world's wretchedness. In the words of the new British Ambassador, "The Con-"tinent of Europe is in trouble, and "it is trouble you of the United "States cannot get away from, trou-"ble that will come after you and "haunt you, trouble that the call of "the blood will bring right here into "your domestic politics."

It is here now, in our financial politics. The allopathic school has prescribed deflation, which the homeopathic practitioners fear will produce results resembling Japan's bitter cure. Without undertaking to say whether Mr. PAUL WARBURG is a financial allopath or homeopath, it is sure that in his address before the Academy of Political Science he agrees with the deflationists, but thinks that the process should be alleviated by a modicum more of judicious inflation. Our first duty is production and thrift, but, if we are unable to save, "then should "we be prepared to make an excep-"tion and permit further expansion." He speaks even more strongly regarding inflation in foreign than in domestic trade. Contraction of banking credit is not the remedy for deficiencies of goods caused by the destruction of war and the idleness of 200,000,000 Europeans. Their production must be revived to correct the excess of the world demand over world supply, and our help is essential. "Is it "not obvious," he says, "that by fur-"nishing European countries with "raw materials and credits we would "help them to restart their economic "life and place them in a position "where they can pay their just "debts, and where in the long run "they can work their way back to "approximately the same standard of "living they enjoyed before the world "was thrown into the turmoil of "war?"

Is it not equally obvious that if we take the dose of our financial allopaths and prostrate ourselves we shall need to give all our attention to our own financial recovery and shall not be able to help others? And is it not also equally obvious that if we fail to restore the health and vigor of Europe we cannot hope to escape that uneconomic competition which is the worst of all—that of governments and peoples in receivership, relieved of financial responsibilities? The conclusion is that our domestic situation cannot be treated apart from the world situation. In an economic sense we are married to "abroad" for better or worse, without hope of divorce. It is a pity that the Federal Reserve lacks the learning and experience of Mr. WARBURG, and the temptation to suggest his return is great. And yet there is an embarrassment in considering intrusting our home finance to any one of foreign extraction. In proportion as he was a man of Mr. WARBURG'S fine qualities there would be a danger that the fear of being thought prejudiced by transatlantic affiliations might influence his decisions rather against them, through excess of precaution against prejudice in their favor. The British Ambassador protected himself against this suspicion by excepting his own country from his remarks. If Mr. WARBURG is of the same opinion, the agreement is no proof that foreign sympathies prejudice them both, but that in truth world economics are indivisible parts of a single whole.

A DUTY PERFORMED.

There can never be a more placid and safer "May Day": no attempt on the life of any prosecutor, or Judge, or legislator, or capitalist, not even a gesture of violence by emissary or agent of a foreign or American radical organization, but it may well be that nothing happened because the police power had been forewarned and was ready to the last man. Did Attorney General PALMER and the Secret Service take the threats and exhortations and propaganda of the internationalists too seriously and raise an unnecessary alarm? The sufficient answer is that last June, when attempts were made by the "Reds" to blow up the house of the Attorney General himself in Washington and Judge NOTT'S house in this city was actually shattered by a bomb—there were explosions designed to kill officials in other cities—the Secret Service was not on the alert, had discovered nothing, anticipated no concerted outbreak, and the police were not prepared to protect either life or property. The miscreants, fanatics and crackbrains who do such things cannot be taken too seriously. Against them the authorities should always be on guard, and at no time more watchfully than on May Day, when the mad dog of "internationalism" froths at the mouth. The day is rightly a festival of law-abiding and self-respecting organized labor, but the anarchist groups have appropriated it for demonstrations against the social order.

May Day passed off without a single outrage because the forces of law and order were prepared at all points to deal with anarchical violence. To hold otherwise is to dismiss the evidence collected by the Department of Justice as trivial or fabulous and to suspect Attorney General PALMER of panic fears, or of concocting a political sensation, which would be worse. If he had made light of the reports laid before him and one official marked for assassination had been killed, the Attorney General would never have forgiven himself, and opprobrium would have followed him to the end of his days. After all, it required a moral courage that is not afraid of ridicule to give publicity to the so-called "assassination plot," and put the police of New York and other cities on notice that they must throw guards around the courts, other public buildings and private residences, and be alert to turn out for riot duty. In this city it was an impressive and reassuring exhibition of preparedness, which will not be lost upon the skulking agitators who know no country and are against all government.

WHERE WILL THE MONEY COME FROM?

The ardor with which the Republicans in the House of Representatives welcomed the bonus plan of the American Legion under the impression that their support of it would strengthen the party in the national campaign has cooled during the controversy about ways and means of raising the needed money. The Republican caucus which was to settle the taxation question—the project of a bond issue had been abandoned—broke up in confusion and cross-purposes, a dismal failure. It may even be surmised that Mr. FORDNEY of Michigan, who has a keen scent for votes, lost his temper when he charged Republican associates with the disability known in the vernacular as "cold feet." It is not to be supposed that they were unwilling to do all that was politically possible for the ex-service men, but they were wiser than Mr. FORDNEY in understanding the difficulties of extracting $1,000,000,000 a year from a sorely burdened people who found the high cost of living a more baffling problem from day to day.

The bonus bill, "carrying," to quote from a Washington dispatch, "the largest appropriation of any "single legislative act since the armi-"stice of Nov. 11, 1918," was reported to the House on Friday morning. It barely squeezed through the Ways and Means Committee by a vote of 11 to 10. That significant vote depressed the Republicans when they met in caucus, and they were an unhappy family. It was rash of Mr. FORDNEY to demand immediate action in the circumstances. Men who are cautious about committing themselves to great expenditures of money to please any class of voters do not like to have the taunt of infirmity of purpose thrown in their teeth. It is not cowardly to be prudent when the country is on the brink of financial disorganization and when only thrift and careful management can prevent a catastrophe.

Aside from the question of whether the sound in body and the employed should be presented with substantial sums of money, or be otherwise rewarded, for military service to save America from a powerful and predatory enemy, it is plain to the simplest understanding that no plan of taxation that has been proposed to find the money for bonuses is free from grave objections. Sixty-eight Republican members have signed a "round robin" protesting against a tax on sales, because it would bear too heavily upon the consumers. The proposal to increase income surtaxes also encounters opposition, and it is doubtful if the money required could be raised in that way. A new excess profits tax working retroactively is altogether impracticable. Moreover, if authorized, it would prove a "knockout" for business, which is now slowly getting to its feet.

So far no practical method of raising a sufficiency of revenue to pay the bonuses has been conceived; none will stand the test of analysis by Treasury experts. The Republicans who gayly promised the ex-service men the legislation they wanted now find that politics does not always mix well with revenue finance, and their dilemma would be diverting if the matter were not so serious.

THE POLISH ADVENTURE.

The Polish offensive toward Kiev for the purpose of liberating the Ukraine continues with great success, although evidently the Bolsheviki have not yet brought up the reserves which, even after the turning of some of their armies into labor forces, they still have on hand. In England there is much shaking of the head over the Polish progress, and in France there is unconcealed elation. The joyful approval of France may in the long run be more dangerous for Poland than the cold skepticism of England; already some French Generals and some Polish Generals are thinking hopefully of complete destruction of the Red Army and the Government which depends on that army's bayonets.

But the one dominant fact in Polish-Russian relations is and always must be that the Russians outnumber the Poles five to one. Certainly the Polish troops, paying off old scores and filled with the fire of a newly won liberty and a successful national revival, are more than a match for Red armies in anything like equal numbers. The morale of Russian revolutionary troops has been far below that of the old armies which fought for the Czar. But it takes a great deal of moral superiority to make up for odds of five to one; and the Poles are under the disadvantage that, the greater their initial successes, the more rapidly their moral superiority will disappear.

Mr. DURANTY'S dispatch ascribes the Polish offensive in part to the need for finding some work for a large army which cannot be demobilized because the factories of Poland are still idle. If there be a reproach in this, it belongs rather to the countries which could have helped Poland to get back to work and have not done so. But that is only one motive out of several. There are good reasons of statesmanship for the present Polish offensive; but the wisdom of the venture depends even more visibly than that of most strokes of statesmanship on its immediate success. If the Poles are successful, they will have established a much-needed barrier to protect their southeastern frontier, and they will also have gone a long way toward solving the troublesome problem of Ukrainian hostility. Poles and Ukrainians fighting side by side is a spectacle unwelcome to the Bolsheviki, and very pleasant to the friends of Poland.

But not many Russians, whatever their political beliefs, are willing to admit the genuineness of Ukrainian nationalism, though it was genuine enough to throw perhaps a decisive weight into the scale against DENIKIN at a critical time. Bolsheviki, Mensheviki, Cadets and imperialists are mostly at one in the determination to keep Kiev for Russia, against either Poles or Ukrainians, or an alliance of both. LENIN has already profited by rallying Russian national sentiment around his Government; as his rule has become less and less communist it has become more and more nationalist, even imperialist. If the Poles and Ukrainians take Kiev, they may find the whole Russian nation rising against them; and a Russian army out on a national crusade fights considerably better than the heterogeneous Red organization.

If Kiev is taken and can be held without too much trouble, Poland will have won a brilliant success, which should go a long way toward insuring the safety of the country. But it would be madness to think of trying an offensive with the purpose of destroying the Red armies. There is no evidence that the prudent PILSUDSKI has any such intention, but the clamor will grow with success. And any measure of success will increase the morale of the Russians who are fighting against him. Kiev is a prize worth fighting for, but we must wait to see the reaction of Russia before it is possible to say whether it is worth the price.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Suggestions Worth Acceptance.

As a Grand Jury, even though it be an "additional" one, is not composed of men possessing the special knowledge required for reforming our lunacy laws, the jurors who have been considering the question raised, or emphasized, by the death of Dr. MARKOE are to be commended for proceeding with caution and recommending only changes the need for which is obvious to the intelligent layman.

They suggest that the known insane be guarded with more care in the asylums to which they have been committed, that those legally declared insane in any State be regarded and treated as insane in all the other States, that the sale of deadly weapons be under the same strict regulation throughout the country, that all Commissioners in Lunacy be physicians and neurologists of competence certified by recognized medical authority, and that the verdict "not guilty, but insane" be changed to "guilty, but insane."

These are all good suggestions, and especially good is the suggestion that commitments as insane should be made only by, or on the recommendation of, experts; but the jurymen apparently did not think to add that liberations from confinement as cured should also be controlled by experts, and not be left to the discretion of judges or juries whose knowledge of insanity is always slight and whose beliefs regarding it often are wrong.

The public safety is almost or quite as much affected by premature or mistaken releases from asylums as it is by the possibility that the sane are or may be shut up in madhouses. About the best, therefore, that can be said of the Grand Jury's recommendations is that they are good, as far as they go, and the worst is that they do not go far enough.

To Recognize Insanity the Problem.

First and foremost among the needed reforms of our lunacy laws is one providing for timely discovery of the mental states of which the natural, frequent and consequently to be expected progress is toward the commission of homicidal acts.

Certain peculiarities of action, thought and temper commonly passing for mere eccentricity or crankiness are the sure indications of serious mental disorder that may at any moment terminate in an irresistible impulse to kill in revenge for an imaginary wrong or to advance a fanatical cause. The timely interpretation of these peculiarities for what they are is not easy, or even possible, for any except the specialist who has learned by study and experience the different kinds and degrees of insanity and can discriminate between a harmless abnormality and those that grow dangerous.

He, too, and he only, knows the difference between the curable and the incurable maladies of the brain, and he alone is not misled by the intervals of seemingly perfect sanity that so often come in several varieties of hopeless insanity.

But alienists are no more wont than other doctors to give advice unasked, and the public in its present state of knowledge hardly would tolerate giving even to the most eminent of mind specialists the power, of his own initiative, to send to asylums men who in the eyes of their relatives and friends are only "queer"—the rather amusing victims of absurd but harmless delusions. The problem of preventing such disasters as the death of Dr. MARKOE is therefore a difficult one, and it should be intrusted, not to Grand Juries, but to the combined wisdom of the men whose profession it is to differentiate between mental conditions and who understand them—so far as they are understood by anybody.

Impossible, but Seems to be True.

That marvels never cease is a statement first made so long ago that its repetition is wearisome, but how can it be avoided when there comes over the cables such astonishing news? The Scottish Trades Union Congress has adopted and forwarded to the larger British Trades Union Congress, assembled in London, a resolution expressing the conviction that prohibition is preferable to State control of the liquor traffic!

So stated—and this news was so stated in The Associated Press dispatch—one cannot be quite sure whether the resolution indicated a real desire for prohibition or merely a horror of State control that made any alternative seem desirable in comparison. But the ambiguity seems not to have existed in the resolution itself, for the British Congress understood that the Scottish Congress—representing between 500,000 and 600,000 men, by the way—believes in prohibition and wants it.

No wonder the British labor leaders characterize the action of the Scotch workers as "little short of revolutionary." It is nothing at all short of revolutionary as regards every accepted idea and assumption about the tastes and habits firmly established in Scotland from time immemorial.

Somewhat, but not very much, less astonishing is it to learn that in British labor circles, also, there is a prohibition movement of considerable strength.

Possibly the explanation of these strange phenomena lies in the further statement that the "liquor interests" in both Scotland and England have concentrated their appeals and arguments on the workingmen, and expected with their help to foil and frustrate the prohibition campaigners. Nowhere and never has it been judicious for "liquor interests" to do anything except keep very still. They are never credited, even by those who like their wares best, with any motives except those of utter and ruthless selfishness, and the only suspicion of which they have never been the object is the suspicion that they are considerate of any "interests" other than their own.

Treat Them Like the Ducks.

Is it not about time that some sort of penalty should be imposed on those who delay the transmission of "returns" from the polling places to the centres where the results of voting are tabulated and made known?

In every election there are districts that do not send in their figures until long after the others have reported, and always there is a last district. Good excuses, and even adequate reasons for such delays are imaginable, but neither the excuses nor the reasons, except in rarest instances, apply to districts not in remote places, difficult of access and egress.

Usually slowness in making returns is due either to incompetence or to fraud, and the latter always is to be suspected when hurricanes, blizzards or earthquakes have not interfered with ballot counting or the messenger service.

It is said that in China, where ducks pass the night on boats, the last duck to come aboard at twilight is smartly rapped over the head with a switch to teach him promptness in obeying the master's call home. It is a wise plan, and might well be extended—properly modified, of course—to district election officials.

A FEDERAL GUN LAW.

In Favor of Suppressing the Traffic in Concealable Weapons.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The tragedy recently enacted in a house of worship by an escaped lunatic appears to have so stunned the public that in its search for prevention it "strains at a gnat and swallows a camel."

As you have well written, such tragic incidents are infinitesimally rare. Why tamper with existing lunacy laws to prevent them? On the other hand, homicides by pistols are of almost daily occurrence. Yet they go on unrestrained because of maudlin sentiment with regard to the right guaranteed by the Constitution "to bear arms." How fallacious this sentiment is may be gathered from the wording of the Constitution: "A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

We read of merchants seeing their money drawers, safes or cash registers rifled while they are rendered helpless by a loaded pistol. We read frequently of bank officers and others whose pistols are reposing in nearby drawers being overawed by "looking into the mouth of a pistol held by a bold man." We read of a roomful of gamblers being terrorized into yielding up their money by a greatly inferior number of men pointing pistols at them, and in one case the cowed crowd included armed police officers who had just raided the place, and who turned the tables as civilians often could do if they would risk it. Such incidents demonstrate that instead of being an instrument of protection the pistol is absolutely a menace to the community and should be abolished.

A frequent argument for the possession of a pistol is drawn from the necessity of protecting one's property. Let each reader reflect on the number of instances in which property or life has been saved by the use of a pistol and it will become obvious that they are so infrequent that this argument is absurd.

The remedy is simple. Let us have a Federal law passed and enforced to forbid the manufacture, importation, transportation, sale and possession of small concealable arms under severe penalty (jail, not fine) for violation. Such a law will infringe on no one's comfort or happiness, except that of the bully or the burglar or other criminal. It will not interfere with sport or protection of property because it does not apply to shotguns and rifles. Nor will it interfere with the police, military or other protective agents of the community where pistols are not concealed.

The financial loss to the few manufacturers of these dangerous but absolutely useless weapons would be amply compensated to the community by the saving of lives, disfigurements, funeral expenses, court trials and incalculable woes to survivors of the victims.

Surely if for "the greatest good to the largest numbers" enormous pecuniary losses to the community have been inflicted by forbidding the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of intoxicating liquors, a similar law protecting the community against the most frequent cause of homicide cannot meet sufficient opposition to prevent its immediate adoption. It is the simple safeguard that all should demand without delay. SIMON BARUCH, M. D.

"A Staten Island Subway.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What you say about the possibilities of the disaster that would come to Staten Island were it cut off from the mainland and from New York is, to my mind, absolutely true and is well put. But you say that a tunnel between the eastern part of the island and Bay Ridge, or the Fort Hamilton section of Brooklyn, would be a difficult and costly improvement.

After the plans of the Fourth Avenue subway had been completely made and adopted they were changed in order to accommodate the traffic that would come from the Staten Island connection. The connection between the Fourth Avenue subway and the borough which you term "the Cinderella of the group that make up the greater city" would be comparatively inexpensive when you take into consideration the fact that with that connection this borough would be connected up with all the other boroughs, and at the same time a freight connection could be made between the connecting road crossing the Hell Gate Bridge and the Baltimore & Ohio tracks at St. George, and that the Fourth Avenue subway has ample capacity to take care of the extra traffic, and that the rapid transit line and the trolley lines on Staten Island, if whipped into shape, could distribute the passengers brought over this connection, and that the whole thing could be done within a few months.

I cannot understand why there should be any hesitation in carrying out what was planned long ago and what can be done so easily and cheaply.

French Citations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I beg to call your attention to an erroneous impression conveyed by a headline on page 12 of your edition of April 26. It reads: "2,000,000 French citations. That number of soldiers were 'mentioned' for bravery."

Since at least 30 or 40 per cent. of soldiers mentioned for bravery were mentioned two or more times, the number of citations is considerably in excess of the number of soldiers cited. To take an obvious example, every aviator was cited in army orders and received a palm on his Croix de Guerre ribbon for almost every time he brought down an enemy machine.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the Croix de Guerre were freely given and that citations were not very hard to obtain. But you have somewhat overstated the case.

BEWILDERMENT.

When we might build out of our grievous woe
A better world for them who follow us to know;
When we might reach, if we were so agreed,
A helping hand to many in their utmost need;
When we might work, and, working, find again
The dream that carried us through stress and pain;
When we might see with vision far ahead
Brotherhood reborn as earth is warmed and fed;
When we might pluck in shining, peaceful hours
Small daily pleasures, springing up like flowers;
When life might mean, if we faced it together,
A sporting chance for heaven in just a bit of weather—
Why do we falter so or even stop to hear
Those urging idleness and preaching hate and fear?

BISHOP'S WORK IN EUROPE.

Prelate of Diocese from Siberia to Pyrenees Preaches in Trinity.

Trinity Church was honored yesterday morning with the presence of two distinguished Bishops in its chancel—the Right Rev. Herbert Bury, Anglican Bishop for Northern and Central Europe, and the Right Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, 84 years old, of St. Louis, who is presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity, welcomed both prelates. There was a large congregation, including many English worshippers.

Bishop Bury, who arrived a few days ago from London, will tour the East to raise $20,000 for his work. He will return to England in time to attend the Lambeth Conference next month in London.

The English Bishop presides over more territory than any of his brother prelates. His diocese extends from Northern Siberia to the Pyrenees, and includes Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden and Serbia. Part of the fund he seeks is to provide a Bishop who can devote his entire time to traveling from mission to mission. The rest is to pay the Chaplains scattered over Northern and Central Europe, and to support the seamen's institutes, chapels and homes for Anglican communicants within the diocese.

Bishop Bury explained that his work was mainly with three classes—English girls, who comprise most of the theatrical and amusement hall entertainers in the capitals of Europe; the English jockeys, who, he said, were the most popular for horsemanship in the European capitals, and the English sailors in every port within his jurisdiction. He said that in all the larger cities there were also small colonies of English and American people who wanted the ministrations of their own Church.

The Bishop told of confirming a class of thirty-four playgirls recently, saying they had chosen Christ rather than Diana. "We are hoping to set a standard in every capital of Europe by opening a home and chapel for the special care of these girls who supply the city's recreation," he said.

Speaking of the English jockeys, Bishop Bury said that 2,000 of them were in the neighborhood of Paris. He said there was a Chaplain there who exerted "a priceless influence" among them. The Bishop stated that these boys were in their early teens, and told of one, only 12 years old, who confessed quite he could a man of 60 that drink had got the best of him.

"Don't you think the Church ought to be there with those jockeys?" asked the Bishop, explaining that by many they were regarded as one of the most despised classes.

"And then there are our English and American sailors in all the ports of Europe. No one outside can realize the perils of 'Jack.' Ought not our Mother, the Church, to go with him? These stalwart English seamen respond when you speak out for manhood and for God. We are determined there shall be something to welcome 'Jack' ashore aside from the drinking house. So we have these seamen's institutes under the care of the Church."

Bishop Bury declared that he was sure he had "the most faithful, loyal, unadvertising body of Chaplains of any Anglican diocese."

Bishop Tuttle, who addressed the congregation from the chancel steps, paid a Tribute to Dr. Manning, and asked: "Do you wonder that I seem to have come home again?"

The venerable presiding Bishop recalled the days when as a student in Columbia University he taught Sunday school in St. Paul's Chapel. He said he knew then the Rev. Mr. Dix who afterward became the great Dr. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity.

"My loving congratulations to old Trinity, the American spiritual power house of the centuries," said Bishop Tuttle.

Bishop Bury is the guest of Bishop and Mrs. Charles S. Burch at the Bishop's house, Cathedral Close. Next Sunday morning he will preach in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Bishop Tuttle, who was a guest at Trinity's rectory, 4 Washington Square, will set out for St. Louis today. He came East to take part in the consecration of a Bishop.

CLOSER GUARD ON KAISER.

Time of His Removal to Doorn Is Kept Secret.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 2.—The date of the ex-Kaiser's removal from Amerongen to Doorn House is still very uncertain owing to the unfinished state of the house. Yesterday the General State Secretary, Kann, conferred with the ex-Kaiser, the Captain of Police and the Burgomaster of Doorn on the question of the new residence.

The vigilance of the ex-Kaiser's guard has been greatly increased. Strangers' movements around Amerongen and Doorn have been much restricted lately. Now that the trees are in foliage, little of the house is visible from the path around the big wire fence surmounted by barbed wire which surrounds the estate.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, strolling along this patch, which is public property, in order to ascertain the recent changes and the progress made, was firstly closely scrutinized by the guards, shadowed, and finally arrested and taken to the police station at Doorn, where he was held until his identity was confirmed.

Whether the close and careful watch is to protect the ex-Kaiser from possible attacks or from communication with possible monarchist accomplices, the ex-Kaiser, who was at the time at his favorite pastime of sawing wood in the garden, certainly is rigorously guarded, even from the curiosity seekers, and an attempt will be made to conceal the date of his removal to Doorn.

STATE MASONS TO MEET.

Grand Lodge Communication Opens Tomorrow in This City.

The State Grand Lodge of Masons will meet in annual communication at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Grand Lodge Room in the Masonic Hall in Twenty-third Street. Delegates from more than 800 lodges will attend, representing about 225,000 members.

One of the subjects to be considered is the effort to raise an endowment fund for the support of the Memorial Hospital now being built on the grounds of the Masonic Home and School at Utica. It is dedicated to the memory of those who lost their lives in the war.

William S. Farmer, the Grand Master, will preside and the communication will continue on Wednesday and Thursday.

WANT HOME FOR SAILORS.

Netherlands Chapter of the American Society Discusses Founding One.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 2.—The Executive Committee of the Netherlands Chapter of the American Red Cross, of which the new American Minister, William Phillips, is Chairman, held a meeting at the American Legation yesterday to determine what work was urgently needed in Holland. The general opinion was that, as American ships arrive in Rotterdam at the rate of one a day, a home for American sailors would prove beneficial.

Before embarking on the venture, however, it was decided to ask the Captains of incoming American ships whether American sailors would patronize such a headquarters.

METHODIST BISHOPS URGE END OF STRIFE

Demand Compromise for Joining League of Nations—Condemn 'Narrow Nationalism.'

ASK FAIR DEAL FOR LABOR

"Brutal Exactions" as Well as Wages Less Than "Living Scale" Are Banned in Address.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 1.—Heralding the Methodist Episcopal Quadrennial General Conference meeting here as the most important in the history of the denomination, the address of the thirty-four Bishops of the church submitted to the conference today declares the church "is on trial."

On behalf of their denomination, the Bishops accept the challenge and assert that the church must determine to deal courageously with the vital questions the new age has presented.

"Never before did a General Conference meet at a time like this," the Bishops said in their address. "We cannot go back to the less troubled, more simple, placid days.

"We are at a crisis in the ages. If we fail here, it will not matter what else we do."

The address is devoted to answering the question: "What is our chief business at the present conference?"

It divides the question into eleven subdivisions.

"The Church as a whole and in its parts has been and is under heavy fire," the address says. "It has been charged with failure to prevent war. It is charged with impotence in the current unrest and disorder. It is declared to be out of touch with modern industry, modern thought and dominant modern life. It is charged with being the champion of the classes, with the failure to interpret Christ to personal and social life with power and fullness, with the failure to make the world's ideals or to supply the world's motives.

"There is a wholesome desire for cooperation, but a reaction against ecclesiasticism. Both in Protestantism and Romanism, and outside of both, there is a vague, widespread idea of a Christianity without a church."

In its bill of particulars, the address says:

"Of course, the Church will stand in unflinching, uncompromising denunciation of all violations of law, against all murderous child labor, all foul sweatshops, all unsafe mines, all deadly tenements, all starvation wages, all excessive hours for those who toil, all profligate luxuries, all standards of wage and life below the living standard, all unfairness and harshness of conditions, all brutal exactions, whether of the employer or union; all overlordships, whether of capital or labor; all godless profiteering, whether in food, clothing, profits or wages; against all inhumanity, injustice and unbrotherliness; against all class-minded men who demand special privileges or exceptions on behalf of their class.

"In this materialistic day the Church seeks spiritual ends, with the eternal value of human life in view. More than 90 per cent. of the present laws relate to property; less than 10 per cent. to the interests of human life. The emphasis is wrong and the proportion vicious."

"Surely," the address says in its reference to world peace, "we must take strong ground against any more wars and against war itself as a method of settling difficulties. Surely we must commit our church to the principle that international troubles shall be adjusted by counsel and arbitration, not by guns and the slaughter of men; that the nations of the world be bound together by a working covenant of peace; that, however it shall be brought about, such compromise should be made between the President of the United States and the Senate of the United States as shall secure a real and effective League of Nations in which the United States shall have a proper and honorable place among the nations of the world in preserving the peace and bearing the burdens of the world, that narrow nationalism shall not set itself against world unity and a true internationalism; that we shall unite with the churches of all countries that are even now seeking to promote international friendship and goodwill; that weak nations shall not be the prey and victims of the stronger ones; and that all nations shall reduce armaments and armies, battleships and navies, to a minimum consistent with safety and that the vast expenditures for fighting purposes shall be used for education, industrial and domestic welfare instead."

ASSAILS INTERCHURCH DRIVE

Rev. Dr. Haldeman Calls It "Modern Theology in Disguise."

Characterizing the Interchurch World Movement as "the slickest scheme the devil ever brought about," the Rev. Dr. I. M. Haldeman of the First Baptist Church, at Seventy-ninth Street and Broadway, preached to a crowded auditorium last night on the subject, "Is the Interchurch Movement of God or of Satan?"

"The Interchurch movement," said Dr. Haldeman, "is so taken up with the joys that it is to bring about on earth that it has no time for the hereafter. It is modern theology in disguise, the hand of Esau but the voice of Jacob in its deception. The conception of the Resurrection as moral but not of the body is the most wicked, damnable, outrageous fiction ever set before humankind and it casts the whole New Testament into the scrap heap."

Referring to the teaching that all men are the sons of God and of one brotherhood, Dr. Haldeman said: "Of course, the Church will stand in unflinching, uncompromising denunciation of all violations of law, against all murderous child labor, all foul sweatshops, all unsafe mines, all deadly tenements, all starvation wages, all excessive hours for those who toil, all profligate luxuries, all standards of wage and life below the living standard, all unfairness and harshness of conditions, all brutal exactions, whether of the employer or union; all overlordships, whether of capital or labor; all godless profi

ASK $7,500,000 HERE FOR EUROPE'S NEEDY

Great Drive, with $35,000,000 Objective, Is the Theme of Many Pulpits.

1,500 AT 'HUNGER DINNER'

Secretary Colby Gives Government Approval of Jewish Relief Appeal.

The appeal for $7,500,000 to relieve appalling conditions of disease and distress among 6,000,000 people in Central and Eastern Europe was put before New Yorkers yesterday. In virtually all the churches there were sermons emphasizing the non-sectarian character of this call to humanity and at a "hunger dinner" at the Biltmore last night Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby expressed the Government's official sanction of the campaign and its official knowledge of the calamitous character of the troubles that have overtaken whole peoples.

The Greater New York Fund for Jewish War Sufferers will try to raise the full amount in the present week, and, having already subscribed more than $30,000,000 for relief, it is turning for the first time to the general public for funds. The whole nation is being asked to subscribe $35,000,000, a sum which must be raised quickly, according to those with first-hand knowledge of conditions in Poland, East Galicia, the Ukraine, and other places, if hundreds of thousands are not to die of starvation or to fall a prey to the ravages of typhus fever, already stalking through the land.

Today the entire east side is to be draped in mourning, in token of sympathy with the suffering peoples, while 5,000 canvassers there set about the task of raising $1,000,000, the quota pledged by districts inhabited largely by the foreign born. Political leaders and district captains are to lay aside all party lines in pressing the campaign for this million, and even the Chinese, for the first time, are to participate.

Children Will Parade.

Another feature will be a parade of thousands of children from Jewish religious institutions and the public schools, while tonight rabbis in sackcloth and ashes will plead the cause of the unfortunate in every synagogue. This phase of the solicitation will be accompanied by a house-to-house canvass and at the same time the fund will be swelled by the contributions of hundreds of merchants, large and small, who have pledged 5 per cent. of their day's receipts.

More than 1,500 campaign workers gathered last night in the Hotel Cascades to get final instructions, little knowing the character of the hunger dinner which awaited them. Without formality they took seats of their own choosing at long, plain wooden tables covered with oilcloth. Then waiters served to each of them a tin cup filled with thin barley soup and a chunk of discolored bread on a paper plate. There was not even a napkin or a glass of water on the tables, that the lesson might be brought home that even such rations would have been luxury to many thousands in whose behalf the diners were come together.

For once the serving of the dinner and the speaking were simultaneous, for the fare went virtually untouched and the speeches were over as soon as the guests sat down. Colonel H. A. Guinsburg, Chairman of the Finance and Administration Committee, presided at a little table at one end of the room and called Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Chairman of the campaign, to sit beside him. After the guests had examined the "mess kits" stuffed with campaign literature, Colonel Guinsburg explained that every worker and every executive was a volunteer and that every dollar raised would be used directly and effectively in relief work.

"Remember," he added, "that these thousands upon thousands of sick and starving people are calling upon you for help. New York never has failed in such a crisis and when this campaign is over Europe and the world and America will know that they have no reason to be ashamed of what New York has done."

Secretary Colby, warmly welcomed, began by telling of his strong sympathy with the effort just launched, and continued:

"It is a right and proper thing, I take it, that an officer of your Government should come to you on such an occasion as this. It is the function of government, not only to see to the execution of laws, but I think it is equally the function of government under representative institutions that it should seek to interpret the nation's desires and to effectuate the national purposes."

Colby Tells of Appalling Conditions.

Mr. Colby said there was "a certain propriety, a certain significance in the fact that I came to you from the State Department," explaining how that department each day got first-hand information from all parts of the world, and adding:

"It is proper for me, in my official capacity, to certify to this great gathering of men and women of my own city that the appalling conditions which have been related to you and of which you have formed very varying realizations are true beyond the power of words to convey adequately.

"My friends, the world is really not at the brink of a great disaster, but of utter disaster, and if there is anything of high resolve, of fine courage and of unselfish purpose in humanity, the appeal so powerfully made by the mute suffering and silence of these conditions, so inadequately emphasized by any word we can utter, is worthy of a response that is only measured by your virtue, by your vitality and by your strength."

The Secretary went into some description of conditions in the devastated districts, begged that human sympathy should rise equal to the demand upon it, and then said:

"And let me say just a word about the general attitude of our country in this time of great perplexity, of doubt and of uncertainty that hovers and broods over all nations. Let us not be profiteers upon our geographical position.

"Let us not be profiteers upon our comfort and security and God-given and personally quite undeserved commercial and trade advantages. Possession implies stewardship. Power implies responsibility, and there rests upon this great and powerful Republic, blessed above all lands, fortunate beyond the dream of the man who founded this country, a reciprocal duty to the world.

"I am told, and you all will learn from the reported debates in the Senate, that one of the cardinal principles of American policy is isolation. I deny it. It is not the fact historically, and if it is the fact, it ought to cease from this moment to be the fact."

Appeals to Sense of Duty.

"I am told that this God-given year of wasted opportunity has been devoted to the Americanization of the great treaty of peace which provided a method by which America could take its place at the council table with the nations and perform its equal and proper part in the great work of world recovery. I deny that the specious plea of Americanization is an absolution for our national or personal duty. You are not Americanizing an American obligation when you are coupling it with reservations or expressing it in terms of repudiation.

"America is acting falsely to that simple and rugged honesty which is part of the American character when it hesitates and draws back upon the performance of a duty or the grasping and embracement of an opportunity. Let us give of our political power, of our political experience, of our commercial strength, of our pecuniary power, to the succor and relief of this sorely afflicted world.

"It is not only our duty as human beings, but it is the only enlightened policy. Shall a man who is riding on the promenade deck of a great steamer profess himself to be wholly unconcerned with the fact that there is a gaping hole in the hull of the ship?"

Louis Marshall said that those who had labored long for the relief of Jewish war sufferers had expected that suffering to cease very soon after the war was over, but unfortunately peace was not yet declared and the conflict still was raging.

Tells of Plague's Ravages.

"Suffering," said Mr. Marshall, "has not decreased, but increased beyond what it was in the active days of the war. Despite all we have told you in the past, there are even lower depths, people are falling victims to typhus in East Galicia, in Poland and the Ukraine, and unless we send food, clothing, the proper apparatus and the means to operate that apparatus, not thousands, not hundreds of thousands, but such vast numbers of our people will die as will stagger the imagination."

Dr. I. Edwin Goldwasser begged the workers for team work, urging them to function like Kipling's "Ship that Found Herself" with the uniform hum of one vast machine, with all parts driving together to a uniform end.

Judge Rosalsky expressed the committee's thanks to the workers and to the non-Jews who are co-operating in the campaign.

Felix M. Warburg told how first-hand reports from unquestioned sources confirmed the worst that could be imagined of some of the stricken districts. He explained how the fiendishness of underpaid soldiers under arms for five years had caused much of the misery and defended the Jews in some places from the charge of Bolshevism, asserting they were of a class who never would have indorsed propaganda of that nature.

Judge Abram I. Elkus told of the horrors of the sights he had seen abroad with women and children dying and their piled-up bodies filling the streets. He said he wished that he might take all workers to the stricken lands that they might see directly the awful need that must be met.

PREACHES WITH AID NEARBY

Rev. Mr. Tyndall and Sturdy Stranger Retain Brooklyn Pulpit.

Although a number of bitter quarrels and fist fights over controversies in which he figured had led to an order from the governing body of the church for his retirement on a six week's vacation without pay, the Rev. Stanley G. Tyndall of the Greenwood Heights Reformed Church in Brooklyn preached last night as usual.

While the minister stood in the pulpit, a stranger of powerful build stood directly behind him and kept an alert eye roving over the congregation. This man was rumored to be a deputy sheriff noted for his ability to put down disorder.

The governing body of the church, after awarding the vacation to the Rev. Mr. Tyndall, had designated the Rev. John Lloyd, a retired clergyman, to succeed him. The Rev. Mr. Lloyd appeared at the church before service time and was surprised to see the other minister and the strongly-built man in possession. The Rev. Mr. Lloyd quietly took a seat in the rear of the church and remained there.

MRS. DOUGLAS TO RE-WED.

Former Miss Anne Kountze Will Marry W. P. Burden May 12.

Mrs. Anne Ward Kountze Douglas, a daughter of the late Luther Kountze and of Mrs. Kountze of 5 East Fifty-seventh Street and Delbarton, Morristown, N. J., and Williams Proudfit Burden, a son of Mrs. James Abercrombie Burden of New York and Newport, are to be married on Wednesday, May 12, at the town house of the bride's mother. The engagement has just been made public.

Mr. Burden is a widower. His first wife was the beautiful Miss Natica Rives, the only daughter of Mrs. George Lockhart Rives by her first husband, the late Oliver H. P. Belmont. They were married in 1907, but Mrs. Burden lived only a few months. He is a brother of James A. Burden, who married Miss Adele Sloane, and of Arthur Scott Burden, who married Miss Cynthia Roche, and is a Harvard graduate of 1899.

Mrs. Douglas's first marriage was in April, 1907, and the bridegroom was J. Gordon Douglas, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Douglas. His sister, Miss Sybil Douglas, married William P. Whitehouse. During the war he was commissioned a Captain. On June last an interlocutory decree of divorces was entered in Mrs. Douglas's favor in Rhode Island and she was given the custody of the two children, J. Gordon Douglas, Jr., and Barclay Kountze Douglas, the decree to be made final in January. Mrs. Douglas, through her mother, who was Miss Ward, is related to many old New York families, as is also Mr. Burden. She is a sister of W. De Lancey Kountze, who married a cousin of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and who was also commissioned a Captain in the army. Her elder sister, Miss Helen Kountze, married Robert L. Livingston, but died shortly after her marriage. Only relatives and a few close friends will be present at the wedding.

MISS DORA DAVIS TO WED.

Her Engagement to the Rev. Harry W. Farrington is Announced.

Mrs. Franklin Glasson Davis of 829 West End Avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dora Wilhelmina Davis, to the Rev. Harry Webb Farrington, a Methodist clergyman of 362 Riverside Drive.

Miss Davis was graduated from both Wesleyan and Columbia universities and is a member of the Hunter College Faculty. Mr. Farrington was educated at Dickinson Seminary, Syracuse University and the Boston University School of Theology, and was formerly on the Harvard staff. In the war he was an athletic officer in the French Army and was commissioned an officer in the Seventh and Tenth Cuirassiers.

ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Margaret McLaren Fleck, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. James Fleck, and Mrs. Fleck, of Montreal, Canada, to T. Legare Fenn of Boston, Mass., a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Edward White Fenn of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Ferguson of Yonkers announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Montague Ferguson, to Dudley Cutler Stone of Kankakee, Ill. Mr. Stone was graduated from the Horace Mann School and is now a senior at the Iowa State College.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Broer of Bay Ridge, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Pauline Broer, to Frederick Joachim Rahe, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. C. Rahe, also of Bay Ridge.

"Life Is Not a Holiday"
By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

A few days ago Mr. Frank E. Campbell came into my office, his eyes radiant with happiness.

"I just became the owner of an Aubusson tapestry, a signed piece made by Croc Pere Fils et Jorraud. It is beautiful in color and exquisite in technique. I hope you will like it."

I liked it so well that it now adorns my office wall.

"Why does Mr. Campbell place throughout The Funeral Church building such rare pieces of art, bronzes and marbles, tapestries and vases?" the visitor often asks.

Because he believes with Henry Drummond that "The World is not a playground, it is a schoolroom; life is not a holiday, but an education."

We grow by comparison and admiration; we get our own happiness by the happiness we instil in others.

Every object of beauty placed into The Funeral Church adds to give strength, peace and solace to the bereaved who come to Mr. Campbell in the hour of sorrow.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR UNUSUAL WOMAN

Wanted: a young woman for editorial position on a magazine devoted to fashion and other feminine interests.

The ideal qualifications are an understanding of correct social usage, cultivated taste in dress, interior decoration, art and literature, and ability to write in a clear, straightforward, forceful style. It is hoped to find all of these qualifications in one applicant, but letters from those possessing most of them will be given careful consideration.

The opportunity is here open for a young woman who has had professional experience in editorial or fashion work, or for one who, by birth, social environment, and travel, may have acquired the foundations for this position and can be trained to the necessary qualifications. Both classes of applicants will be favorably considered.

Applicants will please give in full their reasons, based on personal and professional qualifications, for considering themselves capable of assuming the responsibilities of this position. It is advisable, not required, that age and expected salary be stated. White H. H., 240 Times.

RUTH'S MIGHTY BLOW PUTS YANKEES AHEAD AND THEY BEAT RED SOX

RUTH SHOWS 25,000 HIS HOME-RUN TRICK

BEDLAM REIGNS IN SIXTH

With Two Out and Boston Leading, Babe's Smash Gives Rooters the Very Thrill They Wanted.

About 25,000 fans journeyed up to the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon to see for themselves just how hard Babe Ruth can hit and Babe showed 'em. He didn't hit over the grandstand roof, as he had done Saturday, but he propelled what undoubtedly was the lowest and fastest home run drive uncoiled at the Harlem park in years. The ball skimmed the concrete corner of the lower right field stand, settled in exclusive home run territory, between stand and bleachers, and started the Yanks on their way to a 7 to 1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

At some remote time in the hazy past Ty Cobb delivered a home run thump in that same areaway at the Polo Grounds and it was one of the few remaining spots where another had hit a home run which Ruth hadn't duplicated. Now all that remains for the behemoth of biff is to drive a ball into the centre field seats and close up the book. That hasn't been done yet, but Ruth is very apt to shoot one in before the young season is much older.

Ruth's hit came at what was known in the old days as the opportune time, but is now duly recorded as the psychological moment. In the opening frame Babe let a third strike drift lazily over the dish and the big crowd that had gathered to be thrilled settled back with a groan. In the fourth he knocked most of the air out of the park with a terrific but futile swing and then lofted a near home run, which Hooper snagged while his left elbow rubbed the concrete wall in right field. When he started to be a mighty cheer faded to silence as the Boston right fielder settled himself for a ball which the crowd felt was going into the stands.

Ruth Puts Yanks on Top.

In the sixth inning Babe delivered a thump that made him Cobb's partner in that exclusive territory between grandstand and bleachers. Two Yankees had singled in this frame, but two had been salted away, one at third base and the other at second, when Jones cast his gaze on Big Babe at the plate. The Yankees were trailing at the time on the vacant section of a 1 to 0 score and Pipp was on first base after forcing Peck at second.

A missed swing and a foul had Ruth in the hole before he knew it and then Jones shot up what he hoped to be a third strike. Sam never recovered from the shock. Before he could whisper jack rabbit the ball had smoked a trail toward the right field bleachers and disappeared where only one other ball ever disappeared before.

As Ruth trotted around the bases behind Pipp, stands and bleachers turned into a bedlam. Some of the fans behind the New York bench climbed on the roof of the dugout to shout their joy into Babe's ears. As he crossed the plate with the run that put the Yankees in front it seemed that all the neighbors from the apartment houses on Coogan's Bluff had joined in the noise-making. Papers and hats were tossed through the stands, and down from the upper deck came a well polished black derby hat, which settled on the lawn near the Yankee bench.

It was the second derby that had come into Babe's life in this young season. Over in Philadelphia they crowned him Exalted Wearer of the Brown Derby, and now he found another decorating his path of triumph. Considering the high price of headwear, that hat from the upper deck, tossed recklessly to the winds, told the story of some fan who had come to be thrilled and felt that he had got what he came for. Babe had been vindicated, and among friends.

Five Runs in One Big Inning.

The Red Sox had been stepping along like champions up to the time that Ruth gave his demonstration of how fast a baseball can backstep when properly approached. After that one thump the Sox folded up like an opera hat. Sam Jones had been scattering sarsaparilla all over the lawn until Babe got through with him in the sixth, and thereafter Samuel went about his work as if he had something to worry about. Two passes, two hits and a Boston error followed quickly after Ruth sent his regards whizzing past the right field fans and before the inning ended five Yankee runs had been cashed in. More hitting and two more runs in the next two frames turned the game into a rout.

Fancy fielding stunts kept the crowd in good humor during the intermissions between Ruth's turns at the plate. Wally Pipp stretched all the rubber in his lengthy frame to snag a wide toss by Peckinpaugh on Hendrix in the third inning, and got the ball in his gloved hand. In the ninth Pipp took a sizzling bounder from Hooper's bat with his bare hand and beat Hooper by a spike in the race to the bag, both sliding in. Peckinpaugh and Scott performed dazzling stunts at short field, Aaron Ward gave a fine demonstration of how third base should be played, and Lewis turned in a spectacular catch on Jones in the fifth.

Lefty Thormahlen might have checked up a shutout but for a fumble by Ping Bodie in the sixth inning. Ping tried to throw a ball before he clutched it and almost kicked a field goal before he finally captured the truant ball.

In the sixth inning the Sox got three of their eight hits off the Yankee sidewheeler. Menosky scratched a single past Pratt. Hendryx filed out and McInnis singled to centre. Foster hit to Thormahlen, whose throw to Ward retired Menosky at third, McInnis taking second on the play. Scott hit sharply over second and Bodie rushed in to make a play at the plate. A good throw would have retired McInnis, but Ping fumbled and Stuffy scored. Bodie escaped an error as the other runners didn't get any extra bases on the fumble.

That one run put the Sox in front, but the lead did not last through the inning. Ward opened New York's half with a single to right centre, but died at third when he tried to get an extra base on Peck's single to left. Pipp forced Peck at second with a grounder to McNally and Ruth obliged the 25,000 fans with one of his specialties. Before the fans had ceased cheering Lewis walked, Pratt was safe on McNally's fumble, and Bodie singled to centre, scoring Lewis and putting Pratt on third. Ping took second on the throw-in and Ruel walked, filling the bases. A Texas Leaguer to right field by Thormahlen sent Pratt and Bodie over the dish.

Despite the punishment Jones was allowed to stay and the Yanks went at him again in the seventh. With two out Ruth drew a pass, went to third on Lewis' single to left and scored on Pratt's clout to right for a base.

In the eighth Ruel opened with a single to left and Thormahlen sacrificed. Ruel stole third, being helped along by a wild pitch, and then Ward bumped a ball that landed on the top of the left field bleacher rail, struck a fan and bounded back. As baseball is interpreted at the Polo Grounds, it was a home run, but Bill Dineen couldn't see it. Ruel scored on the hit, but Ward had to camp at second base. He was left there when Peck and Pipp went out in order, Ruth as usual set to take another swing but opportunity called it a day for the big slugger.

Curves and Bingles

Babe needs only twenty-eight more homers to beat the big record he set up last season. At the rate of one a day that mark won't last long.

Ruth is showing the fans that it is possible to hit home runs into right field without touching the stand. He hit one over the roof Saturday and into the areaway yesterday.

Every member of the Huggins troupe got at least one hit. Ward, Peck, Lewis and Bodie got two apiece.

Jones's slow work in the box did a lot to prolong the game. The first five innings produced no runs, but used up one hour and nine minutes.

Bill Dineen has opinions all his own on what constitutes a home run at the Polo Grounds, as Wally Pipp, Mike Menosky and Aaron Ward can testify. Bill ruled against all three during the last three games.

Ruel tricked Menosky in the first inning by acting as if he was not going to make a play at the plate. Then he grabbed the ball and tagged Mike, who had failed to slide. It was heady baseball.

"I might not have got him," remarked Bodie after McInnis scored in the sixth, "but if I only got that ball clean I would have given him quite a tussle."

Ward continues to play a brilliant game at third base, and he is stinging the ball hard. Most of his hits smoke their way to the outfield.

Joe Bush or Al Russell will try to stop Babe Ruth and the other Yankee hitters this afternoon. Quinn or Mogridge will fling for Huggins.

If 25,000 turn out for a ball game in frigid weather like that of yesterday what would have happened if the day had been warm?

SUPERBAS GO DOWN WITH FLAG FLYING

Carry Battle with Phillies Through 13 Innings Before Yielding by 4 to 3.

Having acquired the extra-inning habit in that record-breaking twenty-six inning struggle in Boston on Saturday, the Dodgers couldn't break loose from it yesterday afternoon on their home meadow. They carried their argument with the Phillies into the thirteenth, just halving their Boston record, before acknowledging defeat by a score of 4 to 3. The Dodgers interrupted their road tour to make a Brooklyn holiday, and some 15,000 fans gave them glad greeting and sat through a game as packed with thrills as any the young season at Ebbets Field has thus far provided.

It was a cold day for baseball and the winds that swept the stands kept the 15,000 a-shiver. But there was plenty of stuff in the game itself to set the blood tingling. It was just like a story-book game, with the home nine coming from behind and tying the score on a colossal home run by the hero in the ninth—that is, it was like a story-book game with one exception. The denouement, which is theatrical slang for finish, was all wrong. After a ninth inning performance like that, every rule of dramatic climax and happy endings was violated when Philadelphia put over the winning run in the thirteenth. That was the one flaw in an otherwise perfect thirteen-reel thriller.

Zach Wheat to the Rescue.

Zach Wheat enacted the role of hero and matinée idol, and none could have played the part more handsomely. The Phils had led throughout the afternoon, going to the front with one run in the third and adding two more tallies in the seventh, mainly through a lucky home run by Le Bourveau. The Robins got two of these runs back in their half of the seventh, and thus the game was carried into the ninth, with the home team behind, 3 to 2, and George Smith going great guns in the box for the visitors. It looked to be all over except the march to the exits.

But Zach Wheat and his trusty bludgeon were still to be reckoned with. Johnston had popped to Ralph Miller for the first out when Zach staged his dramatic entrance. The Brooklyn left gardener accepted one strike, fouled off another and let two bad ones pass before Smith handed him what he had been looking for all afternoon. Zach caught it squarely amidships and sent it out in Casey Stengel's direction. In such violence that Casey took one slant at it, threw his hands up to signal "Kamerad," and watched it sail serenely over the right field wall, clearing the barrier with a yard to spare. The crowd promptly embarked into a prolonged fit of hysterics, smashing hats and vocal cords indiscriminately, and continuing the demonstration intermittently until the sad ending finally spoiled it all in the thirteenth-inning anti-climax.

Smith and Grimes in Fine Form.

It was a great game to watch all the way. Both George Smith and Burleigh Grimes pitched magnificent ball and both went the whole distance, although the latter, after blowing up in the thirteenth, gave way at the bat in that inning to Finch. Sutter Mitchell Smith deserved his victory for everything needed to win a ball game seemed to be included in his wares. But Grimes was equally deserving and the tables might easily have been turned, inasmuch as Philadelphia's two runs in the seventh were scored after the team should have been retired if only Brooklyn had fielded perfectly behind its pitcher.

Casey Stengel had his own little share in bringing about the downfall of his former clubmates. Casey made two hits in the course of the fray and got on first another time through an error. But his batting did not count in the run getting and his genuinely stellar performance consisted of a sensational one-handed catch made at the expense of Mitchell in Brooklyn's half of the thirteenth. Mitchell hooked one out in Casey's direction that looked like almost as damaging a blow as Wheat's in the ninth. It was flicked for a triple at least if ever a hit was. But Stengel backed clean up against the bleacher boards stacked next the fence in right, leaped high in the air and brought it down with one hand. If it had not been for that catch the chance would have been all in favor of the Robins tying it up again at 4 to 4.

The Phillies scored their first run in the third after two were out. Le Bourveau, who shared with George Smith the rôle of villain in the afternoon's play, looked at from a Brooklyn viewpoint, scratched a single to short. Johnston ran in front of Ward and delayed the latter's throw just long enough to permit Le Bourveau to reach first. Le Bourveau stole, being aided by a poor throw by Otto Miller, and scored on Bancroft's double to right centre.

Le Bourveau's Great Wallop.

In the Phillies' seventh Ralph Miller reached first when Ward let his grounder trickle between his feet. Tragresser forced him and Smith fouled out. But for Ward's misplay there would have been three out. Le Bourveau then came to the front with a scorcher to centre, which was just beyond Myers's reach and travelled as far as the base of the flagpole in the corner of the field before Myers could field it. Le Bourveau making the circuit and sending Tragresser home ahead of him.

Brooklyn scored twice in the same inning. Neis obtained free transportation and went to second while Bancroft was throwing Johnston out on a pretty stop and throw. Neis went to third on Wheat's out and came home on Myers's three-bagger. R. Miller was waiting for Myers at third with the ball in his mitts, but dropped it when he tried to pin it on the runner. Myers crossed the plate on Konetchy's single back of second.

ROBINS DRY DOCK SOCCER ELEVEN WINS A. F. A. TITLE, BEATING EX-CHAMPION BETHLEHEM TEAM

ROBINS AGAIN BEAT BETHLEHEM ELEVEN

Brooklyn's Crack Soccer Team Wins Battle Royal in Final Round by 1 Goal to 0.

LUCK PLAYS LARGE PART

Tally Made Against Former National Champions Comes as Result of Fluke in Second Half.

Defeating the soccer eleven of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation for the second time this season and again by the close score of 1 goal to 0, the Robins Dry Dock eleven of Brooklyn completed the dethronement of the famous steelmakers in the final round for the cup of the American Football Association at Harrison Field, Harrison, N. J., yesterday afternoon.

Fully 7,000 people turned out to witness a battle royal between two of the best trained soccer teams this country affords, but, barring the camp followers of the victors, the crowd was disappointed over the fact that the result should have hinged upon a somewhat fluky goal which came to the Brooklynites midway in the second half. The ball as it entered Bethlehem's net came directly from the foot of a Quaker full back, which gave the goalkeeper absolutely no chance to save. Indirectly, however, the tally was the outcome of determined pressing on the part of the Robins.

Robins Assume the Offensive.

The Robins were twenty-five minutes late in arriving on the scene, and kicked off after Bethlehem had won the toss. Setting the pace during the first five minutes, the dockers kept Bethlehem on the defensive, and Ratican sent in a hard shot which barely cleared the bar. Ratican had another chance when McGuire was fouled, but went wider of the mark. A sizzling ground shot by Miller was stopped by Duncan at full length upon the field and brought the spectators to their feet. A corner resulted, but Bethlehem cleared finely.

The Bethlehem players then took the initiative and their forceful tactics realized two corners in rapid succession, one on each wing. A foul was given against Bethlehem, but the latter speedily recovered. Forrest passed to Murphy, whose shot went over Renaull's head and the bar.

Again the Robins rallied, and this time Ratican floored the Bethlehem goalkeeper hard. Duncan saved the day in the nick of time, but was badly used up. Garside essayed the corner kick, but the ball went over. A few minutes later Fleming, who was back at his accustomed place at outside left, broke through, but his shot for an open goal was intercepted by Renaulli.

A Struggle All the Way.

Battering away at Bethlehem's goal, the Robins drew Duncan far out. A hard drive by Garside, however, went wild. Miller, harassed every step by Campbell, made a good attempt, only to find Duncan in the way. Another foul was given against the Steelmen and, a minute later, the referee had to warn Ratican, the Robins' centre. A good opportunity for the Robins was lost when Duncan fumbled and Ratican failed to take advantage. Misticks by both Fleming and Pepper spoiled a drive by Bethlehem, the Robins' halfbacks meanwhile doing splendid work. The ball headed and kicked for either side.

After change of ends, Miller's first opportunity went whistling aloft. Fullback Murray of Bethlehem was hurt in a scrimmage, but soon got up. Shanholt, in conjunction with Miller, starred on the left. McGuire next shot over, colliding with Ferguson. With the ball tackled against the Dockers, Murphy drove in from the right, taxing Renaulli to the limit. Ratican, Miller and Shanholt combined in an assault which failed.

Renewing the attack, McGuire crossed to Miller, who let go for the Bethlehem goal. The ball struck Murphy's foot and careened off into his own net for the first and winning goal of the game. In the mixup Ferguson had been laid low, but, as the whistle did not blow, the point was allowed for the Robins.

Sunday Practice Introduced In Rowing at Columbia

College oarsmen, for the first time in the history of rowing at Columbia University, if not for the first time in this country, held Sunday practice yesterday. With the second regatta of the year scheduled for Saturday at Annapolis, Coach Jim Rice is wasting no time which can be put to good advantage. Although local oarsmen recalled yesterday that crews while in training at Poughkeepsie before the great regatta, had occasionally held practice on Sunday, it was said that yesterday's workouts by Columbia were the first any college had ever held during the preliminary practice season. Three crews were out on the Harlem for the usual races and sprints between the Broadway and 181st Street bridges. The Columbia freshman will make their debut Saturday against the Navy, and the 'Varsity and junior crews, which rowed Yale ten days ago on the Housatonic, will also face the midshipmen eights which defeated Harvard.

FOUR TEAMS LEFT IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Steinkampf and Joliffe Reach Final in University Heights Club Doubles.

After a full Sunday's play at the University Heights Tennis Club yesterday, only four pairs are left today of the original field of forty that started the outdoor tennis season on Saturday in an open doubles tournament. Of the surviving combinations, J. H. Steinkampf and Carl Joliffe reached the final round in the lower half, while the upper brackets brought out Ichiya Kumagae and Elliott H. Binzen to the semi-finals, with Alfred D. Hammett and E. H. Henderson and R. B. Haines and Anton Von Bernuth left to fight it out for the remaining place.

Steinkampf and Joliffe reached their proud position only after a heart-breaking struggle against Ingo Hartmann and Willard Botsford, which the winners pulled out of the fire in a sensational uphill battle, in which the most courageous tennis was mingled with a fair sprinkling of good luck.

Hartmann and Botsford ran away with the opening set at 6—2, the top-notchers of the New York Tennis Club seeming unable to get under way. When the games stood 5—2 against them in the second session, Steinkampf and Joliffe were apparently hopelessly beaten. But here they began to get control of their shots, and started rolling up the points on sheer nerve. Before their rush could be stopped, the game score was 5-all.

After several alternations of service, Hartmann and Botsford again had the match served up with a lead of 40—15 and the odd game in their possession. But the two match points were saved by desperate playing, and Steinkampf and Joliffe eventually took the set at 11—9.

The rubber was a spectacular affair, with all four contestants working feverishly hard to find openings for their killing shots. Service again alternated in winning up to 5-all, with Hartmann and Botsford always the first to score. At deuce, however, the left-handed Hartmann developed a slight streak of wildness, and, with some errors at the net, the fatal break went against his side. Joliffe then sent over a succession of temptingly soft ones, three of which his opponents obligingly hit out of court. A good smash by the server produced the fourth point, and as Botsford's final shot sailed over the line Umpire William Cunningham announced the victory for Steinkampf and Joliffe at 7—5.

Ichiya Kumagae, who last year was a member of the winning team in this tournament, started in with a rush yesterday and won three matches in a row with his new partner, Elliott H. Binzen.

The summary:

Second Round—Ichiye Kumagae and E. H. Binzen defeated Gerald Donaldson and Morehead, 6—2, 8—6; Paul Martin and L. V. Robinson defeated Charles Schmidt and Herbert Buzzini, 6—3, 6—2; Alfred D. Hammett and Embree Henderson defeated Sigmund Spaeth and N. R. Sinclair, 6—4, 6—1.

Third Round—Kumagae and Binzen defeated John Whyte and H. H. Manchester, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2; R. B. Haines and A. Von Bernuth defeated Peterson and W. Schmidt, 6—1, 6—3; Hammett and Henderson defeated Martin and Robinson, 6—1, 6—3.

Fourth Round—Kumagae and Binzen defeated Bernstein and Schenkels 6—3, 6—4; J. H. Steinkampf and Carl Joliffe defeated J. W. Merserean and E. J. Clapp, 8—4, 6—4; Ingo Hartmann and Willard Botsford defeated E. R. McAllister and W. D. Cunningham, 8—6, 1—6, 6—0.

Semi-Final Round—Steinkampf and Joliffe defeated Hartmann and Botsford, 2—6, 11—9, 7—5.

TO JOIN TENNIS TOURISTS.

Miss Zinderstein Plans Entry In British Title Tournament.

Miss Marion Zinderstein, national outdoor champion in women's doubles, and one of the country's highest ranking players in women's singles, announced yesterday her plan to accompany Mrs. Franklin I. Mallory, former women's singles champion, to England to compete next month in the British championships at Wimbledon, starting June 21. Unless the unforeseen arises to alter her plans, Miss Zinderstein will sail in the party with the American Davis Cup team leaving New York on May 29.

Though Miss Zinderstein has had few chances this Spring for outdoor practice at the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, of which she is a member, she plans to get in a lot of work daily from now on in preparation for the foreign invasion. Miss Zinderstein played at Pinehurst, N. C., last month in the North and South tournament, and successfully defended her title in singles, winning also in mixed doubles with William T Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia, and in women's doubles with Miss Helen Gilleaudeau of New York.

Miss Zinderstein has been national doubles champion for two years with Miss Eleanor Goss, and also won the indoor title a year ago with Mrs. Wightman. This title was not defended this year, because of Mrs. Wightman's absence in California. Miss Zinderstein was a finalist in women's singles last year, losing in the championship round to Mrs. Wightman.

It is hoped that Miss Zinderstein, as well as Mrs. Mallory, will have an opportunity to meet Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the phenomenal French player, during her stay abroad.

If Miss Zinderstein carries through her plan to compete at Wimbledon she will be unable to defend her title of Canadian women's champion at Toronto in July. She will undoubtedly remain in England to witness the Davis Cup elimination matches in July.

Dundee-Jackson Bout Postponed.

The twelve-round bout between Johnny Dundee, Italian lightweight championship contender, and Willie Jackson of the Bronx, which was scheduled to be held at the Newark Sportsmen's Club Thursday night, has been postponed to May 14. An injury which Dundee sustained to his left eye in an exhibition bout with Spider Roach of California necessitated the postponement. The remaining bouts arranged for the original date will be conducted May 14. In the semi-final contest Augie Ratner of the Bronx will exchange blows with Len Rowlands of Milwaukee.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

A Defeat That Is a Warning.

England's sweeping victory in the American championship two-mile college relay race at the great meet on Franklin Field will serve a double purpose. First and foremost the result will cause increased vigor in pressing the campaign for America's Olympic Games competitors. Again it will more firmly cement the bonds of athletic relationship between the great English-speaking European power and America.

Twice have Oxford-Cambridge athletes visited our shores to return to England with the attainment of their objective victory in the two-mile American college title race. This condition doubtless will result in renewed rivalry between the nations. American athletes must now look forward to a renewal of the international struggle when they visit Antwerp for the Olympic Games, and another battle when the Britons visit us again for the twenty-seventh Franklin Field carnival, a visit which henceforth will be fervently anticipated.

America's prospects in the forthcoming Olympic Games are directly concerned in the outcome of Saturday's contest. There is a less solid foundation than heretofore for the confidence which has attended preparations for the Olympiad to date. American athletic officials are, or certainly should be, alive to the gigantic task which confronts them. Against the cream of the country's collegiate athletes the Britons demonstrated unquestioned supremacy. Their world's record of 7:50 2-5, with a 40-yard margin of victory proves this.

In the running of the race brilliant form was shown by Stallard, Milligan and Rudd, Tatham, too, raced in good shape considering that he was probably suffering still from an injured ankle. The quartet demonstrated beyond peradventure that they are middle-distance men of striking ability and to be reckoned with at Antwerp. Reports from abroad indicate further that England possesses dangerous men for the sprints. It behooves those intrusted with the task, therefore, to increase their vigilance and put added vigor into the work of selecting America's team of invaders.

Montague's showing in the three-mile event Friday can hardly be judged solely on the result. The race was run under wretched conditions and there is little doubt that the Briton was not yet inured to the climate. He has been in the country just about long enough to be adversely affected by the atmospheric conditions. Under sunny skies he might give the great Gordon Nightingale much sturdier opposition.

The unfortunate oversight of the officials Friday in not summoning the Britons to the starting line for the distance medley title race is lamentable. It is true that competitors are warned to be prepared to start promptly on time or a little before, because of the custom of rigidly following the time schedule for the annual classic. A deluge of rain was falling at the time and a delay of one and one-half minutes was made before starting the race, but it would seem that common courtesy would direct that a team coming such a distance should be accorded a personal notification for the race. The plan to put on a special race by way of consolation was nipped in the bud by the violent rain.

Beaten but Not Disgraced.

The failure of the United States hockey team to win the Olympic championship in the matches at Antwerp came as a keen disappointment to American sport followers, but the chagrin was tempered to a great degree by the excellent showing the seven made in all of its contests. The fact that the American players scored notable triumphs over Switzerland, Sweden and Czechoslovakia and held Canada to a 2 to 0 score furnished considerable solace and demonstrated what strides have been made in the development of amateur hockey in this country in the last few years.

There was a time, and it wasn't so long ago, when the mere suggestion of pitting an American team against a Canadian championship team would have been greeted as the season's best joke. Therefore, the fact that Canada, where hockey shares with lacrosse the honor of being the national sport and where the game has been fostered for years, should be forced to a championship while the United States finished second, should not occasion profound disappointment. Rather it should serve to convince Americans that another sport has been found at which America can hold its own.

Had the United States realized its ambition and succeeded in hurdling all opposition, including Canada, it would have been no less an occasion for surprise here in this country than it would have been for rejoicing. America sent its hockey team to the Olympics realizing that it had a fighting chance to beat the Canadians and spurred by the hope of success, but it was also quite thoroughly understood here that the Canadians would be formidable opponents.

The showing made by the Swedish hockey teams, in a measure, an American success, for the Swedes had been coached by an American, Raoul LeMat, who directed the affairs of the Swedish hockey team, was formerly a Georgetown University athlete. And the Swedes met the Canadians in the final game that decided the championship. Later the Swedes were beaten by the Americans in the series of games that decided second and third places, and then lost third place to Czechoslovakia, but prior to that the Swedes defeated France and Switzerland, 9—0.

On the whole, then, the showing made by the American hockey players was a commendable one—one which should be greeted rather with enthusiasm than with regret or disappointment. In a measure both the Americans and Canadians were handicapped by the narrowness of the rink at Antwerp. Playing with seven men on a team it was found that the rink was too narrow to permit of four forwards. Because of this it was found necessary to change the rover's play from that of a forward into the middle defense. In this respect, however, the Canadians were just as seriously handicapped as the Americans, for they, too, were accustomed to broader ice surfaces, and no American alibi can be found in the condition.

A Baseball Endurance Test.

Predictions that the current baseball season was to be a record maker are being fulfilled in various ways. Average attendance figures for April reached marks hitherto untouched, major league pitching has been far above normal in standard, and only a few days ago a fielding record for second basemen was equaled. On top of these unusual performances in the first half-month of the campaign comes the longest game ever played in major league history and that dates back to 1876.

Forty-three seasons went by without any teams engaging in such a battle as that which was fought on Saturday at Braves Field, Boston, between the Brooklyn and Boston teams of the National League. Nor was the number of innings the only record-making feature of the engagement. In going the distance without any assistance from fellow members of their respective pitching staffs, Joe Oeschger and Leon Cadore have written their names into baseball history in indelible characters. They have done something that no pitcher who went before them has done, at least in the major leagues. Furthermore, Oeschger has set up a record for shutout pitching that is likely to endure long after he passes out of the game.

Pitching twenty-one innings without allowing a run is a herculean task. Such a feat as pitching even fifteen innings requires extraordinary endurance, and Oeschger went a long distance beyond that. Cadore also did something after he passed out of the game. Another major league boxman, Arthur Nehf, had ever done before Saturday, when he blanked the Braves for twenty consecutive innings. Cadore's performance is dimmed slightly, and only slightly, by the marvelous feat of his opponent.

The pity of it all is that a larger crowd was not present to see this remarkable page written into the history of baseball, but it too frequently happens that the greatest games are played to almost empty stands. It is an axiom of the game that the huge crowds usually see the home team take its worst drubbing, and a small gathering sees it at its best. Weather conditions kept the crowd at Boston down to less than 2,000. If there was anything of the hippodrome about the sport the big events would be reserved for the great crowds, but they seldom are treated to the history-making performance. Even an interesting game cannot make a ball player lose interest inthe game at hand, otherwise there would be no such happenings as that at Braves Field.

A Crawl That Means Speed.

One of the most interesting developments of the indoor swimming season now drawing to a close has been the supremacy displayed by exponents of the four-beat single trudgeon-crawl in racing for men and by devotees of the six-beat double trudgeon-crawl in competition for women.

Tedford H. Cann of the Detroit A. C. and Norman Ross of the Illinois A. C., who use the former stroke, stand credited with sensational performances at sprinting and middle distance swimming respectively; the Misses Ethelda Bleibtrey and Charlotte Boyle of the New York Women's S. A., addicted to the latter, have shown the finest performances in the memorable field.

This curious difference in method has caused considerable speculation in regard to whether the same style of swimming is best for members of both sexes, and competent judges are of two minds on the subject.

Some leading experts assert that the six-beat double trudgeon-crawl, which features two rather wide and four narrow scissor kicks per stroke of the two arms, cannot be used so effectively by men as by women because men's muscles are not nearly so supple and undergo heavier strain in maintaining the rapid action that they require. Therefore, find the four-beat single rhythm stroke, which calls for only one comparatively wide and three smaller scissoring motions per unit, more suited to them.

Other authorities, however, do not share this view. They are convinced that the faster leg thrash is best for all and it is their opinion that the leading watermen have failed to take advantage of an improvement in method through unwillingness to test it until its superiority had been proven definitely.

The question is open to argument. While there is no denying that the greater pliancy of women's muscles may have its bearing on the matter, it must be admitted also that men champions are not inclined to undertake experiments with innovations, so that they have not given the new leg drive the necessary trial to estimate its true worth. It is quite possible, then, that with time its all-round value may be demonstrated.

It should not be forgotten, in fact, that as recently as two years ago a few theorists only believed the six-beat double trudgeon-crawl would ever become a successful racing medium even for women. But some of our fair stars did not hesitate to adopt it at the suggestion of their coaches and now they are breaking records freely with it.

The problem at issue is likely to be solved before many moons, for a number of the younger watermen are showing preference for the fast double rhythm thrash and several of the ablest coaches are teaching it. Moreover, some contestants of championship calibre have gone over to it. So there will be a chance to make comparisons hereafter. Results in competition should furnish the wanted evidence in the not distant future.

Stars of the Flashing Blade.

Whatever may be its bearing on the final selection of the American Olympic Fencing Team, the championship tournament conducted last week by the Amateur Fencers' League of America at least provided more exciting and keenly-contested competition than had any similar event in many years. An unusually choice field of contestants was entered, and, with a journey to Antwerp as the glittering goal, the struggle was spirited and at times sensational. Upsets for two of the three defending champions also enlivened the tournament.

By his double victory in the foils and sabre bouts, Sherman Hall, the New York A. C. swordsman, once again demonstrated his preeminence among American fencers. Hall has enjoyed an unbroken string of triumphs with the foils, and his new sabre title is his fourth with that weapon, he having lost the championship in this event to Arthur S. Lyon in last year's bouts.

One feature of the successful tournament, however, deserves more criticism than praise. This was the practice of allowing the contestants themselves to act as judges and directors of the semi-final bouts. In the sabre semi-finals, to cite one case, the entire work of judging the matches was done by the competitors, many of whom were engaged at this task between bouts instead of taking a needed rest.

If the final matches are important enough to be judged by men of the calibre and disinterestedness of Dr. Graeme Hammond, President of the Amateur Fencers' League, the semi-final bouts are likewise. A champion may be eliminated in the latter as easily as in the former, and the finals are not entirely the eliminating contests. Also, the judges are vested with great powers, including the power to disqualify for "rough or irregular fencing." There is really less danger that a contestant-judge will discriminate against an opponent than that he will discriminate in his favor. The average man, acting as judge on a formidable rival's match, would hesitate greatly before he would disqualify his opponent, however flagrant the offense might be.

For the sake of fairness for all contestants, the universal rule in sports is one diametrically opposed to that obtaining in last week's fencing championships. The Fencers' League would do well to abandon the questionable practice.

The Coming Golf Conference.

The average golfer, the member of the 95 per cent. group of those playing the game, is taking only a passive interest in the sentiments expressed at last week's conference to investigate proposed changes in rules. Unless he spares the time to delve into the significant and important whys and whereforos, he is very apt to ignore the matter and to let others attend to what worrying is necessary. One reason is that in the past he has bought and used the kind of ball he liked best, irrespective of whether it was technically suited to his manner of playing. Another reason is that he has rarely, if ever, played a stymie, and so refuses to get excited over the question whether or not this hazard factor of golf is retained or abolished.

But there is much more to the controversy than mere personal privilege. Farsighted devotees of the links, including the country club officials, the trustees, Chairmen of Greens Committees and those with responsibilities have discovered the real pith of the topic as the proposed standardized ball. They are polite to the manufacturers, but are skeptical when the ball makers tell them that the limit of distance has been reached. If the carry of the ball is to be increased it entails consequences that great expense will be entailed in reconstructing courses to meet the new conditions, and the present investments of millions of dollars in the links of the country will be discounted appreciably. If, similarly, the present distance of the ball is limited and it is consequently being retroactively, the present distance can be standardized while the manufacturers are to be free to develop their ingenuity as far as the weight, size and other characteristics are concerned, even then the farsighted ones want a board of arbitration, such as the U. S. G. A. to pass on such products and to prohibit freak balls made of steel, new gases, or the like. In short, those golfers who have financial interests in expensive courses have in mind above all to keep the expenses of reconstruction at the minimum, and to reduce rather than increase the cost of playing the game.

The stymie has different possibilities. Most golfers never play it now, and its retention would affect their enjoyment of the game in no way. But if the proposal to make it optional with the man whose ball is away is adopted, there is every reason to think this feature of a game of golf would find wider use. Instead of neglecting a rule, as at present, golfers would doubtless follow it with strict adherence.

The U. S. G. A. committee which will go abroad May 22 will need to use the greatest discretion. Its action will be based almost wholly on the attitude shown by the English. The last week's meeting uncovered nothing unanimous or concrete about opinions in this country. The delegates must decide each problem on its merits when they sit at the round table at St. Andrews, but they will be in a position to relay to the British many interesting angles on the proposed changes which have been unveiled on this side of the water.

GALLI TAKES FIRST IN CYCLE TRYOUT

Wins 25-Mile Olympic Preliminary Road Race in Bayonne by Strong Finish.

A. Galli of the Union Sportiva Italiana pushed his bicycle home a winner by a convincing margin over R. Graison, Acme Wheelmen, yesterday, in the second of the series of cycling road races held as preliminary tryouts for prospective Olympic cyclists. The race was conducted under the auspices of the Unione Sportiva Italiana over a twenty-five mile course on the Hudson County Boulevard, Bayonne, N. J. Galli, in a closing speed burst, wrested the lead from Graison in the final mile and easily maintained his advantage. The victor raced past the judges in the actual time of 1 hour, 8 minutes, 55 seconds. Graison followed several hundred yards back. G. Megnet, North Hudson Wheelmen, was third, one-fifth of a second back of Megnet.

Graison received a gold medal donated by the Little Club for the leader at the fifteenth mile. Thereafter, up to the closing mile, the three advance riders took turns setting the pace. Galli, in the drive to the finish line, possessed the greater strength, however, and snatched victory from his rivals.

PIANI IS WINNER AT NEWARK DEBUT

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., May 2.—Orlando Piani, bicycle champion of Italy, made an auspicious début in this country this afternoon, when he defeated John Staehle, one of the leading professionals, in two straight heats of a mile match race at the Velodrome in Newark. Notwithstanding the cold weather, the stands were packed to capacity and thousands of Piani's countrymen turned out to cheer for him. Before the race, Piani was presented with a bouquet of American Beauty roses. He rode around the track to the tune of the Italian national anthem and "The Star Spangled Banner."

Piani won the first heat of the match easily. He rode from in front, his favorite style of riding, and carried Staehle for a lap and a half. The American boy never had a chance, and Piani won by more than a length. In the second heat, however, Staehle gave Piani a great fight, but Orlando managed to nip him at the tape and won only by inches. Piani was out in front, a lap and a half from home, and looking for Staehle to ride around him. Instead Staehle jumped off the bank and came through on the pole. Staehle peddled for all he was worth, and, before Piani woke up to what was happening, had a lead of twenty yards as he dashed into the last lap. It looked like a hopeless task for the Italian champion to overtake him, but Piani fairly flew over the boards and just nipped Staehle at the tape.

Alfred Goullet, the blond haired star, won two races, taking first in the half mile handicap from scratch and beating Arthur Spencer and Raymond Eaton in the order named.

The summaries:

One-Mile Novice (Amateur)—Won by George McMahon, Newark; Harry Hoglander, New York, second. Time—2:23.

Half-Mile Handicap (Professional)—Won by Alfred Goullet, Newark (scratch); Arthur Spencer, Toronto (scratch), second; Raymond Eaton, Newark (scratch), third; Menus Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I. (45 yards), fourth; William Hanley, San Francisco (15 yards), fifth. Time—0:54.

One-Third Mile Handicap (Amateur)—Won by Burton Fenn, East Orange (50 yards); Frank Corzolino, Ridgewood (55 yards), second; Fred Kramer, Irvington (60 yards), third; Walter Stein, Brooklyn (45 yards), fourth. Time—0:37 3-5.

Australian Pursuit Team Match Race (Professional)—Won by Percy Lawrence, San Francisco, and William Coburn, Newark; William Keller, Newark, and Fred Weber, Irvington, second. Distance—3 miles 5 laps. Time—8:39 3-5.

One-Mile Match Race (Professional), Orlando Piani, Italy, vs. John Staehle, Newark—Won by Piani. First heat won by Piani. Time—2:47 3-5. Last eighth mile—0:12 2-5. Second heat—Won by Piani. Time—3:00. Last eighth mile—0:12 2-5.

Mile and One Invitation (Professional)—Won by Gus Lang, Irvington; Fred Hill, Boston, second; John Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I., third; George Chapman, Newark, fourth; Jacob Magin, Irvington, fifth. Time—4:09 1-5. Distance—Two miles.

One-Mile Consolation (Professional)—Won by Lloyd Thomas, San Francisco; Tom Bello, Brooklyn, second; Joe Kopsky, Newark, third; William Keller, Newark, fourth; Edward Byron, Australia, fifth. Time—2:16 1-5.

One-Mile, Class A, Invitation (Professional)—Won by Arthur Spencer, Toronto; Alfred Goullet, Newark, second; Raymond Eaton, Newark, third; Frank Kramer, East Orange, fourth; Oscar Egg, Switzerland, fifth; John L. Staehle, Newark, sixth. Time—2:20 4-5.

One-Mile, Class B, Invitation (Amateur)—Won by A. L. Baker, Nutley; Andrew Watts, Bayview Wheelman, second; Earl Adams, New York, third; Thomas Fitzsimmons, East Orange, fourth. Time—3:17.

Two-Mile, Open (Amateur)—Won by Anthony Young, Bay View Wheelman; Fred Taylor, New York A. C., second; Edward Bendl, Unione Sportiva Italiana, third; David Lapidi, Bayview Wheelmen, fourth. Time—4:19 3-5.

Five-Mile Invitation (Professional)—Won by Alfred Goullet, Newark; Jacob Magin, Irvington, second; Frank Kramer, East Orange, third; Gus Lang, Irvington, fourth; Raymond Eaton, Newark, fifth; Eddie Madden, Newark, sixth. Time—10:57 3-5.

GOLFERS IN YEAR'S FIRST TEAM MATCH

Richmond County Club Defeats Fox Hills, 16 to 9, in Staten Island Tilt.

That intense rivalry on the Staten Island links which exists between the two country clubs of the island had a settlement yesterday, which will remain definite until another meeting. In the first team match this Spring between prominent metropolitan clubs, the Richmond County Country Club players, on their home course, scored a decisive victory over their Fox Hills opponents by 16 to 9. All day long, on wind-whipped fairways, a dozen of the best players of each society combatted their rivals at thirty-six holes, and, although the utmost care was taken to pit the low handicap men against each other, the contests in three instances were decidedly one-sided.

The match was scored on the hole-up system, and was continuous through morning and afternoon, without separate calculation of the morning and afternoon rounds. In this way a victory was not scored as one point, but as the number of holes up after the bye holes had been played. Heading the Richmond County list were A. L. Walker, Jr., the intercollegiate champion and former Staten Island title holder. Walker was paired with Henry Miller-Jones, and scored a 2-up victory over A. C. Perry and F. E. Bressire of Fox Hills. At the end of the morning round Perry and Bressire were 3 up, the former having shot an excellent 76. But after luncheon it was the young Columbia student who carried off all the individual honors, and his 77 was mainly responsible for squaring the match and emerging with victory.

L. G. Spindler and George Worthley of Fox Hills had a 6-up advantage over E. G. Van Clief and Ralph Collins of Richmond County after another see-sawing encounter. In the morning they were 5 down at the thirteenth and 1 to the bad at the turn. Their match, however, was not the most one-sided of the day. Arthur Mann and C. H. Mills of the home club spoiled all the aspirations of Roy Barnhill and F. J. Mohr and finished 9 up.

The score:

RAILROAD WALKOUT CHECKED IN FRANCE

Trainmen Fail to Respond to Order for General Strike to Nationalize Roads.

ONLY 10,000 OUT IN PARIS

MILLERAND READY TO FIGHT

Nation Awaits Result of Call to Miners, Sailors and Dockmen to Cease Work Today.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 2.—It appears that the radical leaders of French labor are due for a crushing defeat in their new effort to force nationalization of the railroads and mines. If wide-spread strike orders were obeyed the situation would have one color, but inasmuch as obedience to their orders is only partial, the situation has an entirely different color, for the whole game of the extremists is to tie up the nation so that the Government will have to give way. They are not succeeding in doing so.

The railroad workers tried and failed dismally in February. They seized upon the general cessation of work on May Day as a fine opportunity to start again and issued orders that no workers should go back to work today.

Last night the Confederation Generale du Travail, its hand forced by the radicals, called a general strike of miners, sailors and dockmen to begin tomorrow morning. However, instead of a general cessation of work yesterday on the railroads a 70 per cent. service was maintained, and today the situation is still better, every hour seeing men coming back.

While one must wait until tomorrow to see how well the strike orders are obeyed, it may be noted that this afternoon the Secretary General of Miners in the Pas de Calais district ordered his men not to strike tomorrow because the Government will treat with them.

Walkout Intensely Unpopular.

The political strike of the railroad men is intensely unpopular, first because the railroad men have received so many increases in pay recently that they do not even incorporate money matters in their strike demands, and secondly because France has no desire to have its Government policies dictated by men who openly espouse Russian Bolshevism.

The May Day labor demonstration yesterday was one thing. Paris expected it and good-naturedly stood for it, and the fact that the day was comparatively orderly showed that the majority of the workers had no desire to join in the revolutionary demonstrations of the Reds. But the general strike for nationalization of the roads, tying up French industry, now in its convalescence from war injuries, is quite another thing and the French generally are dead against it.

An official statement says that of 45,000 railway men in the Paris district 13,000 were on strike yesterday. It is estimated that not more than 10,000 are out today and improvement is expected tomorrow by railroad officials.

This afternoon there is normal service on the northeast and central systems. On the Paris & Orleans, 90 per cent. service is being maintained, and on the Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean lines, where the radicals are strongest, 60 per cent. service is announced.

Government is Confident.

The Government is confident of the failure of the strike. Premier Millerand said today: "To cure the evils of war France, victorious and pacific, needs to work and to produce. She can neither work nor produce if the normal functioning of transportation does not supply regularly raw materials and coal.

"Such is the hour which has been chosen to ask the workers of the railroads, of the mines and of the ports to cross their arms, and thus increase the high cost of living crisis, of which they are the first victims. And for what motive? No union claims are advanced. The Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, manifesting again their sympathy, have extended the operation of the law of pensions.

"Those who are now yelling for nationalization are very much embarrassed when we ask them to put forward a clear and open formula.

"Faithful to its promise the Government will ask the Chamber when it meets again to examine the question of nationalization of railroads.

"Beneath these appeals to strike one finds only the desire to agitate the country and to prepare revolutionary movements. Public opinion is clearly hostile to this agitation and to these threats.

"The public wishes to work in peace. It appeals to the good sense of the workers to disregard this criminal agitation."

Labor leaders are flooding Paris today with appeals for nationalization of railroads, mines and electric energy. These appeals assure the public that the strikers are acting in the interest of the whole nation. But the public doesn't see it in that light.

Despite sensational statements of certain newspapers, the disturbances yesterday were of a very minor nature. Three deaths are reported, but two of them were due to automobile accidents. One hundred and three policemen reported wounds, but they are mostly scratches. Only six men of the force were hurt badly enough to be sent to hospitals. The day was far more quiet than last May Day.

There were sixty arrests of demonstrators yesterday, among them two Socialist deputies, who insisted on leading parades in violation of police orders.

Traffic on Four Systems Hindered.

PARIS, May 2 (Associated Press).—The strike of the railroad men for nationalization of the railroads, which is to be joined tomorrow by the miners and dockmen, has thus far hindered traffic on four of the five systems, said Yves le Trocquer, the Minister of the Eastern, Northern, Orleans and the Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean. Temporarily, however, the State line, which runs to Havre, is tied up.

The strike is a complete failure, Public Works, today.

Services on all lines were curtailed today. The Parisian forces were operating about 50 per cent., except the Lazare State system, which canceled all trains from the capital.

Proposes Badges of Honor For Wearers of Old Clothes

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, May 2.—Wearing of old clothes promises to become the vogue in Detroit if a movement started by David Brown, former President of the Board of Commerce, continues to grow in popularity.

Mr. Brown is convinced that the only way to combat the high price of clothing is to wear old clothes, and to induce the public to make this sacrifice he has devised a plan whereby persons wearing garments more than one year old will be entitled to wear a white band with one blue star, either on the arm or hat. Those wearing clothes more than two years old will be allowed to sport two stars, and so on.

Hundreds of women have signified their intention of taking part in the movement.

SOVIET'S WORST DEFEAT

France Stands Behind Poland with Vast War Supplies and Able Military Men.

By WALTER DURANTY.

PARIS, May 2.—While the Allies are holding conferences in the west, history is being made in Eastern Europe. In a whirlwind campaign of less than a week the Poles have inflicted the most serious defeat yet experienced by the Red Army. In the early days of the Red struggles against the White generals they had bigger losses on paper but all that that meant was the masses of troops had changed camps without fighting. This is a real defeat in battle by the hereditary enemy. May 5 is the Poles' greatest historical anniversary, and, fired by memories of the past, the Poles have momentarily at least, forgotten internal grievances in a burst of united patriotic effort.

The real goal of their offensive is Odessa, the most important port of the empire. The Poles do not pretend to seize it for themselves. By a clever arrangement whose main lines were doubtless dictated further west than Warsaw —they are now in the position of protectors of Ukrainian independence against Soviet tyranny. The Ukrainian leader Petlura will have vivid gratitude for the Polish help, and it will be his very evident interest to remain friendly with the only nation which has shown that has a powerful and active western backer. For behind Poland stands France, financially exhausted, it may be, but possessing huge stores of arms and munitions and possessing, too, able and devoted officers to instruct and lead the Polish troops. The worst malice of France's financial weakness is the enormous excess of her imports over exports, and the biggest single import is wheat. That wheat she must buy from countries whose exchange is at an intolerable premium, and that premium ever mounting. If Odessa can be opened to one of France's friends, the vast wheat stores of the Ukraine, Europe's granary, would become available to French shippers. Instead of paying in dollars, France would pay in rubles or in Polish money, both far below the French currency.

Such a contingency would be far preferable to the doubtful effects of a Polish occupation of Moscow, which might have the chief result of uniting all Russia in a bitter guerrilla warfare against them. If the Poles can behave themselves sanely and not offend Ukrainian susceptibilities and take Kiev, Kitchiney and Odessa, France will have gained the greatest victory since Foch's famous counter offensive of July, 1918. True, the Poles are still far from their objectives, but one has only to read the Bolshevist radios to fathom the utter misery of the Red forces. Ultimately speaking, a total Polish victory is certain. It will depend on the Poles themselves whether they—and France—can reap the fruits.

WALES DECLARES HE IS ONE OF THE PEOPLE

Prince Refuses to Have New Zealand Trains Run for Him and Not for the Public.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, May 2.—The Prince of Wales resumed his tour of New Zealand by train today, the strike of the railwaymen having been ended. This afternoon the Prince reached Taumarununi, having been welcomed everywhere with enthusiasm.

An interesting incident of the strike is related. Prior to the settlement of the walk-out the Prince was told that there would be no difficulty in finding men to run the royal train.

"Will they run trains for the people?" the Prince inquired.

"At present they will not," a railroad official replied.

"That being so," the Prince responded, "they cannot run trains for me. I am one of the people."

Now that the strike has been settled, however, the Prince is proceeding to carry out his tour of Northern New Zealand.

MOVE FREIGHT IN NEW WAYS

Strike Leads Railroads to Adopt Methods Requiring Fewer Men.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 2.—With freight movements showing improvement each day the railroads are beginning to assume an indifferent attitude toward the strikers. More than 200 college students, with the regulars who have returned to their jobs, have managed to put freight transportation on an almost normal basis through adoption of short cut methods devised by railroad heads under the pressure of necessity.

Some of these simpler methods of handling freight will become permanent, with the result that thousands of strikers will find there is no need for their services if they desire to go back to their old work. Regarded as of special importance is the discovery that much of the shifting and classification work formerly considered necessary part of the handling freight is needless.

The Pennsylvania system will run two merchandise trains direct from Chicago to Pittsburgh on Wednesday and Saturday next and the Pennsylvania will run solid freight trains next Thursday and Friday from New York. In both cases these trains will be put through without yarding.

This system of handling freight is being tried out in places where large freight shipments originate, such as coal and coke regions, steel towns and various industrial centers.

During the twenty-four hours ending at 8 o'clock this evening fifty-four trains, containing 1,945 cars, were moved in the Conway yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad—a new record since the strike began three weeks ago.

GEDDES WARNS OF MINORITY RULE

Tells Washington Mass Meeting Democracy Is Threatened by Materialism of Cities.

MARSHALL FOR AWAKENING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Vice President Marshall and Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador to the United States, today sounded a warning that the survival of democracy and the establishment of peace throughout the world are dependent upon a great revival of the true religion on which the civilization of the Christian world has been built.

The Vice President and the Ambassador were the principal speakers at a great mass meeting held at the Belasco Theatre in the interest of the Interchurch World Movement, and both of them declared that this interchurch movement afforded the opportunity for just such a revival.

Many men prominent in political, diplomatic and national life were present. Charles Henry Butler presided, and ex-Secretary Lansing and Secretary Alexander, as well as the Rev. Dr. Campbell Morgan of England, were on the platform.

A striking tribute was paid to the British Ambassador when, during the singing of "America," one verse was sung to the words of "God Save the King."

Geddes Sees Minorities Ruling World.

"There is a question of great importance in many countries in Europe at the present time that I believe you, too, will have to face," said the Ambassador. "It is purely political in form. It is absolutely religious in its answer. It is this: 'Is true democracy to survive, or is power in so-called democratic countries to pass into the hands of a determined minority that always knows what it wants—loot; and that knows how to get it, by bribery, perhaps, by blackmail perhaps, by terrorism perhaps, or by subtle corruption?'

"And when that question has to be asked in any nation, I believe the true answer depends upon whether a majority of your citizens are subjects of God Almighty, maker of heaven and earth, or worshippers before the false gods."

Sir Auckland said that he did not think the Church had kept pace with the industrial revolution of the last century, and that the religion upon which civilization is based had been forgotten in the great cities.

"The materialism of the city today is the millstone around the neck of democracy, which is dragging democracy down and making it possible for a determined minority, through blackmail or corruption, to compel people to agree to vote for things they do not want," he said. "That way lie destruction and disaster and the loss of all freedom that the centuries have won.

"The expanse of men's minds, plowed and harrowed by the horrors of years of war, lies open like a field ready to be sown, and just as it is ready for the right seed, so it is ready to receive the seeds of poisonous weeds. It is the sowers that we need now, and by the support you are giving this movement you make it possible for the sowers to go forth. And remember, they sow seeds that will germinate and grow only if their sowing is done in the name and for the sake of love."

Marshall Calls Churches to Action.

Vice President Marshall, honorary chairman of the Interchurch Movement in the District, said:

Gentlemen may cry 'Peace, peace!' but there will be no peace until the church resumes its functions renounces faith and proves its faith by its works. It is idle to legislate for purity, if the priest above his book can't lear at his neighbor's wife. It is vain to enact laws punishing murder, if the elders are to continue working little children to death. It is useless to forbid larceny, if the deacons make large church contributions out of excess profits wrung jointly from labor and the ultimate consumer.

"The Church, with a compassionate smile, has turned over to the State the enforcement of the moral law, and the State has failed, as it always will, to enforce it, while the man on the street sneers at the Church.

"Awake, O Zion, and if you really believe in the communion of the saints prove it by communion conduct. This is no 'holier than thou' message. I, myself, am a sinner.

"The man on the street is not tired of the words of the Nazarene. When the Church takes back the discipline of the moral and religious life of its members when it trains up its children with fixed views, when it proves its faith in the communion of the saints by its works, its courts will be thronged with worshippers, and there will be no need for patchwork legislation to reconcile labor and capital, nation and nation.

"This, O God, make the supreme desire and the one motive of all those engaged in this great movement. If it be not, then our money might as well be spent upon a Roman holiday."

BELASCO ON LONDON PLANS.

Will Sail Home Before Deciding as to Proposed Theatre There.

Copyright, 1920, by the Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, May 2.—David Belasco, the American producer, will sail homeward on the Baltic on Wednesday, after a six weeks' visit to England and France, during which he has seen every play now running.

The chief object of Mr. Belasco's visit was to confer with a British syndicate which has secured real estate in the best London theatre district and has expected him to build and run a modern theatre here, dividing his time between New York and London. Mr. Belasco has gone thoroughly into the matter, and, while he has not given a decision, he said today that he was considering the subject.

At this moment labor conditions are too unsettled to undertake a big building scheme in London, but as soon as they are settled down it is likely the plan will be carried out.

Mr. Belasco also wished to satisfy himself that there would be no opposition here against an American manager.

"I was a guest at a dinner the other day at which was nearly every London manager of importance," he said, "and every man urged me to come. There are no jealousies here against an American who knows his job, does not boast and does not try to teach the men who know as much as he does."

Belasco is taking back the offers of several British plays, but has made no definite contracts.

He is much impressed with the wealth of talent in London, especially for minor parts, and he declares he has seen a dozen girls and men who can be developed into great artists. He has their names for future reference, and New York and Chicago may see some of them before long. He regards London as one of the most promising theatrical fields in the world, where he finds the people love the theatre and every house is full all the time.

Sinn Fein Court Deports Robbers; Six Men Found Guilty, £9,000 Recovered

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, May 2.—Further startling developments have become known in connection with the robbery of £18,000 from Cork bank officials, and the subsequent kidnapping by Sinn Feiners of six men supposed to have been concerned in the theft.

It is now understood that their captors sentenced the six men to be deported and that the sentence will be carried out, but the place of deportation is being kept secret. The Sinn Fein "volunteers," it now appears, were in possession of full information as to the identity of the persons concerned in the robbery. They "tried" them and sentenced them, and it is said the men signed confessions acknowledging their guilt. The bank officials were informed that about £9,000 of the stolen money had been recovered, and that the men would be handed over to them if the officials so desired. They were also told that the witnesses would be prepared to give their evidence before any tribunal. No stipulation was made as to whose custody the banks should intrust the persons referred to, the only condition being that the "volunteers" themselves absolutely refused to have anything to do with any authority of the British Government. The offer was not accepted.

Belfast Hunger Strikers Freed.

BELFAST, May 2 (Associated Press).—Thirty-five more hunger strikers were removed from the Belfast jail to a hospital today, making sixty-nine who have been released in the last two days. There are now no hunger strikers in the prison.

George Murnaghan, a Solicitor of Omagh, County Tyrone, whose father represented the mid-Tyrone district in Parliament for fifteen years, was arrested by the military this morning and brought to Belfast. He was election agent for Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization in Northwest Tyrone, at the general elections.

Dr. Stuart, health officer at Belturbet, County Cavan, also has been arrested.

In Londonderry Saturday night, Constable Peter Henley was shot through the leg while on his beat. A party of police which hastened to the scene of the shooting also was fired on. One of the policemen was struck by a spent bullet, but was not hurt.

The police returned the fire of the attacking party, all the members of which escaped.

Land Agitation Increasing.

LONDON, May 2.—The land agitation in West Ireland is continuing to make rapid headway, according to a dispatch to The Times of London, and has spread to County Clare.

Cattle driving and other forms of intimidation are said to be of almost daily occurrence. Grazing lands are stripped of their stock, fences and gates are broken, walls are smashed and houses fired into by armed parties. Large and small holders alike are the victims. The dispatch says it is openly boasted that the "coming fight in the test for land will be one of the biggest things the country has seen for some time."

It is pointed out that the country is full of young men who were unable to emigrate during the war, and that their activities cannot find an outlet within the few acres possessed by their parents, says The Times.

BOLSHEVIKI CLAIM CHINA'S RECOGNITION

Reopening of Trade and Diplomatic Relations Is Reported by Moscow.

REDS GIVE UP CONCESSIONS

Return of Chinese Eastern Railway, Mines and Forests Offered in Manifesto to Chinese.

MOSCOW, April 29.—A Chinese diplomatic and military mission, accompanied by a number of merchants, which arrived at Verkhnie Udinsk, Transbaikalia, April 24, has reached an agreement with the representatives of the Russian and Transbaikal Governments by which the Russo-Chinese frontier is to be opened for exports and imports. Inherent rights of the Soviet Government in the Eastern Manchurian Railway were recognized and a guarantee was given for the withdrawal of the Chinese troops along the railway line. The Chinese pledged themselves to refuse passage across the frontier to troops of General Semenoff.

The re-establishment of diplomatic relations is to take effect immediately.

The Chinese mission has departed for Irkutsk.

A commercial treaty has been completed with Turkestan by a mission sent from Peking and exchange of goods between China and Turkestan has begun.

China has refused further to recognize the representatives of the former Russian Government in Peking, who have protested, together with the French officials, against the Russo-Chinese negotiations.

Return Chinese Concessions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The Russian Soviet Government has addressed a manifesto to the Governments of North and South China and to the Chinese people, intended to "open the eyes of China" and to hasten the establishment of international relations between China and the Bolshevist Government, according to information received here today from Vladivostok.

According to the advices the Bolshevist manifesto declares for the abolishment of the so-called secret diplomacy as a principle against which the Soviet authorities have insisted. It denounces the alleged wrestling of concessions from China by the allies, Japan and the Romanoff Government as criminal and deplores that, while the Soviet Government has been advising China for the last three years to regain her lost rights and privileges, China has been misled by the Allies, and remains blind to her opportunity for restoring her rights and privileges as an independent nation.

The Bolshevist declaration, as quoted in advices received here, continues:

"We hereby propose to open the eyes of China. The Soviet Government of Russia has denounced all the enterprises of conquest by the former Russian Government, and therefore will return the Chinese Eastern Railway to China without compensation. It will also restore to China all the mines, forests and gold mines obtained from China by the Governments of the Romanoffs, Kerensky, Horvath, Semenoff, Kolchak and other bureaucrats. It does not care for the Boxer indemnity. The slaves of the Romanoffs are no more, and so China must strive to escape from the slavery of those who have been beguiling her. It will abolish all the privileges obtained by Russian merchants in Chinese territories, and will denounce all treaties concluded between China and former Russian Governments.

"If China wishes to escape from the fate of becoming a second Korea or a second India, as was decided by the Versailles treaty, and to become a free nation, China must understand the reason for the existence of the Red Guards, the Russian laborers and farmers, who are the only adherents and brothers of freedom. Soviet Russia expects that China will officially co-operate with it."

CALL SOVIET TRADE PARLEY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, May 2.—A committee for resumption of trade relations with Russia was formed in Copenhagen yesterday. In accordance with the recent agreement with Russian organizations the committee will now invite an international conference, having acquainted all the foreign legations in Copenhagen with the text of the agreement.

The conference will also consider claims for compensation against Russia.

COPENHAGEN, May 2 (Associated Press).—According to the Politiken a copy of the agreement entered into yesterday between M. Krassin, the Bolshevist Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Danish trade leaders regarding a conference having as its object the reopening of trade relations with Russia, was handed to the diplomatic representatives of the United States and the Entente.

LONDON, May 3.—Russia's trade delegation at Copenhagen has decided to return to Russia, owing to the reported refusal of Great Britain to admit Maxim Litvinoff to England and because no answer was received to its appeal to the San Remo conference that the trade negotiations be transferred to some other country, says a dispatch to the Daily Herald from the Danish capital.

A few experts attached to the delegation, the newspaper says, will probably be sent to London to organize offices of the central committee of the Russian co-operative societies and endeavor to place small orders.

ALLIED AGENTS SEND PROTEST ON JAPAN

Railway Representatives in Siberia Wire Identical Complaints to Their Governments.

SAY CZECHS ARE HINDERED

And That Japanese Caused Needless Loss of Life by Failure to Carry Out Agreements.

VLADIVOSTOK, April 29 (Associated Press).—The members of the International Railway Board, with the exception of the Japanese member, yesterday forwarded to their Governments an identical telegram which places them on record as protesting against the actions of the Japanese military in Siberia.

The telegram charges the Japanese with actually delaying the evacuation of the Czechs, instead of assisting them, for which purpose it is stated the foreign troops are supposed to be in Siberia. It adds that the Railroad Committee believes that representations to the Tokio Government would result in securing a proper observance by the Japanese command in Siberia of the Inter-Allied Railway agreement.

"The Railroad Board," says the telegram, "having examined reports of the action of Japanese troops in the railway districts are of the opinion, first, that General Semenoff systematically set aside the terms of the allied railway agreement. Second, that the Japanese military acquiesced and themselves usurped the functions of the allied railway organization, and aided in the confusion of traffic and actually delayed the progress of the Czechs, and, third, that the Japanese military by placing troops at principal points on the Chinese Eastern Railway, which the allied agreement assigned to the Chinese to guard, and allowing such detachments to interfere with matters affecting railway traffic, provoked conflicts resulting in needless loss of life to Chinese, Russians and Czechs, and also jeopardized the movements of trains."

"BOYS' DAY IN SCHOOL."

Exercises Part of United Boys' Week—General O'Ryan to Speak.

Boys in all of the city's public and parochial schools will take part today in observance of "Boys' Day in School," a part of the program of United Boys' Week, the good citizenship movement sponsored by the Rotary Club and affiliated organizations. Yesterday the boy was the topic of sermons in many churches.

About 150 speakers will address the gatherings in the schools, the Boys Week Committee, of which Mortimer L. Schiff is Chairman, announced. Among the speakers will be Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo, Senators James J. Walker and Loring Black and Fiorello LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen. A feature of the exercises will be a thirty-minute song program, outlined by Superintendent of Schools William L. Ettinger. A message from Governor Smith, to be read, will say:

"Success does not mean great wealth. True success is found in living a good life, being a good citizen and bringing joy to your parents and honor to your city, State and nation. Success crowns the life of every man who lives according to the laws of God and country."

Tomorrow will be observed as "Boys' Day in Athletics." The Boy Scouts of America announced that May 30 to June 6 would be observed as Boy Scouts' Week throughout the country.

POINCARE OPPOSES FIXING INDEMNITY

GIBE AT SPA CONFERENCE

Rheims, Verdun or Ypres, He Says, Would Have Furnished a More Fitting Setting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 2.—Raymond Poincaré, ex-President of the French Republic and head of the Reparation Commission, comes out as strongly opposed to the proposal to fix at Spa the total sum which shall represent Germany's debt to the Allies. To name such a sum now, he says, when Germany is at the lowest ebb of her fortunes, would be for France to surrender much of what is due her from a Germany capable of paying much more than may appear today to be a reasonable sum. M. Poincaré also makes the point that the Treaty of Versailles has become a law of France by its ratification, and that a limit indemnity could not be fixed without action by the French Parliament.

The Matin will publish tomorrow a long article by the former French President, presenting his point of view. It is a skilful defense of Premier Millerand's proposal to fix a lump sum, but to regard it as the minimum which could be increased if it became evident that Germany could pay more.

M. Poincaré entitles his article "The Voice From the Ruins." He begins by recalling that on account of Millerand's firmness the Germans were not called to San Remo, and that they were invited to Spa only after having received a solemn warning from all the Allies that they could expect no favors unless they showed better faith in the keeping of their treaty obligations. Then he says that the conference should have been held in a city which the Germans had ruined in the war.

"It seems to me," he writes, "that at Dixmude or at Ypres, at Rheims or at Verdun, a conference consecrated to the execution of the treaty would not have been out of place. The allied diplomats should meet the German diplomats in a ruined cathedral to talk over what Germany owes."

Quotes Treaty as Indemnity.

He then quotes the language of the treaty to the effect that Germany is responsible for the losses caused by the war, and that the amount she shall pay shall be measured only by her ability to pay. He recalls that specifically the treaty says that Germany must pay the losses sustained by French civilians.

"Let the chiefs of the Governments open the treaty and read that Germany must pay 'damage to injured persons and to surviving dependents by personal injury to or deaths of civilians caused by acts of war, including bombardments or other attacks on land or sea or from the air,' and let them have before their eyes not the pretty little boats of the Mediterranean or of the cool streams of Spa, but the long procession of innocents struck down by German bombs; old men and sick people killed in the hospital of Rheims; children killed in their homes by the bombardments of Inter-Allied Railway agreement.

"The Railroad Board," says the telegram, "having examined reports of the action of Japanese troops in the railway districts are of the opinion, first, that General Semenoff systematically set aside the terms of the allied railway agreement. Second, that the Japanese military acquiesced and themselves usurped the functions of the allied railway organization, and aided in the confusion of traffic and actually delayed the progress of the Czechs, and, third, that the Japanese military by placing troops at principal points on the Chinese Eastern Railway, which the allied agreement assigned to the Chinese to guard, and allowing such detachments to interfere with matters affecting railway traffic, provoked conflicts resulting in needless loss of life to Chinese, Russians and Czechs, and also jeopardized the movements of trains."

$500,000 Fire at Camp Travis Said to Be of Incendiary Origin

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 2.—A fire, said by military authorities to have been of incendiary origin, did damage estimated at $500,000 in an Ordnance Department warehouse at Camp Travis, near here, today.

Rifles, machine guns, automatic rifles and revolvers, trench knives of various types, all new equipment and valued at $700,000 were stored in the building, but much of this stock was safely removed.

With the approach of May Day a warning to guard against possible plots to destroy the camp was passed among officers, firemen and military police.

The blaze started apparently underneath the building. J. L. Hogan, Chief of the Camp Fire Department, said he passed the building on an inspection of the guard twenty minutes before the alarm was turned in and saw no evidence of fire at that time.

FATHER ADVERTISES FOR MISSING GIRL

Louis Bulte Complies With Note Demanding Ransom for Daughter.

POLICE FIND NO CLUE

Child Disappeared While on Her Way to Bank With $265.

Louis Bulte, father of Henrietta Bulte, 14-year-old school girl who disappeared two weeks ago, declared last night that he had arranged to advertise today his willingness to ransom his child. The father said that he took this step in compliance with a demand made by the girl's kidnappers in a note sent to the Bulte home at 116 East 118th Street.

The police, baffled from the start, admitted shortly after Mr. Bulte announced his decision that they were without clues.

The parents of the girl, who was a pupil at Public School 159, in 119th Street between Second and Third Avenues, gave out the disappearance was the result of a love affair. The anonymous note, printed with a rubber stamp, which the father of the girl received read as follows:

"Your daughter Henrietta is safe and held for ransom. Advise in Monday's Globe if you wish to ransom Henrietta R."

The girl's father said he had sent an advertisement as directed to be inserted in today's Globe, asking how he was to meet his daughter and how much ransom she is being held for. The letter has been turned over to Detective Sergeant Gisselbrecht, of the Bureau of Missing Persons. The police said last night that no clue to the whereabouts of the girl had been obtained.

She was last seen on Saturday, April 10, when her father, who is a Cuban sugar manager, gave her $265 to take to Harlem Savings Bank to deposit. She never reached the bank, where she still has $500 of her own money deposited. When she did not return her father notified the police. The case has aroused the lower Harlem section, and many searching parties have toured the neighborhood in the last two weeks.

The girl's father and mother said last night that Henrietta was a "very quiet" girl. They said she occasionally went to parties, but always returned early.

SAYS BAKU ARMENIANS FACE EXTERMINATION

Allied High Commissioner's Message Tells of Azerbaidjan Moslems' Crimes.

The Armenian inhabitants of Baku face extermination at the hands of the Azerbaidjans, according to Colonel William N. Haskell, Allied High Commissioner to Armenia, in a message made public yesterday by Charles V. Vickrey, Secretary of the Near East Relief. The message was received through the American Relief Administration and says:

"The situation of the Armenians resident in Baku is critical notwithstanding the attempts of the Azerbaidjan Government to afford them protection against popular outbreaks. Crimes of every type are committed daily against the Armenians by local minor officials and natives of Baku. The rich Armenians are mulcted of large sums under various pretexts. Armenian shopkeepers are robbed by Azerbaidjan soldiers, Baku police, or any one so disposed, without redress.

"The Near East Relief guard on one train reports that Armenians were dragged from the train and butchered before his eyes. Travelers by train point out the Armenians to the Azerbaidjan Moslems at a thousand rubles a denunciation. (At present rate of exchange, 1,000 roubles is a little less than $5.) The slightest incident is liable to cause a general uprising of the Azerbaidjan populace, resulting in the massacre of the entire Armenian population of Baku.

"The recent crisis in Baku is the result of the hostility between the Azerbaidjan Harfars and the Armenians in the mountain district of the Karabagh. The dispute is between the two countries. I feel impelled to tell the Peace Conference that the Armenian inhabitants of Baku face extermination, although they are not parties to the questions at issue between the two governments, and although they are peaceful and law abiding."

The Near East Relief also received a message from Colonel Haskell dated April 26, reporting that at the international conference between representatives of the Republics of Armenia, Azerbaidjan and Georgia in Tiflis, April 9 to 11, resolutions were adopted to end the conflict between the little republics of Transcaucasia.

"It is certainly permissible to seek today means of payment such as progressive annuities, which, while final reckoning is reserved, will better present the situation of Germany. We have, as well as our Allies, a desire to see Germany pay reasonably, but on one condition: that today or tomorrow, now or later, she pay as what she owes us. We do not wish that in fifteen or twenty years, when she shall have recovered all her prosperity, our poor people of the North and East continue to weep in their ruins."

MAY DAY RIOT IN URUGUAY.

Twelve Wounded in Fight with Police at Montevideo.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, May 2.—Twelve persons were wounded by revolver shots in a fight between the police and 500 workers during the May Day demonstration.

The shooting began when the police intervened to stop workers from attacking street cars, one of which was overturned and others stoned.

The street car employes were virtually the only workers who did not join the May Day strike.

DEDICATE MARY ZINN HOME.

Children's Institution Gift of Arthur Zinn in Mother's Memory.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 2.—The Mary Zinn Home for children convalescent from heart diseases, the gift of Arthur Zinn of New York City in memory of his mother, was dedicated this afternoon with speeches by Bird S. Coler, Controller of New York, Dr. Joseph Silverman, Mrs. Arthur Zinn and Mrs. Benedict L. Ernstein, President of the Board of Directors.

The buildings, equipped with all modern appliances for caring for children recuperating from heart attacks, will house fifty. A schoolhouse and a farm are attached to the home.

Free Now to Reveal Prophecies Made in June, 1917, Clergyman Asserts.

AMERICAN MANDATE URGED

J. W. Gerard and Bishop Burch Join in Pleas at Mass Meeting to Help Armenia.

Speaking at a mass-meeting arranged last night by friends of Armenia in the Synod Hall of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise told for the first time of a promise made to him by President Wilson in the White House at the end of June, 1917, shortly after the United States entered the war.

"Dr. Wise," the President said, "when the war will be ended, there are two lands that will never go back to the Mohammedan apache. One is Christian Armenia and the other is

THE SCREEN

"The Bottom of the World" is the title given to the motion-picture record of Sir Ernest Shackleton's last Antarctic expedition and the first half of it is at the Rivoli this week. It is the real feature of the program, by virtue of its ability to entertain and, thank Hugo Riesenfeld or whoever is responsible, by the emphasis placed upon it in advertisements of the bill. Instead of jogging along in the well-worn rut and ruining it merely as a filler because it lacked the conventional hero-heroine-villain device, Dr. Riesenfeld apparently realized that he had something genuinely dramatic and interesting in his possession and ventured to announce it as his chief attraction of the week.

The only fault to find in this connection is that Dr. Riesenfeld did not go far enough. Instead of showing only half of the film, in conjunction with the usual photoplay, why didn't he dispense with the photoplay entirely and give the complete Shackleton story? As it is, spectators are only getting into the story when it breaks off. They are just beginning to feel the reality and strength of it when it stops. It's not the kind of story that should be broken up. It has no crisis at which action may be suspended while each spectator holds his breath for the next chapter. It gains dramatic momentum as it moves along and to stop it at any point before the end is to waste the force it has gathered. This might not be true if it were inordinately long, but, judging by the exasperatingly brief bit shown at the Rivoli this week, the entire film would not have taken as much time as the average photoplay uses up. With the increased and increasing number of motion picture theatres on Broadway, is it too much to hope that some manager is free to do so, will vary the regular run of so-called, but often miscalled, dramatic pictures by devoting the better part of his program to such a work as "The Bottom of the World" whenever he can get it? But in the meantime, there is reason to be grateful to Dr. Riesenfeld for as much as he has done at the Rivoli this week.

The picture is a photographic record of the explorer's trip. First there are interesting scenes on board Shackleton's ship, the Endurance, which are followed shortly by the first glimpses of icebergs. There are some excellent pictures of seals, and a number of views of sea and ice expanse are of majestic beauty. Perhaps the most fascinating part of the film is that showing the Endurance breaking her way through a field of ice and finally brought to a standstill in it. There are other scenes of the activities of the explorers—and then some one comes out and plays a violin or sings or does something, and it's time for the next picture.

The photoplay at the Rivoli is an adaptation of Henry Payson Dowst's story, "The Dancin' Fool," directed by Sam Wood, with Wallace Reid in the leading role, supported by a first-class cast, including Bebe Daniels, Raymond Hatton, Willis Marks, Tully Marshall and others. The story cannot be anything but a farce, and, one imagines, it could be a very entertaining farce with adequate speed and fewer feet of film. It's about a bright boy from the country who puts jazz into his old-fashioned uncle's business and dances a la jazz in a restaurant at night. In the end, of course, he makes the business a whirling success and marries his dancing partner. Director Wood had material here suited to Reid's aptitude for foolishness, but he let the story take itself seriously in places and drag along under the impression that it was becoming a romance or something related to life. The result is that "The Dancin' Fool" is interesting only in spots.

The Rivoli program is enlivened by a gay Harold Lloyd farce, entitled "An Eastern Westerner," which is also at the Strand and Rialto.

The photoplay at the Strand is "Riders of the Dawn," derived from Zane Grey's novel, "The Desert of Wheat." Many of the old stock situations of melodrama have been brought up to current of popular ideas of a modern industrial Wild West to make this rampant thriller. The chief villains are a crooked lawyer and a company of hoboes, who, presumably, represent the I. W. W., and the hero is an interesting young fellow just returned from the war who takes off his uniform to straighten things out at home. The story might be called "Action Unlimited," and many, undoubtedly, will be thrilled by it, but an Easterner imagines that it will seem much like a comedy to many real Westerners of the wheat growing regions. Those who keep the action at ten speed are Roy Stewart, Claire Adams, Robert McKim, Frederick Starr, Violet Shram and Frank Brownlee, all of whom give good characterizations in their stereotyped parts. Also most of the pictures are exceptionally well made.

At the Capitol this week is a crook melodrama of little distinction entitled "The Deep Purple." It is based on a play by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner, and was directed by F. A. Walsh. The principal members of the cast are Miriam Cooper, Helen Ware, Vincent Serrano, W. J. Ferguson Stuart Sage and William B. Mack, who act well except when they overact, which is not infrequently.

"The False Road," with Enid Bennet, is at the Rialto this week; Cecil B. DeMille's "Why Change Your Wife?" remains at the Criterion, and "A Man There Was," with Victor Seastrom, continues at the Broadway.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Charles B. Dillingham's production of "The Girl from Rome" will open tonight at the Globe Theatre. "Honey Girl" will be presented at the Cohan and Harris Theatre by Sam H. Harris.

"All for a Girl," a musical comedy, with book and lyrics by Raymond Peck and music by Percy Wenrich, has been placed in rehearsal by Gleason-Black, Inc. The cast includes Ray Raymond, Delly Connelly, Tom Lewis, Josephine Stevens, Denman Maley, Clara Macklin and others.

"Keep Her Smiling," played here two seasons ago by the late Sidney Drew, will begin a tour in Montreal tonight with the English comedian, David Miller, in the leading role. Isabel Withers and De Witt C. Jennings will be others in the cast.

"Ladies' Night," a farce by Avery Hopwood and Charlton Andrews, will be produced in New York by A. H. Woods in August. Fay Marbe, seen here in a number of musical productions, will have a leading role.

Jess Ruben will have the principal role in "The Checkerboard," a comedy by the Hattons which Comstock and Gest will soon try out.

E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe will sail for England on the Adriatic on May 29. They will begin their second week at the Shubert Theatre tonight in "Hamlet."

George Nash of "East Is West" sailed on the Red Star liner Kroonland for Southampton with his wife, Irene Hay, to take part in the play which he said would open at the Queen's Theatre, London, May 24. Ernest Lawford, the English actor, also sailed on the ship to visit his family in London.

Because of the inability of the Plaza Theatre, at Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue, to accommodate the crowds that tried to see John Barrymore in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" last week, the management has added the picture to this week's bill. It will be shown again next Thursday. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will also be shown at Daly's Theatre on Thursday and Friday.

E. RAY GOETZ RETURNS.

Brings Rights to "My Man" and "Phi Phi," Now Playing in Paris.

E. Ray Goetz, who returned from Europe on the Lapland Saturday, brought with him the Parisian rights to two Parisian productions. One of these, "My Man," is a serious play by Andre Picard and Francis Carco, and the other is a musical piece, "Phi Phi," by A. Willmetz, F. Sollar, and H. Christine. Both are now playing in Paris.

Mr. Goetz also has obtained an option on all the works of the French revue writer, M. Rip, the original author of "As You Were." The first of these to be seen here will be London, Paris and New York. In August, also, Mr. Goetz will place in rehearsal a musical fantasy entitled "How Do They Get That Way?" the work of himself and Glen MacDonough. Three companies of "As You Were" will be sent on the road next season.

Serbian Children's Benefit.

A benefit performance in aid of Serbian children will take place at the Knickerbocker Theatre on Sunday night, May 16. The performance is being arranged by Mrs. Viola Allen Duryea and A. E. Anson, and will be under the patronage of Prince Regent Alexander of Serbia. Tickets have been placed on sale at the Knickerbocker Theatre and at Serbia House, 7 West Eighth Street.

ZIEGFELD TELLS OF PLANS.

Billie Burke Not to Appear in "The School for Scandal" Till Fall.

Billie Burke's announced appearance as Lady Teazle in "The School for Scandal," Florenz Ziegfeld declared yesterday, has been deferred until the Autumn. Thomas A. Wise and Norman Trevor will be among those in Miss Burke's support, and after a brief season in New York Miss Burke will tour for the balance of the year.

Mr. Ziegfeld's other plans include the presentation of the 1920 "Ziegfeld Follies" at the New Amsterdam Theatre early in June, and the production of three or four more musical pieces during next season. Among these, it is promised, will be a piece featuring Leon Errol to be written by George M. Cohan and produced by Messrs Cohan, Erlanger and Ziegfeld; an operetta of which Mischa Elman will write the score; a musical comedy starring Eddie Cantor, written by James Montgomery and Joseph McCarthy, with music by Harry Tierney; a production starring Marilynn Miller, and, in association with Messrs Erlanger and Dillingham, another Raymond Hitchcock revue.

Last year's "Follies" for the first time will be continued on tour after the new edition has opened here. Mr. Ziegfeld also plans to send a "Midnight Frolic" company on tour, and will produce new shows on the New Amsterdam roof some time in June.

Provincetown Players to Return.

The Provincetown Players, who will conclude their sixth season (their fourth season in New York) next Friday night, announce that they will reopen in October, and that they will again present six bills during the year. In the past season, for the first time, each of the six programs has been played for a period of two weeks, instead of a single week. Subscribers are being sought for the new season, and in the meantime efforts will be made to refit and improve the hall at 133 Macdougal Street which the Provincetown group has been using as a theatre.

$20,000 FOR MEMORIAL.

Stage and Auditorium Crowded at Hammerstein Concert.

The Oscar Hammerstein memorial concert at the Hippodrome last night realized nearly $20,000 from the sale of tickets and programs. The audience crowded both the auditorium and the stage. John McCormack, who closed the first half of the concert, was vociferously recalled after singing his programmed three numbers, and responded with "Pal o' Mine" and "Mother Machree." In the lobby two more members of the McCormack family had done their bits—the singer's children, Cyril and Gwendolyn, who assisted in the sale of programs.

Eleanora de Cisneros sang several additional numbers by way of filling the void created by the absence of Mme. Tetrazzini, who was ill, and Emma Trentini appeared in the costume of "The Firefly" to sing "Giannina Mia." The program also included Nicola Zerola and Frank Pollack. The orchestra was conducted by Hugo Riesenfeld, Mr. Hammerstein's concertmaster at the Manhattan, and by Josiah Zuro, who had been his chorusmaster.

Present conditions have resulted in a great deal of short-term financing because many Governments, Municipalities and Corporations needing funds are unwilling to pay present high rates of interest over a long period. This gives the investor an exceptional opportunity to get sound security coupled with a high rate of interest.

We shall be glad to send investors a list of such Short Time Bonds upon request.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Credit Scarcity Lays Retarding Hand on Current Business—Easement Awaited.

Speculation continued last week to draw back its outposts under pressure from surrounding credit forces. It is too early yet to determine whether there were other important and lasting influences at work besides those visualized through 12 to 15 per cent. call money for the stock market. But of tight credit there was no question, and the position of the Federal Reserve Bank showed in terms unmistakable that for the time being agricultural and business needs of the interior were getting the right of way over less material demands in the markets. Rediscounts for other Reserve Banks figured prominently in the local bank's loan account, and when it is considered that a total of about $85,000,000 of such rediscounts appeared in the weekly statement, whereas there were none three weeks ago, evidence is not lacking that credit strain throughout the country has increased decidedly. Some of the reasons are not difficult to discover. The Spring season entered without the usual easement of money rates, and this, by itself, was indicative of an unusual load upon the banks. Financing of crop planting is amplified over other years because of high wages and high costs of machinery and fertilizer. The requirements of industry and trade have been expanded by the same powers affecting agriculture, and to add to the difficulties of manufacturers and distributing agencies the railroad strikes have tied up an immense amount of goods in warehouse or in transit. When products cannot be moved freely from factory to consumer payment is delayed, and instead of liquidating bank loans with expected proceeds of sales producers are forced to borrow more in order to maintain working capital. It stands to reason, of course, that part of the current credit strain is temporary. The railroads will gradually lessen congestion at terminals and remove embargoes on the receipt of new shipments. Loans will be reduced. There is a possibility that loans in the near future will be reduced to a degree greater than will be entailed in the release of funds congealed in goods which were halted on their way to consumers. Not only is banking opinion firmly committed to a contraction of the general loan account, but also signs are not lacking that the distribution of goods will be hastened by thoughts of lower prices later on. The trade reviews mention an increasing tendency of merchants to cut down their stocks, impelled by the resistance of the public to high prices.

The possibility of declining exports and of competition from imported goods is attracting increased study in the security markets. This, however, is like many other problems which have arisen since the armistice, impossible to answer because of the multitude of influences bearing upon the world's needs of American products. The Federal Reserve Board pointed out in its survey of business conditions during April that the surplus of goods, which at another time would tend to lower prices, has been absorbed through continued heavy exports. Imports are growing, but exports hold a rate of increase over the corresponding period of last year which fails to tell of anything except a great outflow of raw material and finished products for many months to come.

The question uppermost in stock market circles is this: Did the severe reaction of the second half of April foreshadow a lasting movement in the retrenchment of business, or was it merely a jolt administered by lack of credit for speculative use? The fact stands out prominently that the decline began almost immediately after news came of a drastic readjustment of business to a more conservative basis in Japan. There is not, however, a direct parallel to be drawn between conditions here and in the Far Eastern country. Speculation in securities and commodities in the United States was never so headlong as reports show it to have been in Japan, and the trade positions of the two countries are quite dissimilar. Japan experienced an unfavorable trade balance of some $130,000,000 in the first quarter of 1920, which naturally had an adverse effect upon domestic industrial undertakings. It corresponded to an overproduction of goods. In the United States there is a vast underproduction and such price concessions as have occurred appear to be the result, as has been said, of exasperation of consumers over prices and not of a flooded market. There are authorities who maintain that a reaction of prices instead of bringing a curtailed demand would actually make the demand more healthy, presupposing that the extravagance seen in many directions during 1919 is definitely on the wane.

Whatever may be the theories or deductions from business conditions, they are, from the stock market point of view, outside the immediate effects of tight credit. The speculator sees that average industrial and railroad shares have fallen about 13 points since April 1, with declines running from 10 to 50 points in particular issues, the favorites of a great body of traders. Clearer than suppositions of business improvement or depression is the fact that when call money, still the Wall Street barometer of credit, climbs above 9 or 10 per cent. it is difficult to "bull" stocks and the way to "bear" stocks is made easier. Sentiment follows the ticker to a much greater extent than the ticker record is made from day to day by the trend of sentiment. Thus, last week the persistent decline of quotations was more efficient in making the Street blue than the unsettling rumors which spread abroad. A vigorous rally at the expense of a big short interest would give the market community, including speculators and investors both, a fresh viewpoint of industrial developments and show once again that the country was not going to the dogs.

It is a Presidential year, which is another way of saying that it is a year of stock market uncertainties and frequent and often unexplainable changes of the price front. The preparation of election issues will involve Governmental fiscal policies, and the present discussion of means to raise a bonus for the soldiers shows the prevalence of wild ideas for enhancing tax levies. Doubtless, an element which added to nervousness in the financial markets last week was the proposal for what would amount to a tax on capital through a retroactive impost on war profits, beginning at a level so low as to be confiscatory. Fortunately, the later news from Washington disclosed small chance of such a measure being pressed, but the tentative program impressed upon bankers and business men the need for careful study of future taxation schedules, steering away from those liable to handicap industry to a degree greater than in the last two years.

OUTPUT OF TEXAS FIELDS

As the drilling of new tests in wildcat territory in Texas proceeds, good results are reported and the prospects of new fields are encouraging. Texas, as an oil State, holds a strong position in the extent of its productive territory, while its potential oil area is of vast extent, as the geologists see it.

It is due to confidence in the permanency of the Central West Texas fields that enormous amounts of money are being spent in the construction of new railroads, the building of towns, the laying of pipe-lines, the erection of refineries and the making of various other improvements. If the history of oil production in other regions is repeated, these new fields will last for an indefinite period.

DECREASE RECORDED IN LEHIGH INCOME

FEDERAL FIGURES LOWER

Statement Reflects a Drop of from $6,763,406 in 1918 to $3,779,427 Last Year.

The annual report of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for 1919, which has just been issued shows a decrease in net corporate income of $1,615,621 to $4,977,213 from the preceding year after gross corporate income decreased from $14,247,659 to $13,164,444. The income statement of the United States Railroad Administration which operated the property through the year showed a net income at the close of the year of $3,779,427, as compared with $6,763,406 in 1918. This was $7,537,709 less than the annual compensation of $11,316,196 due the road, which was therefore the actual Federal deficit at the close of the year.

The balance sheet of the company as of Dec. 31, 1919, showed investment in road and equipment of $97,341,104, representing only the railroad proper, total road and equipment investment of the entire system being shown at $218,215,-348. Total current assets at the close of last year are shown to have been $13,061,093, and total current liabilities were $5,010,741, leaving net working capital of $8,051,351. E. E. Loomis, President of the company, in his remarks to stockholders stressed the fact that the road had been undermaintained during the period of Federal control.

He said in part:

"Previous standards of renewals and maintenance of tracks were not continued while the road was in the Government's hands. During the three years before Government operation, which have been used as a test period, an average of 397,195 ties was placed in our tracks annually. In 1918 only 580,097 were installed, while in 1919 the number was 662,031, an average of 626,014 annually for the two years, or 241,141 ties a year less than the test period average.

"A similar showing is made with regard to steel rails. The average number of tons laid during the test period was 30,062 tons annually. Only 13,626 tons were laid in 1918 and 15,082 in 1919, an average for the two years of 14,354 tons annually, which is 5,738 tons a year less than the yearly average during the test period.

"During the year the Government continued to grant increases in the rates of pay of various classes of employes. In the twelve months just ended $34,857,043.15 was paid by your company in wages, an increase of 41.8 per cent. over 1917, the last year before Government control. In the same time the freight tonnage decreased 694,503,030 ton miles, or 10.4 per cent. Demands for large increases in wages by various classes of employes were pending at the end of Government control.

"Loss and damage claims on freight paid during the year amounted to $1,-945,420.47, an increase of $699,978.93. A spirit of lawlessness throughout the country, which has been noted since the beginning of the war, continued with little abatement during the year. It showed itself in the freight claim losses through pilfering and also in the activities of the railroad police department. The department made 3,449 arrests, obtaining convictions in 3,336 cases, and there were thirty-one cases still pending at the end of the year."

Touching on the higher prices paid by the railroads for fuel during the year Mr. Loomis said:

"The past year saw continued increases in the cost of materials consumed in the operation of a railroad. Coal used in locomotives offers an excellent example. In 1917, the last year before Government control, the company's bill on this account amounted to $2,293,154.14, representing supply coal at an average price of $2.65 a ton. The same quantity in 1919, when the average cost was $3.06 a ton, would have cost $2,501,197.33, an increase of $208,043.17.

"At the close of the year there were 10,942 stockholders with an average holding of 71.54 shares. As compared with 1918, the number of stockholders increased 2,435 or 28.7 per cent. The number of women stockholders is now 6,139, an increase of 908."

TO INDUSTRIALIZE PRISONS.

National Committee, Under Adolph Lewisohn, Pressing Reforms.

Under the leadership of Adolph Lewisohn the National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor is pressing its campaign throughout the country for the abolition of the chain gang and the contract system in prison administration. Instead the committee wants all prisons industrialized and the inmates changed from tax consumers to income producers.

Mr. Lewisohn in a statement yesterday said:

"One of the objects of the committee is to make prisons and prisoners self-supporting. The Governors of the different States and prison administrators depend upon the committee for expert aid and advice.

"This organization has accomplished much since 1909. It has made surveys resulting in exposure of exploitation in prisons and prisoners by private contractors. It has co-operated in work for betterment of prison labor conditions which the American Federation of Labor was carrying on; it has educated the public on prison laws and supported special penal legislation; it has established the principle that prisoners are human beings and that prisons are training institutions. Much detail work has been completed, all having a tendency to make an honest man of the prisoner and lessen responsibility of the community with regard to his future."

DENIES HOOKER'S CHARGE.

Baker Says Gas Manufacturer Asked Control War Production.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, May 1.—Denial of the charge made by Elon H. Hooker, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, that the War Department was negligent in supplying poison gas to the American Expeditionary Force was made by Secretary Baker in a letter received today by John M. Howie. Mr. Hooker, who is head of an electro-chemical manufacturing company, has made the charge in speeches throughout the State.

"At the time we entered the war," Mr. Baker's letter says, "we had had practically no experience in manufacturing toxic gases and no existing facilities which could be readily converted to such use. At the signing of the armistice we were equipped to produce gas at a more rapid rate than France, England or Germany.

"Production of gas and a capacity for filling were at all times well ahead of the supply of containers to be filled. We shipped to Europe 3,642 tons of gas or its equivalent, which was largely loaded in shell or used by the United States troops or those of the Allies. We sold excess gas to both England and France."

Mr. Baker added:

"Mr. Hooker applied to me to be placed in sole charge of chemical production with uncontrolled power. I declined."

At Niagara Falls tonight Mr. Hooker reiterated his assertion that although large amounts were spent by the Government for gas, not a bit of it reached the other side.

Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee

A letter from Mr. Charles F. W. Wetterer, of the Stone & Webster Management Division and President of the Company, a copy of which will be supplied upon request, is summarized as follows:

BUSINESS AND FRANCHISES

Eastern Texas Electric Company, a Texas corporation, owns and operates the entire electric light, power and street railway business in Beaumont, Texas, the entire electric light and power business in Port Arthur, Texas, and the interurban electric railway between Beaumont and Port Arthur, a distance of about 20 miles. None of its franchises expire before 1943 and practically all of the interurban railway mileage is located on right-of-way owned by the Company.

TERRITORY SERVED

The Company operates in one of the most important oil refining centers and the largest rice producing area in the United States. The Texas Company's plant at Port Neches, which takes a large amount of power, is the largest asphalt plant, and the Port Arthur plant of the Gulf Refining Company is ranked as one of the largest oil refineries, in the world.

PROVISIONS OF ISSUE

These Notes are direct obligations of the Company (which has only $1,663,000 mortgage debt outstanding) issued under a Trust Indenture which provides, among other covenants, that neither the remaining $500,000 of this issue nor any other bonds, notes or obligations (except bank loans maturing not later than one year, and equipment obligations) shall be issued unless, for eighteen consecutive months out of the preceding two years, earnings applicable to interest charges have been equivalent to at least twice the interest on all the Company's funded debt, including the bonds or notes proposed to be issued.

EQUITY

Junior to these Notes there are outstanding $1,400,000 cumulative 8% preferred stock and $1,400,000 common stock. Dividends on common stock, into which these Notes are convertible, have been as follows: 4½% in 1916, 5% in 1917 and 1918, 6½% in 1919. The present rate is 8% per annum.

EARNINGS

Calendar Year	Gross Earnings	Operating Expenses and Taxes	Net Earnings and Other Income	Total Interest Charges	Balance for Amortization, Reserves, Dividends
1913	$440,442	$270,582	$212,532	$87,427	$148,105
1914	673,095	401,932	271,183	94,138	177,025
1915	723,091	386,447	336,644	98,061	238,583
1916	826,314	444,422	381,892	99,112	282,780
1917	956,074	516,935	440,900	115,874	325,026
1918	1,131,752	662,159	477,369	139,218	338,151
1919	1,390,250	853,577	544,173	146,967	397,206

Since 1913 net income applicable to interest has shown a continuous increase and in 1919 was over 2⅛ times all interest charges on the Company's mortgage debt and these Notes.

Price 96 and interest, to yield about 8%

Safeguarding the Investor

Number One of a Series

There is an annual loss in the United States of hundreds of millions of dollars which are put into so-called investments pictured in glowing terms and sold to the credulous by unscrupulous promoters.

Many millions of dollars are also lost through the exercise of bad judgment involving undue risks. The good faith of the management and promoters may be the best, but unfortunately that will not avoid the consequences of basic infirmities.

With the tremendous increase which has occurred in the number of investors caused by the wide influence of the Liberty Loan campaigns, it is unfortunate that so many of those who have just begun to learn the wisdom of saving and investing should risk losses through fraudulent promotions or unwise speculation.

Recognizing this, the governments of many states have sought by Blue Sky Laws to protect investors from get-rich-quick promoters. Similar Federal Laws are also in the making.

We strongly urge the investor to select as his adviser any of the long established and widely known investment banking houses whose record over a period of years is an assurance of ability, integrity and responsibility. If this is done, the first and most important step toward his protection would be achieved.

In a series of brief advertisements, Hambleton & Company will endeavor to recall to the experienced investor, a number of important services which are rendered by the conservative investment banking houses of America. We hope also to suggest a few precautions to the less experienced and assist them to determine the safest and most profitable employment of their funds.

We shall appreciate your consideration of these advertisements as they appear and invite any comment you may care to make.

SEES WORLD DRAIN ON OUR GOLD STORE

Return to This Standard Said to Mean Demand for War Increased Stocks.

MUST READJUST CREDITS

Increased Commodity Production Suggested to Help Correct Conflict's Money Havoc.

These countries which, as a result of the war, have acquired an abnormal percentage of the world's gold stock, are likely to experience a persistent demand for their present holdings of the metal until something approximating equilibrium is again attained, and to meet this situation a readjustment of the credit structures of countries such as the United States, some of those in South America and Japan, China and India, will be necessary, according to a writer in the Commerce Monthly, published by the National Bank of Commerce.

A necessary development in aiding the correction of the present monetary problems will be a return to the gold standard by all nations in the commercial world, the writer thinks. To bring this about, he says, the prevention of further inflation, the more or less gradual reduction of the volume of outstanding currency and credit and a substantial increase of production of all needed commodities are necessary. He also predicts that gold will be employed for money uses more effectively in the future than it has been in the past.

It is shown in the article that between 1913 and 1918 the money stocks of gold in France decreased from $1,300,000,000 to $844,000,000; in Great Britain, from $830,000,000 to $590,000,000; in Russia, from $1,012,000,000 to $412,000,000, and in Germany, from $916,000,000 to $720,000,000. Meanwhile in the United States the gold money stock had increased from $1,905,000,000 to $3,165,000,000. Using the year 1913 as a 100 per cent. basis, currency in the larger countries had by 1919 increased as follows: United Kingdom, 244 per cent.; France, 375 per cent.; Italy, 435 per cent., and Germany, 876 per cent. During the same period the currency expansion in the United States reached only 171 per cent.

In countries which have developed the use of credit to a high degree, the war occasioned a similar expansion in the volume of credit. In England, according to a recent estimate, the volume of bank deposits, exclusive of those in the Bank of England, approximated £1,070,000,000 prior to the war and at the end of 1919 totaled £2,500,000,000, an increase of 115 per cent. In the United States deposits subject to check increased from $6,520,000,000 in June, 1913, to $21,064,000,000 in June, 1919, an advance of 147 per cent.

"The war played havoc with the world's money, and its restoration to soundness is one of the major problems now to be solved," the article says. "Good money is necessary to the working of our existing industrial order. The restoration of money standards that will be reasonably uniform throughout the commercial world and reasonably stable over periods of time, clearly is desirable. A return to the gold standard, which constituted a workable system before the war, seems the most practicable way out of present difficulties.

"Eventually the resumption of gold convertibility in the several countries will involve a redistribution of the world's stock of the metal. As gold is restored to its monetary uses in those countries now on a paper basis, which are sufficiently strong to undertake the process of deflation, their requirements for the metal will increase. In some other countries, which are too weak to follow a vigorous policy of deflation, the possible clearing away of worthless paper currencies may leave a money vacuum to be filled by some sort of special money. This also would occasion a considerable demand for gold. Consequently those countries — the United States and South American and Oriental nations—which as a consequence of the war have acquired an abnormal proportion of the world's stock of the metal, may reasonably anticipate a persistent drain on their holdings, compelling the readjustment of the credit structure within themselves until an appropriate world equilibrium has again been restored.

"In the future, however, it may be expected that gold, in its money uses, will be employed much more effectively than in the past. During the war, throughout Europe and America, gold disappeared from actual circulation and has been concentrated in the reserves of central banks. With the improvement of credit facilities there is less and less reason for its actual employment in circulation. In the United States before the war the people generally preferred substitutes for hard money. The war has probably done a good deal toward educating the people in the more important European countries to the same view. The stocks of gold, therefore, will be held in bank reserves. Its freedom of flow between monetary and commodity uses will continue unimpaired; it will serve as in the past in settling foreign trade balances. Thus, with little or none of it in actual circulation, gold may again serve as the standard of circulating media and as a regulator of the volume of outstanding credit."

VALUE OF IMPORTS SHOWS A BIG GAIN

MORE LEATHER PRODUCTS

Diamonds Jump from $5,300,000 to $48,100,000 in Corresponding Period.

From present indications, imports from European countries in the fiscal year will be the greatest in value in our history. In the year before the outbreak of the World War European exports to this country totaled $900,000,000 a year. In the closing year of the war these had decreased to $318,000,000, about a third of the normal amount. The surprising thing about the record imports is that they are composed largely of luxuries, including diamonds, art works, laces, embroideries, silks, high grade cotton and woolen goods and kid gloves. Colonial products which are now coming to the United States through Europe are hides and skins, raw cotton, furs, wool, jute, and india rubber.

"In many instances," says a statement issued by the National City Bank, "especially on the luxury side, the increases are very large. Diamonds, for example, imported in the eight months ending with February, 1920, practically all of them from Europe, amounted to $48,100,000 in value, against $5,300,000 in the same months of last year; art works, brought chiefly from Europe, $21,715,000, against $3,850,000 in the same months of the preceding year; cotton laces and embroideries $7,200,000, against $3,200,000 in the corresponding months of the preceding year; silk laces and embroideries in the current year $4,312,000, against $1,489,000; walnuts from France and Italy $6,050,000, against $210,000; olive oil from France, Italy and Spain, but especially the latter, $10,910,000, against $923,000 in the same months of last year; silk fabrics $2,110,000, against $861,000; silk wearing apparel $3,050,000, against $802,000; and raw silk, chiefly from Italy, $23,007,000, against $86,000 in the same months of the preceding year. One class of articles which falls outside the luxury list is burlaps, brought from the United Kingdom, but manufactured from East Indian jute, valued at $9,230,000, against $1,580,000 in the same months of last year.

"Just what proportion the colonies supply of the enormous value of the hides and skins which Europe is now sending us cannot," says the bank's statement, "be specifically determined at this moment, but it is at least a fact that the value of the hides and skins sent us from Europe in the eight months ending with February, 1920, probably largely colonial, is $33,000,000, against a little over $1,000,000 in the same months of the preceding year.

"Of the $35,240,000 worth of india rubber which Europe sent us in the eight months of this year, as against $532,000, all, of course, is produced outside of Europe, and chiefly in the colonies of Great Britain, Netherlands, Belgium, France and Italy. Of the $14,347,000 worth of pig tin sent us from Europe, against $4,230,000, practically all was produced in the Malayan Peninsula, and the Dutch East Indies, but sent to us from their 'mother countries' in Europe, Great Britain and Netherlands, respectively. Of the $21,960,000 worth of wool sent us from Europe this year against $15,000 worth last year, presumably a very considerable proportion originated in the colonies.

"Other items of merchandise sent from Europe in much larger values this year than last include leather, $12,070,000 against $250,000 last year; woolen manufactures, $21,825,000, against $9,572,000; furs, $13,900,000, against $4,600,000; raw cotton, chiefly Egyptian and chiefly sent from the United Kingdom, $14,592,000, against nothing in the same months of last year."

12,000 WOMEN PLEDGED TO 'STAPLE' CLOTHES

Members of Women's Clubs of Pittsburgh Take Action to Cut the Cost of Living.

PITTSBURGH, May 1.—Twelve thousand members of the Congress of Women's Clubs of the Pittsburgh district have pledged themselves to wear only "staple" clothing until prices of more modish garments drop and to place a two weeks' ban on potatoes in a campaign against the high cost of living. Officers of the congress announced today that the campaign would be launched at once and that the 12,000 women who would take part in it would urge their friends to co-operate with the clubs.

The congress met last night and discussed ways and means of combatting high living costs. Miss Helen Grimes, President of the congress and a member of the Federal Fair Price Committee here, told those present that "staple" clothing was sold at far lower prices than articles of the same quality of material cut and trimmed in conformity with the latest styles.

BEECH-NUT PACKING COMPANY

Two to Five Years Seven Per Cent. Gold Notes

Dated May 1, 1920 Due May 1, 1922 to 1925

Denominations $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal

Interest payable May 1st and November 1st at Liberty National Bank, New York

Callable at any time on sixty days notice at 101 and interest

We summarize from the letter of Bartlett Arkell, President, copies of which may be had on request:

The Company has been engaged for over twenty years in the manufacture and sale of bacon, ham and other food products. It operates three main plants, two in Canajoharie and one in Rochester, New York. The buildings are modern and of standard construction.

Upon the completion of this financing these notes will constitute the only indebtedness of the Company except for current accounts payable and reserves for taxes.

Net assets after deducting all indebtedness except these notes are 4.20 times the amount of this issue and net quick assets are 2.36 times the amount. The Company agrees to maintain net quick assets at all times of 150 per cent. of the amount of this issue.

The net earnings applicable to interest for the past six years have averaged $1,026,000, or over seven times the interest charges on these notes.

The Company agrees that no other indebtedness except purchase money mortgages and pledges for temporary loans will be created during the life of this issue.

We offer these notes when, as and if issued and received by us, as follows:

$500,000 due May 1, 1922 @ 98.90 and interest
500,000 due May 1, 1923 @ 98.40 and interest
500,000 due May 1, 1924 @ 98 and interest
500,000 due May 1, 1925 @ 97.50 and interest to yield approximately 7.60 per cent.

Provision for Your Family

IT IS A WISE POLICY to take into consideration the possibility of reverses during life, and to provide for the future out of the plenty of the present.

This can be done by placing cash, securities or property in trust with this Company, the income and the principal to be paid as you direct.

The advantages of such an agreement —known as a voluntary trust—are many. It provides experienced and efficient administration for the funds or securities set aside; it assures every safeguard for the principal, and the highest interest return consistent with safety; it relieves the maker of the trust of personal attention to the management of the affairs placed in our care, and at the same time gives him the opportunity to direct their handling in such manner as may be agreed.

At any of our offices members of our Trust Department staff will welcome the opportunity to discuss with you the business phases of your individual trust problems.

PARLEY TO TAKE UP WORLD COMMERCE

Sixth Session of Interparliamentary Body to be Held This Week in Paris.

NO REPLY FROM AMERICA

Our Attache Will Attend as Observer—Living Costs, Exchange, Transport on Program.

PARIS, May 2.—World problems, such as the high cost of living, exchange, commercial transportation, aerial commerce and national debts, are on the program of the International Parliamentary Conference of Commerce which is to be in session at the Luxembourg from May 4 to 7. Two hundred delegates have already arrived, and others are on their way. Belgium, Brazil, China, Finland, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Japan, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia will be represented. While an official invitation has been sent to the United States to send delegates, no answer has been received. Ambassador Wallace, however, has designated a commercial attaché of the embassy to attend the sessions as observer.

Reports on the various subjects have been prepared and will be submitted in the form of resolutions recommending courses of action. The conclusions arrived at, it is expected, will be considered at the Brussels financial conference and be taken as a basis for further discussions.

Among the reports is a recommendation for the formation of an international committee, with the United States, Holland, Norway, Spain and Sweden represented, to consider exchange, credits, transports and labor conditions in all countries.

The high cost of living discussion will centre around plans for increased production. Concerted action to better the exchange situation and proposals looking to the aid of the weaker countries which are still suffering from the war are to be considered.

Aerial navigation is regarded in the reports prepared as a subject which concerns better commercial and political conditions, and Government aid to develop this service is to be suggested. The advisability of increasing the use of ferryboats to carry loaded freight cars, it is expected, will form a phase of the discussion over transportation. But, as a preliminary to adopting this plan, the report shows, there must be standardization of railway equipment and railway gauges to permit free circulation of freight cars in various countries. It is pointed out that "production and wealth have no better stimulant than the suppression of distances and barriers to the free exchange of merchandise."

The furnishing of limited raw materials to the Central Powers to aid them economically is another recommendation to be made. This will suggest that the supplies be furnished by all the countries according to their resources.

As a means of stabilizing prices it will be proposed that there be a standard for hours of labor and wages, taking into consideration all local conditions.

The Interparliamentary Conference was inaugurated before the war at the instance of the Commercial Committee of the British Parliament. It first met at Brussels in June, 1914, under the patronage of King Albert. Annual meetings, with the exception of 1915, have been held at Paris, London or Brussels. The coming session is the sixth.

SAYS ILLITERACY AIDS REDS.

Dr. Stires Speaks at Anniversary of Washington's Inaugural.

A service celebrating the anniversary of the first inauguration of George Washington on April 30, 1789, was held yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church. It was under the auspices of the Colonial Order of the Acorn.

"We have in our midst certain elements which are against our institutions and are even plotting to overthrow our Government," said the Rev. Dr. E. M. Stires. "These elements must be eliminated, and the problems they are using as a nucleus for their seeds of agitation cannot be solved by mere intellect or force, however strong they may be. They can be solved only by qualities of individual character.

"The solution lies in the development of a moral and intellectual training, statistics having shown there are 10,000,000 persons in America who cannot read English and 5,000,000 who cannot speak it. It is this great multitude who are deceived by the professional agitator."

FOR SOVIET TRADE PARLEY.

Danes Invite America and Entente to Join Conference.

COPENHAGEN, May 2.—According to the Politiken, a copy of the agreement entered into yesterday between M. Krassin, the Bolshevist Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Danish trade leaders regarding a conference having as its object the reopening of trade relations with Russia was handed to the diplomatic representatives of the United States and the Entente.

At the meeting, which was composed of men prominent in Danish commerce, industry, shipping and finance, it was agreed to issue an invitation for an international conference at Copenhagen to all the countries interested in opening trade relations with Russia.

The Danish committeemen decided to take it upon themselves to arrange the details of this conference in agreement with the Russian co-operative societies.

MORE STATEN ISLAND BUSES

Two New Lines Lighten Traffic Difficulties—Strike Unchanged.

Two new city bus lines were started on Staten Island yesterday to meet the emergency caused by the strike of the employes of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company. One line ran to Midland and South beaches and the other from St. George to the Sea View Hospital. Cold weather kept the crowds away from the beaches, preventing a rush, but the line to the hospital was taxed to such an extent that the number of buses was increased from five to ten.

Travel on the other Staten Island lines was light yesterday and the municipal buses handled the traffic without difficulty. The strike conditions were unchanged, the Richmond lines remaining at a standstill, while the strikers stuck to their original demands for a substantial increase in pay.

ONLY CASH USED IN AUSTRIA

Forged Stamp Currency Creates Confusion in Business.

VIENNA, May 2.—Bankers and business men are still seeking a solution of the problem presented by the large quantity of currency in circulation which bears forged stamps.

Meantime the country has been reduced to cash transactions, one hundred crown and smaller notes being used. These are being exhausted and speculators are demanding stiff premiums. There is the greatest confusion because of the necessity of finding some means of meeting payrolls and end of the month settlements.

Twenty-eight instances of forgery have been discovered recently.

MONTEFIORE HOME EXPANDS

S. G. Rosenbaum Outlines Projected Improvements for Year.

During the year 1919 the cost per capita of maintaining the Montefiore Home and Hospital at Gun Hill Road and Jerome Avenue, the Bronx, represented an increase of about 4 per cent., S. G. Rosenbaum, President of the institution, said yesterday in presenting his report at the annual meeting. The total income from all sources for the year was $494,249.48, and the expenditures $491,469.79.

Mr. Rosenbaum said the steadily mounting cost of conducting the institution called attention to the situation which met the home in its relations with the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. To the home for 1920 has been allotted by the federation only the minimum amount called for under the federation guarantee, namely, about $128,000. This was the same sum received during the year 1915, Mr. Rosenbaum said.

During the last year the home has been able to open a semi-private ward with fifty beds, which was set aside for patients who could afford to pay a moderate charge. Mr. Rosenbaum called attention to the system of occupational therapy which, he said, had worked out so successfully in the institution. He announced the intention of re-establishing a research department and laboratories. In addition to an income of $10,000 per annum from a fund created by Jacob H. Schiff, $15,000 a year has been pledged by some of the Directors to meet the expenses of this work, Mr. Rosenbaum said. Work on a pavilion, for which Mr. Schiff contributed $150,000 two years ago, has been resumed, and it will be ready by the end of the year.

"We are pleased to announce that we are engaged upon plans for a new country sanitarium at Bedford Hills and a committee headed by Frederick Stein is now studying the problem," Mr. Rosenbaum said.

Commissioner of Charities Bird S. Coler paid a tribute to Mr. Schiff, who resigned from the Presidency last year after thirty-five years of service. Others who spoke included Mr. Schiff and Judge Samuel D. Levy.

CONTROL GERMAN EXCHANGE

Government Department Will Look After Purchases Abroad.

BERLIN, May 2.—Questioned whether credit purchases from American packers and other foreign agencies would not unduly burden the German balance of trade at a time when the payments are due and when marks possibly would be at a lower level than at present, Robert Schmidt, Minister of Economics, replied that he was not apprehensive on that score if Germany's credit received no greater setbacks through political disturbances.

The Government Foreign Exchange Department, through which credits are arranged, said the Minister, has already fully justified its existence, as shown by the steadiness of the mark rate. This department, he added, would form the nucleus of an institution for the centralization of all foreign exchange business, which is considered desirable and which is universally advocated. Between September and December its turnover was 700,000,000 marks, he declared.

"Although the scarcity of commodities in the Empire remains great," continued Minister Schmidt, "we still must restrict ourselves to the bare necessities. We avoid buying precipitately and immoderately despite the incessant clamor from local bodies for more food imports. We will try to extend our purchasing operations, both in foodstuffs and raw materials, but we must go slow. Otherwise we might find ourselves up against the provisions of the Peace Treaty. We must avoid that, and, above all, avoid burdening the future budgets to an undue extent."

SEIZE SMUGGLED TREASURE.

German Officials Take Rich Store from Persons Leaving Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 2.—During the last two weeks the German customs authorities at Oldenzaal, on the Dutch frontier, have seized precious stones to the value of 7,000,000 marks, bank notes totaling 600,000 marks, and £400 in English money which passengers endeavored to smuggle out of Germany.

Detectives resort to all sorts of schemes, mingling and talking with passengers on the trains in order to seize valuables at the frontier. The control is becoming stricter.

ASSERTS AMERICANS FACE OIL SHORTAGE

Bureau of Mines Predicts Reserves Will Be Exhausted Before End of Summer.

GREAT INCREASE IN MOTORS

Geological Survey Estimates We Will Use Up All Our Own Resources Within 18 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The latest figures on the world's oil supply compiled by the United States Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior show that the foreign countries are using only half as much petroleum as the United States, but have seven times as much oil in the ground.

These countries are now using about 200,000,000 barrels of oil yearly, but they have resources large enough to last more than 250 years at this rate of consumption. In striking contrast are the production figures for the United States, which at the present rate of more than 400,000,000 barrels a year has only an eighteen-year supply. In other words, the United States is using up its own oil supply fourteen times as fast as the rest of the world.

"Not counting all to be obtained from shales and other retortable materials by distillation," said the announcement, "the world's supply of recoverable petroleum amounts to as much as 60,000,000,000 barrels. Of this amount 43,000,000,000 barrels may be regarded as oil more or less definitely 'in sight' as shown by actual drilling with successful results. The remainder covers the available oil which it is believed will be found in other regions in which oil seeps, asphalt deposits or favorable geological conditions point to oil, although no producing wells have yet been drilled. Of this great amount, which is thirteen times the oil already taken from the ground in America and about nine times all the petroleum yet produced in the world, 7,000,000,000 barrels only, in round numbers, are believed to be left in the United States and Alaska, the remaining 53,000,000,000 being in foreign countries.

"This latter supply is nearly equally divided between the old world and the new, the Americas having a total very close to that of the remaining continents. However, as in the case of coal, much more oil will be developed north of the equator than to the south.

"Fortunately it is simply impossible to discover and take out the oil remaining in the ground in the United States, 7,000,000,000 barrels, in so short a period as eighteen years. Instead of mining our petroleum so rapidly, we must either depend more and more on oil from other sources or get along with less oil. Our children will doubtless do both."

WASHINGTON, May 2 (Associated Press).—Warning of the probability of an actual shortage of gasoline before the end of next Summer, as a result of the disproportionate increase in gasoline production and the number of automobiles in use, was given in a statement issued today by the Bureau of Mines. With the number of automobiles and trucks now in use estimated to be 23 per cent. greater than last year, gasoline production, it was said, increased only 11 per cent. in February and 20 per cent. in March.

HIGH COST OF PROFITEERS.

British M. P. Says It Has Cost £1,000 Each to Convict 24.

LONDON, April 23.—Twenty-four convictions obtained before the 1,900 anti-profiteering tribunals set up throughout England have cost more than £1,000 each, according to a statement made by Captain Wedgwood Benn in the House of Commons, in the course of the discussion of a proposal to extend the Profiteering act.

Captain Benn summarized the results of the act, during its first six months of life, by stating:

"Nineteen hundred committees have been appointed, 1,935 cases have been heard (one case per committee), twenty-four convictions have been obtained, £25,000 has been spent—and the cost of living has gone up!"

Supporters of the bill argued that six months had not given the administrators of the law fair opportunity of demonstrating its worth.

LABOR GREETING TO DEBS.

Parade of 4,000 Precedes Workmen's Circle Convention in Newark.

More than 100 automobiles were in the parade of the Workmen's Circle in Newark yesterday preceding the opening of the twentieth annual convention of that organization at the Krueger Auditorium here. About 4,000 men and women took part in the parade and about half the marchers crowded into the auditorium, while police reserves were needed to disperse the overflow.

Soon after the convention opened the 150 delegates adopted a resolution sending best wishes to Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, who is in a Federal prison. Ex-Congressman Meyer London of New York, Abraham Kahn, Editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, Louisa Baskin, General Secretary of the Workmen's Circle, and others addressed the convention in Yiddish.

The delegates are from all parts of the United States and Canada. The Workmen's Circle is composed of Jewish workers and has a membership of 80,000, with 635 branches.

SWISS REJECT 8-HOUR DAY.

Washington Labor Congress Ruling Found Impracticable There.

BERNE, April 30.—The Government considers it impracticable to carry out the eight-hour working day, as provided by the Washington Labor Congress. Parliament came to this conclusion at its closing session today.

It was proposed that there be a broader interpretation of the Labor Congress decision, or that it be amended.

BADEN FACES FOOD STRIKE.

Appeal to Berlin Caused by Recent Disorders in Germany.

GENEVA, May 2.—A serious food shortage in the Duchy of Baden is reported by the Basle National Zeitung correspondent, who attributes the scarcity to the interruption of normal conditions through the recent events in the Frankfort region.

The local Government of Baden, the correspondent says, has sent emissaries to Berlin to obtain relief.

Workmen are threatening a general strike unless more food is received. Baden is without meat, butter, potatoes and milk, while the bread sold contains only 20 per cent. wheat.

Hospitals are reported to be crowded, most of the patients being children.

Destroyers Hunt Lost Airman.

NICE, April 30.—The French aviator Renaud, one of the competitors in the trans-Mediterranean flight from Monaco to Bizerta, Tunis, and back, is missing since he left Cagliari yesterday afternoon. Cagliari is in the southern part of the Island of Sardinia, in the Mediterranean. Destroyers have been sent out to search for him.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE PILGRIMS' LANDING

TO COMBAT RADICALISM

Exhibitions, Pageants and Public Meetings to Mark Observance in Many Cities.

A national celebration commemorating the tercentenary of the sailing and landing of the Pilgrims to bring "to the consciousness of the American people the meaning and priceless worth of our free institutions" and to "challenge with these free institutions the false principles and vicious practices of the extreme radical and all those who would conspire against orderly self-government and American national well-being," is being planned by the Sulgrave Institution, named for the ancestral home of George Washington in England.

The celebration, according to the plans announced yesterday, begins June 4 with the carrying out of an educational program in the public schools. Dr. James Sullivan, the Secretary, has sent out educational sheets to 25,000 schools. These sheets will be supplemented by matter to be sent broadcast by Commissioner Claxton of the United States Bureau of Education.

At various times during June, the Summer and Fall, there will be exhibitions by museums, &c., of historic relics, early American art, &c. This is being arranged under the auspices of a special committee, of which Dr. George F. Kunz of Tiffany's is Chairman. Associated with him are Robert W. de Forest, President Metropolitan Museum of Art; Edwin Hatfield Anderson, Librarian, New York Public Library; Leila Mechlin, American Federation of Arts; Henry Fairfield Osborn, President American Museum of Natural History; A. Augustus Healy, President Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, and others.

Celebration in Holland.

Celebrations will be held in Holland and in England during July, August and early September. American committees are represented by special delegation, which includes Judge and Mrs. Holt, Major George Haven Putnam, Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis and Mrs. Hillis, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman and Mrs. Cadman; James M. Beck and Mrs. Beck, Major Gen. Tasker H. Bliss and Mrs. Bliss, Percy N. Furber and Mrs. Furber, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Seaman, Col. W. C. Beecher and Mrs. Beecher, Charles H. Strong, Martin Vogel and Mrs. Vogel, Peter Fletcher, C. Altschul, Washington E. Connor, Judge Alton B. Parker, Mrs. Eva Follett Warner, Charles Stewart Davison, Mrs. Catharine R. Chenoweth, Mrs. Arthur H. Kimball and daughter, and Frank Aydelotte of the Alumni Association of Rhodes Scholars.

Other features of the celebration are: Two days following Sept. 20, celebration in Provincetown; following week, New York City, and the first week in October in Norfolk and Hampton Roads. Later in the month celebration in New Orleans, and on other dates, Buffalo and the Niagara Frontier and in other American towns and cities.

More than 2,000 American cities and villages have indicated their intention of having local celebrations consisting of public meetings and pageantry.

Nov. 11—Armistice Day and signing of the Mayflower Compact; celebration by civic organizations throughout the English-speaking world, program for which is now in the making.

Thanksgiving Day—Universally celebrated in all English-speaking countries and with religious meetings in all churches, &c.

On some Sunday in November universal church service throughout the English-speaking world.

During the Summer or early Fall a bust of George Washington will be unveiled in St. Paul's Cathedral, London. The British committee will also unveil the Saint-Gaudens Lincoln presented to London by Elihu Root, Nicholas Murray Butler and others.

It is also proposed to signalize in some special way on July 30 the tercentenary of the meeting of the first American Legislative Assembly as marking the very beginning of the establishment of free institutions on the American continent.

Address to American People.

A printed address to the American people, signed by Vice President Marshall, Secretaries Daniels and Baker, General Pershing, Rear Admiral Sims, Herbert Hoover, Alton B. Parker, as Chancellor of the Sulgrave Institution; the Governors of nearly every state, J. P. Morgan, Oscar S. Straus, Samuel Gompers, several United States Senators and many other prominent Americans, was made public by the institution. It will be presented for official record in the United States Senate today.

The address says in part:

"War's reaction, universal absorption in business and work of reconstruction seem to have made Americans less regardful of primary things—things of principle, tradition and heritage—which relate to the foundation upon which the United States of America rests.

"It so happens that the year 1920 is doubly significant historically, in that three hundred years ago, beginning the 30th of last July, there was being held in Jamestown, Virginia Colony, the first American Legislative Assembly called by free men, of lawful age and of full understanding.

"And while these first Americans were instituting self-government on the American continent, a little group of English humble-folk who, during a twelve years' sojourn in Holland, to which they had fled from Britain to be free to worship God in the manner of which their conscience approved, was already making ready to go to America and establish in the New World a home of religious freedom.

"So one year after the Virginians had met in Assembly—July 30, 1620—these men and women and children of the Pilgrim band left Leyden for Delftshaven, from which they were to sail for America, by way of Southampton and Plymouth, in the mother country.

"By one of those strange coincidences which sometimes seem to set aside certain days and endow them with traditional significance, July 30 and November 11 take on such an endowment—for July 30 joins Cavalier and Pilgrim together as twin sources of that high inspiration which met in the Convention of the Great Constitution, and November 11 is not only the anniversary day of the Mayflower Compact, the second assumption by English colonists in America of an unalienable right of self-government, but is also the memorable day of the beginning of that armistice which closed the great war, in which the descendants of Pilgrim and Cavalier and their kin across seas fought and won together.

"Therefore, the year 1920 being a historic anniversary year—as well as the fifth year of overmuch dangerous propaganda, false counsel and loose statement by public characters—it would seem to be vitally essential that there should be brought to the consciousness of the American people in a great national celebration the meaning and the priceless worth of our free institutions; and that Americans everywhere should challenge with these free institutions of the English-speaking world the false principles and vicious practices of the extreme radical and all those who would conspire against orderly self-government and American national well-being."

POWER CO.'S EARNINGS RISE.

Northern States' Report Shows 17.67% Gross and 16.21% Net Gain.

The annual report of the Northern States Power Company for 1919 shows an increase of 17.67 per cent. in the year's gross earnings while net earnings increased 16.21 per cent. Gross was $9,875,934, as compared with $8,392,664 and net was $4,117,313, as compared with $3,542,974. After preferred dividends and other charges, balance available for common dividends was $941,259, which was equivalent to $15.22 a share earned on the $1,700 common shares outstanding. In the preceding year balance available for dividends was $583,345 or $9.45 a share on the common.

The entire balance after preferred dividends were paid and allowances made for depreciation and amortization was credited to surplus, no dividends being paid on the common stock. The company spent $3,455,930 for new construction in 1919, service being extended to twenty additional towns, making the number of communities served by the company 232.

The report shows the holdings of the company's preferred stock in the territory it serves now average about $10 per capita of the population in that territory. As of March 31, 1920, there had been $8,034,000 par value of such stock sold to customers.

HEATING MANDATORY DESPITE CALENDAR

When Temperature Falls Below 50 Degrees Landlords Must Act.

MANY JANITORS WARNED

Police and Health Department Find Widespread Error About April 15 Limit.

Ever since April 15, which formerly was the limit up to which landlords believed they were required to furnish heat, a large number of complaints have been received by the Department of Health from tenants who said that their landlords had turned off the steam. In all cases they have been notified that the law requires that heat shall be furnished when the temperature outside is below 50 degrees, and the police have spent a busy two weeks notifying janitors who were failing to stoke their boilers for heating purposes that they were violating the regulations of the Health Department.

In every case the tenants got their heat when the landlord or janitor was notified through the police of the new regulation. According to the Health authorities and the police, the failure of landlords to furnish heat may have been due to their desire to save coal, but in many cases it was found that the janitors had not received any instructions from their employers, but were simply in ignorance of the health provisions.

The Board of Health at a meeting in December of last year amended the Sanitary Code to read as follows:

"Section 225. Heating of occupied buildings. It shall be the duty of every person who shall have contracted or undertaken, or shall be bound, to heat, or to furnish heat for any building or portion thereof occupied as a home or place of residence of one or more persons, or as a business establishment where one or more persons are employed, to heat or to furnish heat for every occupied room in such building, or portion thereof, so that a minimum temperature of sixty-eight (68) degrees Fahrenheit may be maintained therein at all such times. Provided, however, the provisions of this section shall not apply to buildings, or portions thereof, used and occupied for trades, businesses, or occupations where high or low temperatures are essential and unavoidable.

Contract Is Assumed.

"For the purpose of this section, wherever a building is heated by means of a furnace, boiler, or other apparatus under control of the owner, agent or lessee of such building, such owner, agent or lessee, in the absence of a contract or agreement to the contrary, shall be deemed to have contracted, undertaken or bound himself or herself to furnish heat in accordance with the provisions of this section.

"The term, 'at all such times,' as used in this section, unless otherwise provided by a contract or agreement, shall include the time between the hours of 6 A. M. and 10 P. M. in a building or portion thereof, occupied as a home or place of residence, and during the usual working hours established and maintained in a building, or portion thereof, occupied as a business establishment, of each day whenever the outer or street temperature shall fall below fifty (50) degrees Fahrenheit.

"The term 'contract,' as used in this section, shall be taken to mean and include a written or verbal contract."

During the last two weeks the outside temperature has several times fallen as low as 40 degrees, and caused much discomfort among families in buildings where their heat was turned off because of the ignorance of the janitors and landlords of the regulation.

Effect of Rent Legislation.

A comprehensive analysis of the real estate situation, showing the causes of the present housing shortage and describing the effects of the new rent legislation, is contained in the current issue of the Record and Guide.

In support of the assertion that the new statutes are fatal to new building, the following statement is made: "Even the rare builder who was bold enough to go ahead under the present high cost of construction will be discouraged by the recent action of the Legislature in its efforts to redress an admitted but comparatively minor evil. Laws which disregard simple economic laws and all previously accepted ideas of contract and property rights are too hasardous for private enterprise to cope with.

"To estimate the rental values of apartments requires consideration of numerous factors of such importance that mistaken judgments are certain to result if rents are determined by arbiters lacking technical knowledge. Ill-founded decisions will be followed by appeals resulting in long and expensive litigation, costly and distasteful to landlord and tenant alike, but absolutely deterrent to the investment builder.

"But the most serious effect of the recent legislation is that the passing of such laws is fair warning that further unsound legislation may be enacted next year to govern new buildings. The prospective builder thus faces a prohibitive risk.

"In any event, by attempting to convert what has always previously been regarded as private property into an alleged public utility, the Legislature has destroyed all the ancient landmarks of the builder and investor in real estate."

TO EXHIBIT PRINTING.

American Institute of Graphic Arts Arranges Display.

A comprehensive and historically interesting exhibition of printing will open Wednesday evening in the galleries of the National Arts Club, 119 East Nineteenth Street. This exhibition, given by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, will continue here until June 1 and then go "on the road." Already invitations have been received for its display in Boston, Philadelphia, Rochester, N. Y.; Cincinnati, Chicago, Minneapolis, and San Francisco.

The opening, Wednesday evening, will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30. Charles Dana Gibson, honorary President of the Institute, will be the principal speaker. John Clyde Oswald, editor of the American Printer, will preside. Other speakers will be Henry W. Kent, Secretary of the American Museum of Fine Arts, and J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa.

2,000 POLICEMEN AT MASS.

Members of Holy Name Society Attend Brooklyn Service.

About 2,000 uniformed policemen of Brooklyn and Queens, members of the Holy Name Society, attended a communion mass yesterday morning at the church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Broadway and Aberdeen Street, Brooklyn. Bishop Charles E. McDonnell presided at the services and he was assisted by the Rev. Father Maurice McMahon, pastor of the church and four other priests.

The policemen marched to the church under command of Sergeant Dennis T. Kennedy, head of the Brooklyn and Queens police branch of the Holy Name Society. Deputy Police Commissioners John A. Leach and Joseph A. Faurot met at the church and attended services. Following, there was a communion breakfast in Trommer's Hall, Bushwick Avenue and Conway Street, where the policemen heard several addresses.

COLLEGE FLIERS IN CONTEST

Seven Teams to Compete at Mitchel Field Next Friday.

The Intercollegiate Flying Association will hold a series of contests at Mitchel Field, near Mineola, L. I., next Friday. Eleven universities will be represented.

Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, Director of the Air Service, gave permission for the contestants to use army planes, on the ground that it was an essential part of their training as reserve officers. He approved seven flying events, all calculated to bring out the individual flying proficiency of the contestants. The association is trying to obtain privately owned planes for each of the colleges, so that an intercollegiate race may be run off over a course from Mitchel Field to Princeton and return.

TRAIN FOR NEW YORK PLUNGES INTO SIDING

CREWS REMAIN AT POSTS

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., May 2.—An attempt was made today to wreck the passenger train leaving Winsted at 7:20 A. M. over the New York, New Haven & Hartford and due at the Grand Central at 10:41, by throwing a switch at the Excelsior Needle Company plant, a quarter of a mile north of Torrington, with the result that the train this morning crashed into two freight cars and a "bunk" car on the siding.

The engineer, Harry Boynton of Waterbury, and the fireman, Thomas Starks of Winsted, both stayed at their posts but neither was injured. The engine telescoped one freight car and derailed all three cars on the siding, and after mounting the rails itself, dug into the earth so that the cylinders rested on the ground.

The thirty-five or more passengers and the crew were badly shaken up and some were thrown from their seats but no one was injured. Ten railroad laborers who had occupied the bunk car during the night were on their way to attend church service when the crash came.

That a deliberate attempt was made to wreck the train was evident by the finding of the broken switch lock near the switch. Marks on the lock indicate that it had been broken with stones.

The train was descending a heavy grade and had just rounded a curve when the engineer discovered that the switch, a short distance ahead, was open. He quickly reversed the mechanism and applied the air, but the train's momentum carried it through the open switch.

Railroad detectives and Torrington police are working on the case, but up to tonight no clews had been found which might lead to the identity of the culprits.

ABANDONED BURNING SHIP.

British Freighter Rescued Crew of Sinking Motor Schooner.

According to a wireless message received here yesterday, the British freighter City of Canton picked up the crew of the Norwegian motor schooner Riseer, which caught fire and was abandoned about 500 miles southeast of Montauk Point, Long Island. The City of Canton is bringing them to this port.

The Riseer, which was formerly under American registry, was sold recently to a Norwegian firm. She left Norfolk, Va., on April 27 with a cargo of coal for Copenhagen. Her tonnage was 1,343.

SNOW FLURRY IN DUTCHESS.

Points Near Columbia County See Whirling Flakes.

Special to The New York Times.

RHINECLIFF, N. Y., May 2.—The town of Milan, just south of the Columbia County line, was visited by a snow flurry this morning, beginning at 9:30 o'clock and lasting ten minutes.

The air was filled with flakes during the few minutes the flurry lasted, but the snow melted as rapidly as it fell.

Passengers arriving here from points as far east as Millerton report similar brief visitations of snow.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The pressure is moderately high over the Lake Region and rather low elsewhere, with centres of disturbance over Northeast Texas and Southern Colorado. There were showers and thunderstorms in Missouri, Southern Illinois, the Lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee, East Gulf States, Georgia and Western North Carolina, and local rains in New England, Eastern New York and the Northwest. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

Showery weather will continue Monday and Tuesday in the South and will probably extend on Tuesday into the Middle Atlantic States. In the Ohio Valley, the Lake Region and New England the weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday.

Temperatures will remain moderately low.

FORECAST TODAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy, probably showers extreme southern portion.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy, probably showers.

Northern New England—Fair Monday and Tuesday.

Western Pennsylvania, Western New York—Fair Monday and probably Tuesday; little change in temperature.

The temperatures record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M. taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

RECEIVERS' NOTICES.

TO HOLDERS OF CERTAIN CLAIMS AND DEMANDS AGAINST NEW YORK RAILWAYS COMPANY:

NOTICE is hereby given that on March 19, 1920, the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York made an order in the equity suit now pending in said court brought by the American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company, Plaintiff, against New York Railways Company, defendant, in equity, consolidated cause No. 17-89, directing that all claims and demands of whatsoever nature against the said New York Railways Company not required to be presented to Job E. Hedges, as Receiver of New York Railways Company by the order of the said Court dated and filed April 30, 1919, and by the order of said Court dated June 20, 1919, and filed June 21, 1919, shall be presented to said Job E. Hedges as Receiver appointed in that one of the constituent causes of the above mentioned consolidated cause, No. E 17-89 wherein the American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company is Plaintiff, and New York Railways Company is defendant, at his office, 165 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, on or before the first day of July, 1920.

If any persons having such claims and demands against the said New York Railways Company as are required to be presented by the provisions of said order dated March 19, 1920, shall fail to present such claims and demands to the said Receiver on or before the first day of July, 1920, each of them so failing shall be barred from sharing in any distribution of the moneys or assets of the said New York Railways which now are or hereafter shall be in the hands of the Receiver in said constituent cause and from sharing in any distribution of any of the proceeds arising from the sale of any of the properties of said New York Railways Company if such sale shall hereafter be adjudged and decreed in the same constituent cause.

All holders of such claims or demands against said New York Railways Company as are required to be presented by the provisions of said order are hereby notified to present their claims in accordance with said order.

Forms for proof of claims or demands may be obtained at the office of the Receiver.

COMPANY'S OF

RAIL EMBARGOES STOP ALL BUILDING

All Hope of Reducing Space Shortage by Autumn Has Been Abandoned.

HIGHER COSTS NOW SURE

New Wage Rates to Building Trades Expected to Prevent Exodus of Unemployed.

Railroad embargoes are putting such a premium on current building work that the whole structure of the industry is menaced.

New York today is without cement. Without cement brick has no market. Without brick walls cannot be erected, and with walls half finished the lime and plaster trades are at a standstill. When such stagnation comes the plumbers cannot work, and the carpenters are idle. Roofers are shut out of their schedules, and all the great horde of building craftsmen engaged in thatalling equipment, floors, wall and electric wiring are held back.

Contractors are sending trucks in from great distances to get the scanty supply of basic materials that a few of the local dealers still have. This long-distance trucking costs the building owner from $35 to $100 a day, because trucks themselves are at a premium. It only takes a few trucks at this rate to seriously cripple the financial side of any building operation under contract.

Railroads terminating in New Jersey will not permit cement to pass east of New Brunswick, South Plainfield or Plainfield, and from these points shipments are tied up all the way back to the plants themselves, which are today facing the necessity of a shutdown unless relief is granted very soon.

The most certain thing before the public mind today is that the railroad embargo has been the final factor in chilling any Spring attempt to meet the fearful housing shortage this Autumn that will make the house shortage of this Spring fade into pale insignificance. There now is not the least possible chance that anything like the necessary volume of relief construction work can be completed by October.

The embargoes have already upset manufacturing calculations for this year, the reserve supplies in the hands of building material distributers have all been taken up so that toward the end of the dealers in this city, Long Island and a large section of New Jersey, were absolutely unable to supply their own customers.

No condition in wartime was ever so menacing to the building construction and material distributing industry as it is now. Railroad authorities only guardedly promised relief on Saturday, yet there is nothing being done apparently by any legislative agency, civic organization or individual to make sure that when the embargoes are lifted building materials, that commodity which is the only hope for shelter for many thousands of families this Autumn, will have any more consideration at the hands of the railroad authorities than in the past when automobiles and other items vied with the powers that control freight car permits for right of way.

This wanton disregard of the prior rights of building materials over the railroads entering New York by persons in power to get materials into this market in time to prevent another exodus of the already too scarce building mechanic, who is being slowly forced out of a job, will have its penalties.

At least one interest has taken steps to checkmate the tendency of skilled workmen to leave the city and go where employment in their respective trades is procurable, but this influence cannot put up houses without materials for the men to use in assembling them. The Building Trades Employers' Association has voluntarily granted all building trades craftsmen a dollar a day increase effective last Saturday.

The real need, however, is for an adequate supply of materials soon enough to prevent the building material manufacturer from having to shut down his plant or to help the producer whose plant already has been shut down from losing his organization by erosion.

The new wage scale in New York effective as of May 1, as approved by the Building Trades Council and the Building Trades Employers' Association, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports, follows:

Asbestos workers, boiler felters, pipe coverers, insulators, $8; asbestos workers' helpers, $7; art glass workers, $8; blacksmiths on building operations, $9; blue stone cutters, flaggers, bridge and curb setters, $9; blue stone cutters' helpers, $7; boilermakers, $9; boilermakers' helpers, $8; bricklayers, $10; bricklayers' helpers, $7; building material handlers, as per price list; building material drivers, teamsters, building material automobile chauffeurs, chauffeurs, teamsters and drivers' helpers, adjustments to be made; cabinetmakers, $9; carpenters and framers, $9; cement and concrete masons, ——; cement, concrete and asphalt laborers, $6.50; composition roofers, foremen, $8.50-$8; decorators and gilders, derrickmen and riggers, ——; dock builders, house shorers, and sheath pilers (April 1, 1920), 44 hours, $9; draftsmen, cut stone and marble, Class B, minimum per week, ——; Class A, minimum per week, ——; electrical workers, $9; electrical helpers, $5.50; electrical fixture workers, $9; elevator constructors, $9; elevator constructors' helpers, $7; engineers, stationary, $9; engineers, portable hoisting, &c., $46.75 weekly, broken time $10; engineers on combination machines per week, engineers on boilers, pumps or pile driving machines, per week, engineers on steam rollers, also on foundation work, per week, engineers, steam shovel and dredge (26 days monthly), adjustments to be made; excavators and general laborers, $6.50; framers, $8; glaziers, $8; granite cutters, $9; house shorers, movers and sheath pilers, $8; housesmiths, bridgemen and structural ironworkers, $9; housesmiths, bronze, metal furniture and metal trim workers, $9; housesmiths' helpers, $7; machinists of all descriptions, $9; machinists' helpers $7; marble carvers, $10; marble cutters and setters, $9; marble cutters' helpers, $7; marble, polishers, bed rubbers and sawyers, $8.50; metallic lathers, $9; mosaic and terrazo workers, $8; mosaic workers' helpers, $6.50; painters (40 hours a week), $8; painter-decorators (gilders, grainers), $8; pictorial painters, $9; plate and sheet glass glaziers, $8; plasterers, plain and ornamental, $8.50; plasterer modelers, weekly, $41.25 to $130; plasterers' helpers, $7; plumbers and gasfitters, $9; rockmen, $6; pipefitter, open cut, $8; compressed air work, $9; riggers on machinery, dynamos, boilers, &c., $9; rock drillers and tool sharpeners, $7; roofers, tar, felt, composition, damp and waterproofers, $8; sheet metal workers, coppersmiths, tinsmiths, metal roofers, $9; sign writers, letterers and stripers, $7.50; subject to change, slate and tile roofers, $9; steam, hot water and general pipe fitters, $9; steam, hot water and general pipe fitters' helpers, $7; tile layers, $9; tile layers' helpers, $7; tunnel and subway constructors, $7; technical engineers, structural (88 hours a week), junior, $35; Grade B draftsmen, per week, $60; Grade A draftsman, per week, $75; checkers, per week, $90; squad bosses, per week, $100; designers, per week, $100; upholsterers, $9.25 (40 hours a week); upholsterers on carpet and linoleum, $9; varnishers, $8; wood blankers, $9.

TO BUILD ORPHANS' HOME.

Announcement Made at Annual Meeting of Hebrew Organizations.

Every seat in Cooper Union was occupied, the aisles were crowded and about 3,000 more persons were unable to get in to the annual meeting of the Hebrew Free Burial Society and its offspring, the Israel Orphan Asylum, yesterday afternoon. The organizations, it was said, have 10,000 members, and all had received invitations to attend the meeting.

Former Judge Gustave Hartman, President of the associations, announced the purchase of land in Edgemere, L. I., where a Summer home for the orphans will be built at a cost between $85,000 and $100,000. The asylum has at present in its building at 274 Second Street, more than 200 children. This building is to be enlarged and beds for 500 orphans will be provided. With pledges made at yesterday's meeting, the fund is at present about $100,000.

The following officers were re-elected: President, Gustave Hartman; Vice Presidents, Jonas Schimmel, Morris Brenner, Moritz Schoenberg, Dr. Harry Lederkramer, and Israel Feit; Treasurer, Mendel Z. H. Schapira; Secretary, David Baum. Solomon Feinman is Superintendent.

GRAND ST. BOYS LOSE HOME

Mourn Fall of Ludlow Street Corner, Landmark Before Prohibition.

Prohibition dealt a blow to another landmark when the café at Ludlow and Grand Streets, where for forty-two years liquid cheer has been dispensed to the neighborhood, closed its doors Saturday night and Herman Tolk, its genial proprietor, announced he was going into another business. When the news spread that a "for rent" sign would grace the window of the café after closing hours on Saturday, old timers and the younger generation, to whom the place has been a byword, gathered to mourn its passing.

The Grand Street Boys, an organization composed of citizens from the neighborhood who have won success in the city's business and political life and who had made the cafe their headquarters, sent a delegation, as did the political clubs. The delegation sat around and listened to Tolk tell of the days when Chester A. Arthur, before he was President, used to come in and join the boys; of how political questions had been settled over the tables and of the large bets that had been placed there.

And then, before the evening ended, they collected souvenirs and mementoes of the café and departed, leaving Tolk to turn out the lights and write finis to the old landmark's career.

GRACE FOR STATE TAXES.

Delinuents May Avoid Penalties by Acting Before June 1.

Controller Travis announced yesterday that voluntary filing of delinquent State income returns for 1919 before June 1 would free the taxpayer from paying double the amount of his tax.

"While a daily stream of latecomers has been showing up at our district offices," said Mr. Travis, "careful checking of employers' reports discloses over 10,000 in the belated class. Unless they have been granted extensions of time by this bureau—one given by the Federal Government does not affect the State return—they will be required to pay penalties."

"Many harbor the thought that discretion is vested in me to dispense with or mitigate these penalties. The Legislature has vested me with no discretion in the matter. I am without authority to waive penalties even though I might personally feel disposed to do so."

To Dedicate Bronx Hospital.

The Bronx Hospital, with 100 beds, at 169th Street and Fulton Avenue, is to be dedicated next Sunday and to be open for inspection the week following. The late Dr. Abraham Jacobi was one of its sponsors. The hospital has 8,000 members, who are assisting in plans to extend its dispensary service to 35,000 persons. Contributions of $6,000 were announced yesterday.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK.—In the matter of AUBREY B. SIMS, Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Shongood, U. S. Auctioneer for the Southern District of New York, in Bankruptcy, sells Monday, May 3rd, 1920, at 12 o'clock M. by order of the Court at the County Court House, Hackensack, Bergen County, New Jersey, all the right, title and interest of Robert P. Stephenson, the Trustee in bankruptcy of the above named bankrupt in and to certain real estate belonging to the estate of the above named bankrupt at Ridgefield Park, New Jersey and in the Township of Overpeck, New Jersey, respectively described as follows:

All those certain tracts or parcels of land and premises, hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the Borough of Bogota in the County of Bergen and State of New Jersey, and which on a certain map entitled "Property of Wm. Gulden, Jr., Ridgefield Park, Bergen County, New Jersey, and filed May 12th, 1893" are marked, known and designated as lots numbered thirty-eight (38) and thirty-nine (39) in Block letter "G," fronting and facing on the easterly side or line of the Queen Anne Road, and said lot number thirty-eight being twenty-five (25) and thirteen hundredths feet wide in front, and twenty-five feet wide in the rear, and one hundred and four and fifty-six hundredths (104.56) feet deep on the southerly side, and one hundred and seven and seven hundredths (107.07) feet deep on the northerly side, and said lot numbered thirty-nine (39) being twenty-five and thirteen hundredths feet wide in front and twenty-five feet wide in the rear, and one hundred and seven and seven hundredths (107.07) feet deep on the southerly side and one hundred and nine and fifty-eight hundredths (109.58) feet deep on the northerly side as by reference to the said map will more fully and at large appear.

Being the same premises conveyed to John A. Noermann by Edmund Herold by deed dated January 25th, 1913, and thereafter conveyed by John A. Noremann to Edmund Herold, by deed dated August 29th, 1913, and thereafter conveyed by said Edmund Herold (unmarried) to Aubrey B. Sims by deed dated November 1, 1917.

And also all those two certain lots, tracts or parcels of land and premises, hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the Township of Overpeck in the County of Bergen and State of New Jersey, which on a certain map on file in the Clerk's office of the County of Bergen entitled "Map of property of Mamie H. Kelly, Hasbiton Heights, Ridgefield Township, Bergen County, N. J.," are known, laid down and designated as lots numbers one hundred and twenty-seven (127) and one hundred and twenty-eight (128) in Block lettered F; said two lots when taken together form a plot more particularly bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the southerly line of Gordon Street, distant fifty (50) feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the southerly line of Gordon Street with the westerly line of Cutler Street; running thence (1) southerly parallel with Cutler Street one hundred (100) feet; thence (2) westerly parallel with Gordon Street fifty (50) feet; thence (3) northerly parallel with Cutler Street one hundred (100) feet to the southerly line of Gordon Street and thence (4) easterly along the same fifty (50) feet to the point or place of beginning. All as laid down on said map.

Being the same premises conveyed to Edmund Herold by Harold Turner and Mary Louise Turner, his wife, by deed dated the second day of July, 1906; and thereafter conveyed by said Edmund Herold (unmarried) to Aubrey B. Sims by deed dated November 1, 1917.

THRONGS SEE FLEET FROM SMALL CRAFT

Riverside Drive Also Is Crowded with Strollers and Automobiles.

MANY GO ABOARD SHIPS

Secretary Daniels Discusses Shrinkage of the Navy to Peace Basis.

While 7,500 bluejackets from the Atlantic Fleet were on shore seeing New York yesterday, about an equal number of New Yorkers went out in small boats to see the fleet. Tens of thousands of people filled the sidewalks on Riverside Drive during the morning and afternoon, while on the Drive itself was a constant procession of automobiles in close formation.

Interest was about equally divided between the big battleships off Ninety-sixth Street and the flotilla of submarines and their mother ship, the Bushnell, near the foot of West Seventy-ninth Street.

The 7,500 bluejackets composing half the men of the fleet, who went on shore for a day's liberty immediately after the fleet's arrival yesterday, returned before 1 o'clock, when the second 7,500 started on leave. Hundreds of them went to the Polo Grounds, and others scattered to all parts of New York.

Scores of boats up to the size of small excursion steamers did a big business in carrying visitors out for a close-range view of the big ships. Small passenger craft were so thick in the river off Ninety-sixth Street in the afternoon that several collisions were narrowly averted. In spite of accidents on similar occasions in the past, some of the private passenger craft were reported to be without life preservers.

Cameras Are Barred.

Sightseers were allowed to come on board the battleships in the afternoon, but possessors of cameras had to check them while making an inspection of the warships.

The navy is short of men and a boom in recruiting is hoped for by naval officers as a result of the fleet's visit to this city. Gunners Mate Shields, in charge of the recruiting station in Times Square, said last night that the arrival of the big ships was encouraging many young men to take advantage of the short enlistment period in the navy. The manner in which the navy has shrunk from its wartime size was set forth in the following statement from Secretary of the Navy Daniels, made public yesterday:

"With the exception, perhaps, of the maritime world, the people of the country generally are not aware of the extent to which the navy has been demobilized in point of ships. They do know that in so far as personnel is concerned the navy is but a skeleton of its former tremendous war strength, having experienced a reduction in commissioned and enlisted personnel of over 400,000 men.

"A reduction in ships almost as great in proportion to the number of vessels operated by the navy during the war has taken place. At the close of the war the navy had about 2,400 vessels of all descriptions, including battleships of the first line, the auxiliaries necessary to their operation as a fleet and the staunch little submarine chasers and yachts of all sizes which so effectively helped to paralyze the morale of the German U boats.

Volunteer Ships Mustered Out.

"In addition to the vessels which the navy had at the outbreak of the war there were taken over by purchase and charter hundreds of vessels of every description, including big steel transports, supply ships, colliers, tankers, tugs, yachts and motor boats. The logistics of the navy's operation in the war, that is the problem of keeping the naval forces which were scattered over the seven seas supplied with all material requirements, including food, clothing, ammunition, coal, fuel oil, &c., was without parallel in the history of the country. This great fleet of volunteer vessels has now for the most part been mustered out, and one by one they have been and are being honorably discharged. From the doughty little motor patrol in the Coast Defense service to the yacht that tracked the U-boats across the Atlantic, they all served their purpose.

"The chartered vessels have been returned to their owners. Those acquired by purchase are being sold along with a number of other purely naval vessels of the fighting type that have become obsolete. This latter class includes coast torpedo boats, destroyers, submarines, gunboats, &c. The gunboats Yorktown and Machias are included among those to be sold, also the steel cruiser Cincinnati, launched in 1892. Among the largest vessels recently offered for sale were the two steel transports the Yale and Charles (ex-Harvard). These vessels are big, rangy transports of 5,700 tons displacement, with an appraised value of $850,000 each. They were sold to Edward Farley Company for $1,735,000. The transports Nopatin and Narragansett, now at Brooklyn, have also been placed on sale. These vessels are sister ships of 3,500 tons.

"In the sale of vessels purchased during the war the Navy Department is following the policy of offering them first to their original owners at the appraised value. If the original owners do not want them, the vessels are then offered for public sale and sold by sealed proposals.

"The Navy Department states that a total of 177 vessels have been sold since the armistice, for which $2,949,795.85 has been paid to the Government. There are still a number of vessels remaining to be sold, including about 130 submarine chasers.

"In connection with the sale of the submarine chasers, it is understood that the navy is preparing plans for the conversion of these boats into yachts and fishing boats for which purposes it is stated they are excellently suited. Some of these boats purchased from the navy and now privately owned are already being converted into yachts, and it is understood that a Western fisheries association is negotiating for the purchase of three of these submarine chasers, and will convert them into fishing boats.

"There appears to be a ready market for most of the vessels that the navy offers. Many are modern vessels with many years of usefulness before them, and are to be sold as a ship to be operated for pleasure or profit according to their type. A number of obsolete fighting ships are valuable, however, for the metal that can be salvaged from them, and as such are being sold for scrap."

To Celebrate "Neighbors' Day."

Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, has accepted an invitation to speak at a dinner at the Hotel Commodore next Thursday evening following an all-day conference to arrange for the celebration in New York of "Neighbors' Day," on Saturday, June 12. Another speaker will be the Rev. John Haynes Holmes. George Gordon Battle will preside at the conference, which has been called under the joint auspices of the Community Councils of Greater New York and the National Social Unit Organization.

are extreme novelties that will make an irresistible appeal to everyone who wants to be a step or two in advance of the mode.
The silks of the Newer Art, from which these chic and interesting addenda of the fashionable costume have been evolved, are audaciously colorful, but in irreproachable taste; the decorative features are charming; the workmanship is manifestly that off the artist rather than of the artisan.
